Independence Too Soon?
Ireland's New Money.
Leave Starving to Gandhi.
50 Million Light Years.
—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

IN NEWARK, N. J., a grand jury indicts 128 for election frauds, the usual things, including stealing ballots. The indictment says that both parties "countenanced gangsters" and their use in the election.

GREEN, THE British historian, planned a history of the United States, but stopped, believing that Americans had acquired the right of self-government before they were ready for it.

He may have been right.

IRELAND PROPOSES to issue money of her own, an "Irish dollar," taking the place of British sterling now used in Ireland.

Thirty million dollars in gold would be drawn from the Bank of England and that, plus the land of Ireland, would form a basis for the new currency.

British financiers predict "inflation and disastrous chaos," as a matter of course.

DR. ARTHUR KRAUS, teacher of philosophy in New York's City College, refusing food, says he will starve to death "to protest against the apathy of intellectuals toward anti-Semitic excesses in Polish universities."

Dr. Kraus shows high moral courage, but might better look up the history of the Jewish priest, Mattathias, who fought against religious persecution more than two thousand years ago and established the famous family of Maccabees.

The Maccabees had the right idea. Leave starving to Mahatma Gandhi. There are better methods.

YOU LIVE, as you know, in a small collection of a few hundred million suns, with their planets, that make up the milky way. This little group that men used to call "the universe," is only one of millions of "islands in space."

Scientists interested now in studying other universes are delighted to learn from the Carnegie Institute of an improvement by Prof. Stebbins that will double the efficiency of the "thermionic tube" and then double the power of the new 100-inch telescope, enabling it to see clearly farther out into space.

Island universes will be studied that lie "fifty million light years" away. To know how far that is, find out how many seconds there are in fifty million years, multiply the total by 186,000 and you will have the distance in miles. It's a long way.

THE LEAGUE of Nations, dealing as gently as possible with Japan, which happens to be well armed and independent, suggested an "international conciliation commission to settle the Chino-Japanese controversy over Manchuria."

Britain, Japan's former ally, advised Japan to accept, but Japan says "No." She lives in Asia and will settle her own affairs there.

Meanwhile China has resumed diplomatic relations with Russia. This is considered a menace to Japan, and caused a decline in the Japanese stock market.

CHICAGO, WHERE the dollar grows bigger and prices grow smaller, offers for breakfast two eggs, toast, coffee, fried potatoes, even jam on the toast, all for 12 cents.

In California you see the old-fashioned sign "board and lodging, $30 a month."

That may seem impossible to pampered 1932, but S. S. Carvalho, the well-known editor and publisher, knows that it is possible.

He and this writer, as young reporters for Charles A. Dana, lived at Simmons' restaurant in Murray street, just across Broadway from the Sun office, each paying eight dollars a week for a good room and "all he could eat" in the excellent restaurant.

IN CHICAGO yesterday eight died by violence, including one woman, gagged, bound by gangsters, left to suffocate. Three policemen, one bandit, one automobile thief, one lightweight boxer, one woman, stabbed to death.

Mayor Cermak, who has just delivered an anti-crime ultimatum to his police captains, might consider the methods of a vigilance committee organized in San Francisco in the last century.

It worked.

P. M. LICHENSTEIN, assistant to New York's District Attorney, says some leaders of jazz bands begin work with "a few sniffs" of the marihuana weed. The fumes of this drug cause "a feeling of exhilaration, followed by a delirious rage."

Also, increasing use of that drug explains much of the increase in crime.

THE FOREIGN Affairs Committee of the House of Representatives yesterday voted $20,000 to Mexico to atone for the deaths of two relatives of ex-President Ortiz Rubio, killed by deputy sheriffs on our soil. The family of each slain youth is to receive $15,000. The payment is called "an act of grace," but ought to be called "an act of repentance, humiliation and shame."

Our custom of killing each other, indiscriminately, in this country should not be inflicted upon visitors from other countries.

WASHINGTON PONDERS RESULTS OF MOVE

Congressional Chiefs Charge Paris With 'Ingratitude'

Collapse of two European cabinets over the international debt controversy was followed in Washington today by bitter resentment at France's decision to withhold payment of the installment due tomorrow.

United States officialdom studied the probable consequences of the default.

Meanwhile, the two fallen premiers, Edouard Herriot, of France, and Count Charles de Brocqueville, of Belgium, were being supported to form new cabinets.

In England, the House of Commons held a long debate on the debt issue.

Italy announced it already has paid its $1,245,437 installment due tomorrow on the American debt.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Resentment flared in Congress today over the French decision against paying the $19,261,432 debt installment due here tomorrow, but at the White House and State Department an attitude of careful silence was maintained.

Expressions of indignation first rose in Democratic quarters, Senator McKellar, of Tennessee, saying it was clear "that Germany is not the only European nation that treats its obligations as scraps of paper." He said to newspapermen:

"I think it is the most ungrateful act in the career of any nation in the world."

STUDY CONSEQUENCES

While President Hoover kept in close touch with the situation, there was no indication of further action to come either from him or the state department. Officials pondered the consequences likely to flow from the Paris refusal to meet its debt payment.

As one consequence, France was envisioned in official and Congressional quarters as in an isolated position.

Negotiations between France and this country for a commercial treaty probably will be suspended automatically with default tomorrow, as conditions will not be favorable for their continuance.

One Congressional view, given to reporters by Chairman McReynolds, of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, was that "France has less excuse not to pay than any other nation." He said:

"The settlement made with her was only 75 per cent of what she received after the war.

"There is no question about France's ability to pay.

"I admire very much the strenuous fight made by Premier Herriot, but apparently the opposition ran wild."

Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana, Republican leader of the Senate, said:

"I didn't expect this. While

Mrs. Pinchot Shaken In Hit-Run Crash

HARRISBURG, Dec. 14.—(INS.)—Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, wife of the Governor, was shaken up, but escaped injury, last night when a hit-and-run driver struck her car.

At the executive mansion today Mrs. Pinchot confirmed the report that an unidentified driver barely missed causing a serious accident. Lady Johnstone, sister of Gov. Gifford Pinchot, was with Mrs. Pinchot.

VETS PRESENT BONUS DEMAND

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Petitions demanding immediate cash payment of the bonus and denouncing the use of troops in evicting last summer's bonus army were carried to Vice President Curtis and Speaker Garner today by representatives of the Rank and File Veterans, radical outgrowth of the original bonus army.

When one unnamed petitioner refused to shake hands, the Vice President told him:

"Well, you can go to the devil."

Samuel J. Stember, leader of the committee calling on Curtis, was stopped when he read down to the passage criticizing the President. Curtis told him to take it out. Stember refused. Curtis' pencil swiftly struck out the paragraph.

Speaker Garner had no conflict with his petitioners. They were headed by the Communist candidate for Vice President in the last election, James W. Ford, Negro.

The delegation had marched to the Capitol under heavy police guard, with more held in reserve. As the group calling on Speaker Garner came to a halt outside the sergeant-at-arms' office, Ford came face to face with Representative Hamilton Fish, of New York, under whom a committee recently investigated Communist activities in the United States. Fish said:

"Humph!"

Car Hurts 4, Driver Gets 3 Years

Declaring "this is the most atrocious thing ever to come to the attention of this court," Judge Frank P. Patterson today sentenced Charles Ramirez, 35, of 1304 Walnut street, McKeesport, to three years in the workhouse on a charge of driving while intoxicated and felonious assault.

Ramirez pleaded guilty. He was arrested November 26, after his car ran down a group of playing children at Thirtieth street and Grover avenue, seriously injuring Robert and William Paul, Richard Crawford and Charles Kellerman.

Dolly and Alice Forget Feud at Dinner

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(INS.)—All quiet on the Potomac today, except wagging tongues, recounting how Mrs. Dolly Gann and Mrs. Alice Longworth sat together last night at the Vice President's farewell dinner to President and Mrs. Hoover.

Without the slightest indication of the feud which flared between them over social ranking in the early days of Mr. Hoover's regime, the two met at the dinner given by Vice President Curtis, Mrs. Gann's half-brother, at the Vice President's hotel.

Mrs. Gann was her brother's hostess. Mrs. Longworth, who came from her Cincinnati home especially for the occasion, went into dinner on the arm of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, the chief of staff, and the seating, so far as she was concerned, was determined by the precedence accorded his rank. Thus, she was seven seats away from Mrs. Gann.

5 MILLION BUDGET CUT SCANNED

BEER YIELD HALVED BY MILLS

Treasury Head Silent As to Prospects Of Veto

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Secretary Mills gave the House Ways and Means Committee today an estimate of the revenue a beer bill might bring in, but left it to draw its own conclusions as to whether the President would give the signature that would start beer to flowing.

The Secretary of the Treasury said legalization of beer would not produce enough revenue by itself to balance the budget. He estimated it would bring in between $125,000,000 and $150,000,000 a year. This is about half the estimate of Democratic House leaders.

The beer provisions of the Collier bill were described as practicable of administration — the wine section "impossible."

URGES SALES TAX

Mills urged a non-partisan program to balance the budget by the adoption of a general manufacturers sales tax.

Questioning the Secretary about the beer bill, Representative Rainey, of Illinois, the committee's ranking Democrat, asked:

"Will President Hoover sign this bill?"

Mills replied, with a shrug:

"Oh, Mr. Rainey, you know no one speaks for the President."

Switching then to a discussion of the Treasury's stand on the sales tax that was before the committee last session, Rainey engaged in a heated discussion with Mills over the accuracy of Treasury estimates of the deficit that might be expected. Rainey said:

"Why did we not receive support from the administration on the manufacturers' sales tax last year?"

MILLS ANGERED

Mills shouted, shaking his fist at Rainey:

"You did from me—100 per cent. I indorsed the bill your committee reported out in a radio broadcast."

F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, totday presented to the House Ways and Means Committee a resolution adopted by the league's board of directors opposing modification of the Volstead act.

Reciting that the committee was considering bills to legalize beer, the resolution said:

"We are opposed to beer because it is an intoxicating liquor. To license the sale of beer would be violative of the Constitution.

"To simply withdraw the penalties from the manufacture of beer and its sale would constitute nullification, which is always indefensible.

"To legalize the sale of near beer or beer not actually intoxicating would not satisfy the demands of those who desire alcoholic beverages. Such legislation would be acceptable to neither friends nor opponents of the Eighteenth Amendment."

Mrs. Irish Named To Relief Board

HARRISBURG, Dec. 14.—(INS.)—Gov. Gifford Pinchot today named Mrs. Franklin C. Irish, of Pittsburgh, as a member of the Allegheny County Relief Board.

Dry Press Agent Forfeits $10 As Drunk

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(Universal)—Paul Wakefield Wallace, 29, press agent to Dr. Clarence True Wilson and the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, has forfeited $10 collateral in Police Court on a charge of intoxication.

Wallace was arrested after an argument with a taxi driver over fare. When searched at a precinct station a pint of gin and a quantity of prohibition literature was found on his person. Collateral was posted by a professional bondsman.

NORTH SIDE CHURCH BURNS

Crash of Blazing Wall Injures 5 Firemen; Explosion Probed

Caught under the blazing embers of a falling wall as fire destroyed the Queen of Heaven Church, 1432 Juniata street, the city's only Italian Catholic church north of the Allegheny River, five firemen were injured, four seriously, early today.

The fire followed an explosion, apparently in the basement, according to Mrs. Virgie Stemmler, of 1439 Lake street, who told police she was awakened by the blast and the sound of falling statues in the church.

Deputy Fire Chief Frank Jones estimated the damage at $20,000.

MASS OF FLAMES

When firemen, summoned by a still alarm, arrived, the 18-year-old one-story frame structure was a mass of flames. Flying sparks endangered the Beth Eden Baptist Church, separated from the burning building by George way. The intense heat broke several windows in the Baptist church.

It was while the five firemen were attempting to prevent the spread of the flames to the Beth Eden Church that they were injured. Police, aided by Harry Morrow and Oscar Miller, both of 1508 Columbus avenue, rescued the trapped firemen.

After they had been removed to hospitals it was reported additional men had been trapped. Rescuers, who dug through the smoldering debris, found only two blackened images which had fallen with the wall.

THREE ALARMS

Three alarms brought 10 engine companies and two trucks to the scene. Several details of police also responded on the second alarm and established lines to keep back a crowd of several hundred people who braved the cold air to watch the firemen.

The injured firemen were Capt. John P. Joyce, 38, of 1329 Goebel street, and Hoseman Alvin L. Evans, 32, of 1252 Pennsylvania avenue, both of Engine Company 44, in Allegheny General Hospital, and Hoseman Charles Beerie, 39, of 1105 Juniata street, and Michael Connelly, 44, of 305 Cremo street, in Mercy Hospital. They suffered bruises, lacerations and probable internal injuries.

The fifth man was Capt. James Hunter, of Engine Company 45, who suffered slight injuries. He ccntinued on duty. Capt. Joyce was elevated to his new post 10 days ago.

POLICE INVESTIGATE

While the fire is thought to have been caused by a gas explosion, police were investigating a report that three suspicious men had been seen in the neighborhood early last night.

Among the spectators at the fire was the Rev. Father Raphael Guglilmiotti, pastor of the Queen of Heaven congregation 27 years. He has been ill in his parish house at 1434 Juniata street for the past two months.

PAY SLASH URGED ON COUNCIL

Layoffs Proposed by Citizens Would Hit 700

City Council meets today to consider the recommendations of the citizens' tax source committee to cut the $25,200,000 budget of Mayor Charles H. Kline to $20,073,000, largely through reductions and eliminations in the city payroll.

The tax rate recommended by the citizens is 20.6 mills on land, a reduction of 2.4 mills from this year's rate.

Council will act on the tax rate tomorrow, according to reliable sources.

Outstanding proposals which the tax source committee has put up to Council are these:

1—Cut the city payroll by elimination of jobs, saving $1,910,000.

2—Make a 25 per cent flat salary reduction, for an annual saving of $2,437,000.

3—Spread the payment of the current city deficit of $1,750,000 over a three-year period.

MEMBERS THANKED

In receiving the report of the committee, President John S. Herron, of Council, thanked each member. He said:

"We will make an earnest effort to carry out your recommendations and bring this tax levy down where you want it. We will try to take care of the deficit exactly as you stated. Strange as it may seem to you gentlemen, we are not so far apart."

Although it was generally expected that the report would go deep into payroll problems, it was not anticipated that it would mean the elimination of some 700

SNOW AND COLD TO CONTINUE

With more snow and stationary temperature, winter's reign in the Pittsburgh district will continue for another day at least, Forecaster W. S. Brotzman announced today.

Low temperatures for the season were reported today. Along Babcock boulevard and in the Brookside Farms section, Forecaster Brotzman said, the mercury dropped to 4 above zero unofficially. The official low in Pittsburgh this morning was 15.

Predicting light snow for today with cloudy weather tomorrow, Brotzman said the whole northern section of the county was experiencing cold weather.

An ice coated road near Jeannette today was responsible for the injury of four men from Adamsburg en route to work at East Pittsburgh. Their auto crashed into a truck. The injured are George Hutchinson, Newton H. Errett, Clarence Heasley, driver, and R. F. Robinson.

Late yesterday, Peter Chiado, 60, of 425 Pine way, Carnegie, blinded by snow, walked from behind a street car into the path of an automobile and was killed.

Highway Patrolman J. L. Pifer today received minor bruises when his motorcycle and an automobile collided in the Boulevard of the Allies. The icy road was blamed.

Monkey Climbs Pole To Defy Dentistry

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Mingo, taken to a dentist to have his teeth filed down for biting the cook at the home of James Gleason, motion picture actor, was still a monkey on a stick today.

Threatened with summary dentistry, he fled and went in for telephone pole sitting, scorning bribes of red apples and candy sticks, and resisting attempts of firemen to reach him with their tall ladder.

Court Balks Community Bus Line

An order restraining operation of buses to carry members of the Community Service Association between Wilkinsburg and Pittsburgh until the Public Service Commission determines the status of such operation was made by Judge James H. Gray in Common Pleas Court today.

The order restrains operation on any basis except gratuitously, but Judge Gray's opinion stated the Community Service Association is free to continue organization "if they see fit to take the responsibility therefor."

The restraining order was issued on petition of the Pittsburgh Railways Company, and named C. V. Shoup as organizer and chief representative of the Community Service Association, and officers of the Community Transportation Company. The Community Transportation Company was organized to carry members of the association, and the railways company claims it must have the approval of the Public Service Commission.

The Railways Company was required to post $10,000 bond securing the defendant from loss or damage.

BANDITS SLAY POLICE HERO

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(INS.)—Two miles of sleeping Manhattan were turned into a bullet spattered battlefield today, following a holdup in which a policeman was shot to death.

In the wild chase that followed, two policemen were wounded as they exchanged shots from the pavement with the fleeing taxi containing the bandits, one of whom was found to be badly wounded when finally captured.

A final bizarre note was struck in the bandits' mad dash to escape, when, driven to the curb by a police radio car which had taken up the chase, one of the men, with blood streaming from a bullet wound, stopped a passing cab containing the mother and sister of Milton Berle, stage comedian, ordered out the driver, and then, with the two horror-stricken women crouching in the bottom of the car, made a final attempt to escape.

Patrolman George L. Gerhard, father of two children and due for an honor citation, was killed when he entered a cordial shop to investigate a reported holdup. The three youths, after firing at him, entered a cab and started the dash, during which over 100 bullets were exchanged with the pursuing police.

Spider Conquers Clock At Cost of Its Life

AKRON, O., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—A small black spider which for three weeks tried to enmesh the hands of an alarm clock in its web was hailed as victorious today, but at the cost of its own life.

The contest began in C. C. Thompson's home in Barberton, a suburb. The Thompsons discovered the spider between the dial and the face of the clock, trying to spin a web around the hands.

For three weeks the insect worked at the apparently hopeless task. Each time it spun a strand between the hands, the slowly increasing pressure as the hands moved apart would break the contact.

Then the clock stopped.

As it was taken apart yesterday the body of the spider rolled out and the clock started ticking again.

jobs, or that the salary cut would reach 25 per cent.

The reduction, however, is from the full 12 months' salary setup in the Mayor's budget, and in many cases will not amount to as much loss of pay to the employes as under the present furlough system.

With the exception of Philip Murray, labor leader, who has been away, all members of the tax source committee appeared before Council to deliver their report. One of the committee, R. L. McKallip, evidently had wished to go farther in the reductions, for he approved the report "subject to the limitations of its extent."

McKallip had previously signed a report from the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board asking for a 3-mill reduction in taxes.

SITS WITH COUNCIL

The committee sat about the table with Council while City Clerk Robert Clark read the report. Most of the crowd which had filled the chamber earlier in the day had gone.

When the reading was over, Herron congratulated the committee. He asked them to judge Council's work after it has been completed.

W. P. Witherow, chairman of the committee, thanked the city officials for their co-operation and courtesy. No information was withheld, he stated, adding:

"This is not a haphazard report. It was studied and carefully weighed. We hope Council will give its favorable consideration."

Other members of the committee, including A. K. Oliver, W. G. Negley, Pressley H. Bailey, E. W. Mudge and Charles Dreifus spoke briefly. Frank B. Bell declared the work had been a liberal education to the committee.

NO FAVORITES

Herron in closing the meeting said:

"We have stated that there are no favorites in this budget and I am quite sure from your report you have not considered any as favorites."

A short time later Herron told reporters that when the tax rate is set, many of the recommendations in the reports will be followed. He pointed out that Council will not go along with the suggestion made by the Real Estate Board to terminate the agreement for equalized water rates for the residents of the South Hills or the recommendation made by the Building Owners and Managers' Association to cut the Carnegie Library appropriation in half.

Asked directly about a 25 per cent salary reduction, Herron said it was a matter for consideration by Council.

NO NEW TAXES

The committee early in its report said that there were to be no new forms of taxation suggested and that its chief purpose was to attack the "problem of saving home owners from confiscatory taxation by means of the common sense method of reducing the cost of government." The cost of city government was referred to as "staggering."

That the city can be operated efficiently on the reduced budget was the contention of the committee. The committee estimates tax collections in 1933 at 77.5 per cent of collections as against 73 per cent figured by the Mayor.

Since the city deficit has back of it an accumulation of $9,000,000 in delinquent taxes, the committee believes it fair to spread the burden over a period of three years instead of attempting to carry the whole load in next year's tax levy.

Legislation for the grouping of certain city and county activities is suggested. An effort to obtain legislation to curb high damage awards in the taking of properties for public improvements also is suggested

Set Rites for Pioneer Monkey-Gland Man

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Funeral services will be held tomorrow for Irving R. Bacon, 69, former lawyer, newspaperman and one of the first Americans to undergo a monkey-gland operation, who died of cancer Sunday.

In 1921 Bacon volunteered to submit to Voronoff's rejuvenation by monkey-gland transplantation, complaining that he had been feeling "the encroachments of age."

Citizens' Group Details Proposed City Savings

$5,000,000 Budget Cut Means Tax Reduction

The report of the citizens' tax source committee recommends severe cuts in the city payroll to reach a budget of $20,073,000 and make possible a millage of 20.6 on land and 10.3 on buildings.

This is a reduction of 2.4 mills on land and 1.2 mills on buildings.

If such a program is carried out, it will mean a saving for the taxpayers of $2.40 for each $1,000 assessed valuation of land and $1.20 for each $1,000 valuation of buildings.

Although all of the payroll changes proposed by the committee have not been made public, here are the main methods by which they would bring about tax reduction:

Cut about 700 jobs off the payroll for a saving of $1,910,000.

ELIMINATE FURLOUGHS

Eliminate the furlough system and put in a flat salary reduction of 25 per cent over the entire payroll, saving $2,437,000.

Cut $729,000 out of supplies and equipment.

Transfer the City Home and Hospital at Mayview to the Department of Health, thus concentrating hospital activities in one department. Reduce the Mayview payroll $84,700.

Eliminate the Bureau for the Handicapped, the Transit Committee and the Art Commission.

Close numerous police and fire stations, with total payroll eliminations in police and fire bureaus of $560,700.

Have Bureau of Fire Prevention manned with veteran members of the fire-fighting force.

PARK SAVINGS

Cut payroll in parks $135,800, with employes grouped so they can be assigned to points where need for work exists.

Combine a number of the bureaus in the Department of Public Works under the Bureau of Maintenance, as recently suggested by Director Edward G. Lang.

Transfer clerical work of the Bureau of City Property to the Controller's office.

Combine bureaus of Traffic Planning and Electricity for all maintenance purposes.

Purchase all similar commodities, particularly coal, on one contract.

Recommends $137,000 cut of the payroll of the Carnegie Library of Pittsburgh, and $47,200 cut of the Bureau of Recreation.

Virtually eliminate shade tree division.

Cut $79,800 in the payroll of the Bureau of Building Inspection.

Eliminate many "grants and donations" to outside organizations, and a 25 per cent reduction in others.

Cut $21,500 from the food inspection payrolls.

Phila. Physicians Fight 'Socialization'

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 14.—(INS.)—The protest of Philadelphia physicians against all forms of socialized medicine took an added vigor today following a story session last night of the Philadelphia Pediatric Society.

Physicians in the society objected to children receiving free immunization against diphtheria at the city health centers and defeated a resolution calling upon City Council to reconsider its elimination of the post of city immunologist in the 1933 budget.

TAXES SLASHED IN DUQUESNE

A tax reduction of 1 mill and drastic cuts in salaries of borough employes was announced by Duquesne Borough Council.

In addition to continuing furloughs in force this year, the Council voted to change the millage from 8½ to 7½ mills and effect the following salary reductions:

City solicitor, $2,400 to $1,800 annually; heads of all departments, including fire and police, $220 to $175 a month; city engineer, $3,225 annually, reduced to half time; street commissioner, $220 a month, reduced to half time; city clerk, $2,640 annually, reduced to half time; three water department engineers, reduced from 64 cents to 55 cents an hour.

A position of plumbing inspector at $220 a month was discontinued. Police and firemen who receive $4.80 a day, will continue on a basis of 10 days' work a month.

PINCHOT FIGHTS 'LOOT' GIFTS TO LEGISLATORS

Asks Martin's Aid to Save $25,000 He Brands Waste

HARRISBURG, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot believes that in legislating economies in government the Legislature should begin at home.

He refused to approve a requisition for $25,000 for the Legislature to provide gewgaws, gimcracks, pens, pencils, hairbrushes, etc.

These articles are handed to members and others at each regular session, and in Capitol parlance, they are known as "loot packages."

APPEALS TO MARTIN

The Governor also asked State Treasurer Edward Martin to join him in withholding approval for this expenditure, pointing out it would feed 25,000 destitute persons for seven days. The Governor asked in a letter to Maritn:

"Why on earth, in times like these, should the commonwealth of Pennsylvania continue to be a combination Santa Claus and Easter bunny for the members and employes of Senate and House?"

Martin also is chairman of the Republican State Committee.

The Governor said the requisitions include $2,697 for 540 fountain pens for 208 members, $1,274 for 456 mechanical pencils for the 208 members, shoe polish, elder flower soap, cashmere bouquet soap, violet soap, sandalwood soap, medicinal soap, rose toilet soap, tar soap, toilet water, face lotion and other cosmetics totaling $412.

DICTIONARIES ASKED

They also asked for 360 dictionaries at 91 cents each for the 208 members, and the Governor remarked that perhaps the House members need them. They asked for 300 brief cases at $6.28 each, 384 hair brushes and 360 clothes brushes.

Other items included 468 combs, 552 pocket knives, 636 scissors, 20 desk sets, nail brushes, flesh brushes, shaving brushes, shoe brushes, bath mats, bath towels, wash cloths. The Governor asked:

"Must the taxpayers not only elect our legislators, but wash them afterward?"

'Economy Keynote', Asserts Gen. Martin

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Gen. Edward Martin, chairman of the Republican State Committee, said yesterday that economy and retrenchment will be the keynote of the Republican members in the forthcoming session of the Legislature.

Mother of 3, Killer, Gets 1 to 10 Years

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Bernice Rutherford, 31, mother of three children, pleaded guilty to a charge of manslaughter and was sentenced yesterday to 1 to 10 years in prison.

The woman was accused of killing her uncle, Frank H. Ring, 83, retired lumberman, with whom she had resided. She told authorities they had quarreled over a deed on property owned by her father.

HOMES KEPT UP AT MAYVIEW

That the city maintains at the City Home and Hospital at Mayview 27 homes, cottages or apartments for the officals of that institution in additon to the salaries, which they receive, has been revealed in a report to City Council by Dr. J. S. Hammers, superintendent.

In the letter, Dr. Hammers gives it as his opinion that the present system of supplying food to the doctors and other officials should be changed by adding a fixed sum to their salaries and allowing them to purchase according to their own needs rather than receiving food and other supplies from the storeroom. He states:

"It would be a very much happier solution and lead to less criticism on the part of anyone."

Dr. Hammers revealed that patients sometimes assist with the work in the homes and apartments, and that the city pays for servants for a number of the physicians.

Many of the families of the doctors and officials of the institution live at Mayview, Dr. Hammers reported. At his own home there are two paid employes and two patients, he said.

Lost Practice Kills Roof-Stunting Pup

SEATTLE, Wash., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Skippy, fox terrier pup, liked to trot around the cornice of the Public Safety Building, five stories above the street. His mistress, Miss Lenore Shearer, superintendent of City Hospital nurses, shook her head, however, and tied him up for safe keeping.

Skippy finally slipped his leash and slithered out the window and on to the cornice. But two weeks' confinement was disastrous. His steady eye and sure step were gone. A policeman heard a shrill "yip" and looked up to see Skippy hurtle to his death.

SCOOPS CAMPUS IN INTERVIEW

Sally Sanderson, pretty University of Pittsburgh sophomore, today must be the envy of all the college girls of the land.

The 19-year-old co-ed not only knows the brawny Pitt football team members by name, but she had the privilege of interviewing the 11 first-string players in tneir locker room.

The purpose of her visit was to ask each member of the team his all-American selection for his own position. In the Pitt Panther, campus humorous publication, the results are recorded as follows:

Pitt.	Position.	Choice.	School.
Skladany,	R. E.	Kopcsak,	Army.
Walton,	R. T.	Kurth,	Notre Dame.
Hartwig,	R. G.	Corbus,	Stanford.
Tormey,	C.	Ely,	Nebraska.
Onder,	L. G.	Summerfelt,	Army.
Cuba,	L. T.	Smith,	U. S. C.
Dailey,	L. E.	Moss,	Purdue.
Hogan,	Q.	Vidal,	Army.
Heller,	R. H.	Zimmerman,	Tulane.
Sebastian,	L. H.	Koken,	Notre Dame.
Weinstock,	F.	Cain,	Alabama.

In her article, the co-ed reporter hurls roses at the Pitt team. She writes:

"Miller Munjas reminds the fair co-eds more of a movie hero than a football bruiser.

"Joe Tormey, the boy with the booful eyes.

"Ted Dailey, the fairest-haired co-ed sweetheart.

"Mike Sebastian, the flower from Sharon."

And then, of Warren Heller, All-American halfback she says:

"Heller is sorta blond and not a bad dancer; but don't rush girls; he looks rather tied up with a certain blonde."

UTILITY CHARGE SETTING URGED AS CITY RIGHT

Fair Rate Officer Here For Meeting Reveals Legislative Plans

Municipal right to set utility tariff rates under a state home rule act was urged today by Attorney Conway W. Dickson, of Berwick, Pa., first vice president of the Pennsylvania Fair Rate Association, as a means of throwing the cost of appeals before the Public Service Commission on utility corporations.

Dickson, who has led rate fights for the past 10 years, speaks tonight at the annual dinner meeting of the association in Fort Pitt Hotel. The dinner, which follows an organization meeting planned to outline legislative demands, will be open to the public, President A. B. Davidson, of Tarentum, announced.

Justifying a home rule act such as is effective in Ohio, Dickson said:

"For the past 20 years it has been the costly right of the public to fight high rates. Municipalities represent the public, and who should have a more just right to demand that a privately-owned corporation bear the cost of proving their high rates are justified.

"The municipality would set the rate on the basis of fair returns for the untilities' invested capital, reversing the present order of the utility establishing rates on an inflated basis. The utilities would have the right to appeal to the Public Service Commission, but the rate case would be borne by it."

Attorney Samuel M. London, of Youngstown, and John M. Walker, former utility counsel to Gov. Pinchot, also will speak tonight.

COAL MEN FIGHT OHIO RATES

COLUMBUS, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Western Pennsylvania and Northern West Virginia coal operators will be unable to compete with Ohio-mined coal if intrastate rates fixed by the Ohio Utilities Commission are allowed to stand, witnesses said today at a hearing here by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Harry A. Cochran, of Baltimore, representing the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and J. T. Carbine, Pittsburgh, for the Pennsylvania, agreed that the Ohio rates granted a preference to Ohio coal mining companies which the Pennsylvania and West Virginia operators could not meet.

Carbine declared the Pennsylvania would stand to lose about a half million dollars in freight rates in Ohio. Should the rates be cut in the central freight rate territory, the Pennsylvania and its short-line connecting railroads would lose about $3,434,000.

Morgan 'Christmas Tea' Put in Gold Vault

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—J. P. Morgan's Christmas tea—7,800 pounds of it—arrived from China yesterday and was received at the entrance of the vaults of J. P. Morgan & Co., in Wall street, by uniformed guards.

The delivery of the 60-pound cases gave rise to reports that a new shipment of gold had been received, but a representative of the international banking house said:

"It's tea. There is nothing new in that. There are three restaurants in the building. Much food comes in here."

The truckmen and guards were uncommunicative and said:

"We don't know nothing. Ask him."

Him, a young English clerk checking the bill of lading, said:

"We don't know anything about it. The bill of lading for the tea came this morning. We couldn't send it up to Mr. Morgan's house and we couldn't send it out to his Long Island place, so we're putting it in the vault here."

Morgan customarily sends his friends packages of fine Chinese tea for Christmas. The firm also is agent for several large importers.

House Seeks to Prevent More Gallery Gunplay

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—The House went about its business as usual today, but its members talked seriously of protecting themselves from those who would enforce their demands by flourishing dangerous weapons.

While Marlin R. M. Kemmerer, 25-year-old Allentown (Pa.) department store clerk who yesterday displayed a revolver and demanded the right to speak from the gallery, was held by police, the suggestion was advanced that the public sections be closed to all who do not possess tickets.

The crowded chamber was thrown into wild confusion at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon as Kemmerer, described as an expert marksman, suddenly stood up in the gallery, placed one leg over the railing and waved a revolver.

A page boy cried, "Look out for the gun!" and there was a dash for the cloakrooms, the members forgetting the vote they were engaged in and most of their dignity. Visitors in the gallery promptly scattered.

Representative Maas (Rep.), of Minnesota, a World War aviator, appeared at a spot under the pale, excited clerk who told newspapermen later he was "for all the people." Maas called to him:

"All right, son, but before you get the floor just give me the gun."

Kemmerer dropped it into Maas' hands.

Just then Representative LaGuardia (Rep.), New York, who had rushed from the floor to the gallery, and police appeared behind the youth, and he was taken to headquarters for questioning.

In his rooms here police found two sticks of dynamite and in his pockets the opening paragraph of his intended speech. He told police he planned to demand relief for unemployment and other economic ills which he blamed on Congress. He was held on an open charge pending investigation.

DOOMED MOTHER-TO-BE WRITES STORY OF TRAGIC LIFE

TROUBLES MARK SAD CAREER OF MRS. SNIPES

Never Had Chance, Says Woman Slayer Awaiting Chair

Herewith is the first article of a series by Mrs. Beatrice Snipes, 29-year-old expectant mother, sentenced to be executed for murder in April, in which she tells in her own words the story of her life.

By BEATRICE SNIPES

STATE PENITENTIARY, COLUMBIA, S. C., Dec. 14.—I don't remember my mother. Whatever has happened to me, whatever I have done, this always comes back to my mind—and my baby to come will not remember me.

I am sitting here by my bed in the ward of the State Penitentiary. My time is drawing near, and my time on earth is short. I can see the rain beating on the garden, the flowers are dead. In April I, too, am to die. I shall never see the summer again. Looking back over my life I can see my faults, see all the things I might have done so differently if I had had a chance.

I do not think I ever had a real chance. Through no fault of my own I have drifted from tragedy to tragedy, from trouble to trouble—and now I am a branded murderess and within four months I shall be dead.

FAMILY COURAGE

I was born here in South Carolina, Beatrice Hilton—we Hiltons are an old family. My three uncles fought in the Mexican War, and we have a reputation for courage.

Perhaps that is what has brought me through the ordeal of the last few months, a courage which I cannot control. As I have said, I do not remember my mother because when I was two and one-half years old my brother and sister and I were sent to an orphanage. My father was tried for murder—he was acquitted, but it broke my mother's heart. She had no money and was induced to send us to a home.

When I was about 15, the superintendent of the home got into trouble with one of the girls. He was taken to jail, murdered a warden and was sentenced to death. He escaped, but was later recaptured and killed himself.

GETS JOB IN MILL

I was glad to get away after this, and when I was 16, I went to work in the cotton mills. Then I met my first husband. We were married soon after we met and within a year my baby was born—poor baby, he lived four hours, just long enough to cry, just long enough to make me understand what I had wanted in my heart.

Thirteen months later I had another son, he just breathed—that was all.

Ferguson, my husband, decided to get work in another county. Then one day I picked up a paper—there had been an accident, he had fallen off a bridge and was drowned.

I was 21. I went back to the mill where I had started five years before.

I did not care to go about much, but one day I agreed to join some friends and then I met Clyde, my present husband. It was not love at first sight. We went together nearly two years, then one night we were talking about how easy it is to get married in York County. Clyde said:

"How about it?"

AGAIN BECOMES BRIDE

We got a friend's car and rode to York and were married.

So once more I was a bride. Clyde was always good to me, and we were happy. Then Clyde Junior came along. He is a dear little fellow. I cannot say that he is very strong—he is a bit puny, but he never cries, never complains.

He's just five years old now. I wonder what will happen to him!

Then just a year ago my little girl was born.

We were so happy, we loved children, and she was such a cute mite—all summer we thought about her. Then in the spring I found I was to be a mother again.

Oil City Considers 'Modern' Blue Law

OIL CITY, Pa., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Searching for a means of banning Sunday movies which will not be "discriminatory," City Council today studied an ordinance adopted in York, Pa., in 1927.

This legislation, explained City Solicitor S. N. Mogilowitz, prohibits all amusements including skating rinks, dancing, opera, etc.

Woman Gets 5 Days For Hitting Teacher

MERCER, Pa., Dec. 14.—Because she struck Miss Alma McClure, of Grove City, a teacher in a Liberty Township School, Mrs. Mabel Allen must spend five days in jail, having been unable to pay a $5 fine when arraigned before Justice Thomas McClain. Mrs. Allen had gone to the school to protest against a whipping which Miss McClure had given a nephew.

PRAYERS ASKED FOR SLAYER

COLUMBIA, S. C., Dec. 14.—(Universal.) — South Carolina's womanhood today asked the united prayers of the nation to save Mrs. Beatrice Ferguson Snipes, expectant mother, from the electric chair.

This plea for clemency was made in a petition drawn up by W. M. Easterling, prominent local attorney, and signed by hundreds of women in all ranks of life, and by many women's organizations.

As this effort to rally the nation to Mrs. Snipes' aid went forward, the doomed woman's attorneys at York, S. C., announced they would file an appeal with the State Supreme Court by December 17. The trial judge denied a motion for a new hearing.

Mrs. Snipes, convicted slayer of a policeman, was sentenced to die in the electric chair on April 7, three months after the birth of her expected child.

JUDD TO 'CLEAR' TRUNK SLAYING

PHOENIX, Ariz., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—A bit skeptical, county authorities awaited today to hear the "true story" of the killing of two women from the lips of Dr. William C. Judd, husband of Winnie Ruth Judd, convicted "trunk murderess," under sentence to be hanged February 17.

Dr. Judd, who was expected to arrive today from Prescott, said he would "tell all" to Sheriff J. R. McFadden in an attempt to save his wife. The Sheriff said:

"If Dr. Judd has any new facts we will be glad to hear them. It seems a bit strange he did not come to the aid of his wife before this."

Dr. Judd said in Prescott last night:

"When I tell the whole truth of this case there will be another person in a prison cell and Ruth Judd will stand exonerated of this crime of which she has been accused and convicted."

Kline Waits High Court Rule With Job Secure

Even if Guilt Verdict Stands, Ouster Is Held Unlikely

While Mayor Kline waited today for the Superior Court to decide whether the verdict of guilty of malfeasance against him shall be restored, the hopes of his critics that he might be removed from office were dissipated.

Lawyers pointed out that the Mayor's attorneys, Charles B. Prichard and Edward G. Coll, might, without undue means, prolong the court battle until after the Mayor's term ends December 31, 1933.

As for the Mayor's co-defendant, Bertram L. Succop, the discharged city supplies director already under sentence of one year, final judgment is expected sooner.

CASE DRAGS

The adage that time flies seems to operate in the Mayor's favor. Eighteen months have passed since he was indicted and, if necessary, 12 more may be consumed before the case is closed.

On the other hand, the case may be closed today, so far as the Mayor is concerned. If the Superior Court refuses District Attorney Andrew T. Park's motion to restore the guilty verdict which Judge Thomas D. Finletter tossed out of court, then the Mayor may sigh in relief.

MORE KLINE MOVES

Prichard and Coll still have before them several moves. They may ask the Supreme Court to review the case, if the Superior Court restores the verdict. If the highest court turns them down, they may then return to Butler and ask for arguments on a new trial.

If the new trial is refused, they may carry this appeal to the Superior Court.

If a new trial were granted the Mayor, it would hardly be tried before the next June term in Butler.

The Mayor and Succop were convicted in Butler last May on charges based on the method of spending of hundreds of thousands of taxpayers' dollars.

Reader she was the sole support of several children and grandchildren and that she had been refused aid by the welfare organization. The case was referred by the court to Miss Cora I. Blackledge, probation officer, for investigation.

KEYS HELD CLUE TO STOLEN CASH

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(INS.)—Six keys, found today among the personal effects of Walter Clyde Davis, the Colorado Springs bank embezzler who hanged himself in his cell Monday, may be the answer to what the former president of the City Savings Building and Loan Association did with the large sum in cash and bonds which he was reported to have taken with him when he fled last June.

The discovery of the keys, which authorities believe may be to safe deposit vaults, was made shortly after the arrival this morning of Hugh H. Harper, chief of the Colorado Springs police, who came east to assist in the search for the supposedly cached funds and to identify the body.

An immediate search of all local institutions was ordered.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—A bench warrant was issued for the arrest of Jack Hoxie, cowboy film actor, when he failed to appear in Superior Court to explain alleged nonpayment of alimony to his wife, Marian Hoxie.

She complained he was $355 in arrears.

DENIES SLAYING OF MUSICIAN

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—(INS.)—Questioning of a youthful suspect and reports of threats on the life of Capt. Edwin O. Schildhauer held the limelight today in the investigation of the mysterious kidnaping and murder of the handsome and popular Austin High School band leader.

The suspect, David Saubert, 21, was arrested on an anonymous telephone tip. He denied all knowledge of the murder, saying that he spent Saturday night, when the crime was committed, in the company of Leona Brobney. Police planned to question the girl.

Another interview with the young bandmaster's beautiful brunette widow was sought by investigators concerning information supplied by an unnamed youth to the effect that Mrs. Schildhauer, the day after her husband was killed, spoke of threats which he had been receiving.

Mrs. Schildhauer begged to be excused from further interrogation until after her husband's funeral, which was held this afternoon.

MARKHAM JOINS WORD BEAUTY CONTEST

Selects 'Nevermore'; Rupert Hughes Gives His 'Ten Best'

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Search for the 10 most beautiful words in the English tongue, begun here in literary circles, today drew contributions from Edwin Markham, poet, and Rupert Hughes, novelist.

Compilation of the lists was started by Wilfred J. Funk, poet and publisher, who suggested 10 words that to him seemed most euphonious and beautiful of meaning. Other noted writers submitted rival lists.

Today, Markham, author of "The Man With the Hoe," "The Forgotten Man" and other poems, wrote out this selection:

Reverberating	Coliseum
Chryselephantine	Nevermore
Imperishable	Plutonian
Sea-Sands	Ideal
Empyrean	Californian

Hughes' list is as follows:

Immemorial	Translucent
Oriole	Ivory
Threnody	Gloom
Tremulous	Inviolate
Blithe	Blue

The novelist added:

"The loveliness of a word takes profit or loss from its meaning and context. Thus, dew on a rose is sweeter than due on a bill. Gorgeous words like anathema, turpentine and influenza suffer from their association. Underwear depends on who wears it, but it is hard to enjoy overshoes on anybody."

MONONGAHELA FIRE PROBED

MONONGAHELA, Pa., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Fire, following an explosion which shook buildings within a radius of four blocks, destroyed a three-story brick warehouse in the business section last night and leveled a two-story frame house nearby.

Police, investigating the blast, said the warehouse was owned by Tom Jordan, McKeesport produce dealer, who has been missing for several weeks.

Officers added that Jordan is sought for questioning in connection with the slaying of Antonio Sorci, killed by a volley of gunfire from an automobile in McKeesport, October 23.

WILL OF RUUD AIDS NEEDY AND SICK

Cash Gifts Made to Employes in All Parts of World

On file today in the Register of Wills office was the last testament of Edwin Ruud, inventor and philanthropist, whose funeral was held Monday. One of the most human of documents, it reveals for the first time the extent of his benefactions.

Mr. Ruud, who gave many thousands of dollars during his life to poor university students, to help struggling musicians, hospitals here and in Norway, left $50,000 to Pittsburgh charities, $50,000 to the University of Pittsburgh, and $200,000 for a fund to aid young American women musicians who are unable to pay.

Almost every charitable bequest—and nearly two-thirds of his more than $1,500,000 estate goes to help someone—is to aid solely those who know poverty. His will provided a fund to build a hospital in the town of his birth in Norway.

TRIBUTE TO WIFE

The will was filed by Attorney John H. Sorg, stepson of the late manufacturer. It named him executor, to be aided in trust by the Commonwealth Trust Company. But Minna Kaufmann Ruud, his widow to whom he left $400,000, his personal belongings, was given his first tribute.

The fund for aiding women musicians is to be named for her—as was a similar one for Norway and Sweden created by him several years ago. She will direct them. Expressing his faith in her integrity, he instructed that she direct others of his benefactions. To every 10-year Ruud employe over the world he gave $1,000, and to 20-year workers $2,000.

To be used solely for care of those unable to pay, he gave:

To the West Penn Hospital, $10,000; Allegheny General Hospital, $10,000; Children's Hospital, $10,000; Industrial Home for Crippled Children, $10,000; St. Barnabas Home, $5,000; Salvation Army, $50,000, to be used in Allegheny County.

FUND FOR CRIPPLE

To Petra Johnsen, of Oslo, Norway, crippled by Parkinson's disease, he left $9,000 to support her for life; to Alex Bell, his "hunting companion and old friend," of Gilfoyle, Pa., $5,000; to Jacquette Cartall, of New York, an old friend, $3,000; to H. Talbot Peterson, of Pittsburgh, a friend, $10,000.

To his stepson and his wife, Mrs. Mary Harlan Sorg, he bequeathed $25,000 each, and to each of his two sisters, $60,000. He left an $11,000 total to his wife's brother, $10,000 to an aunt in Oslo, and to each nephew and niece, $25,000.

The $200,000 Minna Kaufmann Ruud fund will provide complete education for young talented women, even to paying for their debuts.

Artists Protest 'Roxy' Ban on Nude Statues

By ARTHUR B. DONEGAN
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Now it's the sculptors and their supporters who are up in arms and breathing fire and indignation.

And all because S. L. Rothafel ("Roxy" to you and legions of radio fans) decided three nude figures (quite inanimate, however) were "somewhat in advance of popular appreciation" and banished them from the music hall in Radio City.

The banished trio are Gwen Lux's "Eve," William Zorach's "Dancing Figure" and Robert [illegible]'s "Goose Girl."

Mr. Rothafel, according to the artists, lacks appreciation and judgment of art. Mr. Rothafel, said they, has no right to deprive the public of seeing the nudes and judging for itself how good they are.

Mr. Rothafel's attitude, he persisted, would lead to the closing of all conservatories and museums if it became general.

But the niches in music hall remained empty today.

And even the approval of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who viewed the statues as they progressed toward completion, and of the Society of American Painters and Sculptors seemed powerless to fill them at least with nudes somewhat in advance of popular appreciation.

Weather Conditions.

The disturbance that caused the snowfall over this section yesterday is centered over Western Virginia this morning, and the northern center is over Eastern Ontario. The weather is still cloudy over much the greater portion of the country, and it is raining over the Gulf states and northward over Tennessee and North Carolina and Virginia. There is now four to five inches of snow on the ground over the Pittsburgh river district. It is somewhat colder than yesterday over the Upper Ohio Valley and eastward to the coast, while over the Mississippi Valley and the plains states there was considerable rise since yesterday, but the weather is still cold over the entire country.

FRANCE'S DEBT ACTION STIRS CONGRESS

France has been a lone wolf among the nations of Europe, and her treatment of us has been most inexcusable and indefensible. I thought she would uphold her national honor and integrity on so small an amount.

"Most of these loans were made to help her rehabilitate herself after the war. If it had not been for the United States there would be no France today. France has been guilty of the basest ingratitude and of national dishonor, too."

Senator Steiwer (Rep.), of Oregon, said:

"The American government would do well to pattern its course after that employed by Andrew Jackson at the time the French government threatened to default before."

Secretary of the Treasury Mills said:

"I don't see there is anything further we can do."

Hoover Linked Reparations To Revision, British Told

LONDON, Dec. 14.—(INS.)—In officially announcing that Britain would pay her $95,550,000 war debt to the United States tomorrow, Chancellor of the Exchequer Neville Chamberlain today made the startling assertion that the Hoover administration had suggested reparations settlement as the best means of attaining revision of the war debts.

The suggestion was made through diplomatic channels, Chamberlain asserted, following the conversations in Washington between President Hoover and former Premier Laval, of France.

Chamberlain told the House of Commons:

"The United States government indicated to the British ambassador that if the European powers devised a reasonable reparations settlement, this would be the best method of approach with a view to revision of war debts due to the United States."

Prior to making this declaration, Chamberlain had announced that the British payment would be made in gold in New York tomorrow by the Federal Reserve Bank, the Bank of England simultaneously earmarking an equivalent amount in London to the New York institution's credit.

WHITE HOUSE SILENT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14—(INS.)—Frigid silence was maintained at the White House and State Department today on the assertion made by the British chancellor to the House of Commons that the Hoover administration itself suggested reparations settlement as the best means of obtaining downward revision of war debts by the United States.

The British chancellor's statement, however, confirmed openly what long has been known confidentially in Washington—that on the occasion of the historic Hoover-Laval conference here the then French premier was advised, in effect, to return to Europe, unsnarl the reparations tangle, and then the administration would "sympathetically reconsider" the debt agreements.

Herriot May Be Chosen To Head Cabinet Again

PARIS, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—A move to make Edouard Herriot premier again despite his overturn by the Chamber of Deputies on the American debt question became manifest today as President Albert Lebrun began consultations with political leaders.

M. Herriot slept through the morning and was unaware of activities looking toward reinstalling him as premier.

Some of his friends expressed doubt whether he would accept an appointment in view of the unequivocal rejection of his plan for payment of the debt installment tomorrow.

ROME, Dec. 14.—(INS.)—The Italian government today paid the United States $1,245,437 as her installment on the war debt due tomorrow.

Berlin Stays Aloof From Debt Dispute

BERLIN, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Germany is standing aloof from the Franco-American debt dispute, a government spokesman said today, feeling that since a return to the Young plan is impossible and unthinkable, it matters little to Germany what happens as a consequence of the French refusal to pay.

It is with a certain satisfaction, he said, that Germany observes how France, which bitterly fought Germany's attempts at revision of the reparations schedule, now has taken over many of the German arguments.

'PERFECT GIRL' ENGAGED

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—The engagement of Miss Lillian Lucille Ludwig, Montana beauty, to Juan Ceballes Hutchinson, 26-year-old son of Miller Reese Hutchinson, New York engineer, has been announced by Miss Ludwig, who once was hailed as the University of Southern California's "perfect girl."

Hutchinson, an aviator who for years was transportation inspector on the Pennsylvania Railroad's air lines, is living in Hollywood with his mother. Miss Ludwig, whose parents are Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Ludwig, of Great Falls, Mont., is a house guest.

In 1926 while a student at the university, Miss Ludwig was reported engaged to Henry Lefebvre, Trojan football star.

FRANCE GUARDS U. S. ATTACHE

PARIS, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Police precautions were taken today at the laying of the cornerstone of a new students' building of the Du Pont de Nemours foundation.

French authorities insisted on putting policemen in the automobile of Theodore Marriner, who represented Ambassador Walter E. Edge, during the drive from the embassy to the scene of the ceremony.

There was no untoward incident, however. A small, orderly crowd was present. In a speech, Mr. Marriner, who is counselor of the American embassy, declared that the Foundation inaugurates another facility for carrying on and strengthening cultural relations between France and America.

STATE'S SALES TAX SCORED

The one per cent emergency sales tax was attacked and described as unfair by Arthur C. Kaufmann, regional vice president of the Pennsylvania Retailers' Association and general manager of McCreery's, in an address before the New Kensington Chamber of Commerce in the Howard Hotel on "Taxation—One of Today's Problems."

He declared taxation was a problem that belonged not only to those holding property, but to everyone, and charged the sales tax with inequality.

Senator-elect Benjamin H. Thompson and Representatives-elect James Lovett and Thomas A. McGrail also spoke.

Are You a

COLDS-SUSCEPTIBLE?

Colds-Susceptibles, According to Recent Medical Research, Are Those Having Four or More Colds a Year

BEWARE OF COLDS NOW

Colds—especially those mean, "grippy" colds so prevalent at the present time—are more of a menace than most people suppose. They lower body resistance and often pave the way for serious ills. Colds-Susceptibles—those who "catch colds" easily—should be especially careful now.

If you belong to this group, here's welcome news. Vicks Plan for better Control of Colds was developed especially for America's millions of Colds-Susceptibles and their families.

With certain simple rules of health, Vicks Plan combines proper medication—at the proper time—for every type and stage of a cold. The Plan was made possible with the new aid in preventing colds—Vicks Nose & Throat Drops. It is the ideal companion to Vicks VapoRub—the modern way of treating colds. The two aid and supplement each other in reducing the burden of the world's costliest ailment—the starting point of one-half of all disabling diseases!

VICKS COLDS-CONTROL PLAN

Introduced last year, Vicks Plan has been amazingly successful in showing the way to fewer colds, less severe colds, less expense from colds. Here, briefly is the Plan:

Simple Health Rules—Get plenty of rest and sleep. Eliminate regularly. Drink lots of water. Eat light, wholesome food.

When Colds Threaten—Use Vicks Nose & Throat Drops, the new aid in preventing colds.

If a Cold Develops or strikes without warning—Use Vicks VapoRub, the nation's standby in treating colds.

In clinical tests among thousands last winter, Vicks Colds-Control Plan reduced the number and duration of colds by half!—cut the danger and costs of colds more than half! How you can follow Vicks Plan in your home is fully explained in each Vicks package.

• SOME "COLD" FACTS •

It is estimated that one out of every four persons is a Colds-Susceptible. Approximately 30 million Americans belong to this group.

Indoor workers, as a group, rate high as Colds-Susceptibles. For instance, office workers have nine times as many colds as taxi drivers and four times as many as soldiers.

Children as a class are particularly susceptible to colds. Thousands are absent from school from three days to three weeks each year because of colds.

Probably the greatest damage done by colds is that they so often lead to more serious complications.

Colds-Susceptibles—their body resistance lowered by frequent colds—are an easier prey for flu, bronchitis, pneumonia, and other disabling diseases.

TRIAL OFFER: Your druggist has Vicks VapoRub (now available in Stainless form, if you prefer). Also the new Vicks Nose Drops, and a Cough Drop actually medicated with ingredients of Vicks VapoRub. If you wish to test these new products before buying, and learn more about Vicks Plan for better Control of Colds, send 3c in stamps to Vick Chemical Company, Pomona Street, Greensboro, North Carolina.

CIPHER MAKES 'BOGIE' WORK

By KENNETH A. NAGEL
Cipher Editor.

Cipher No. 25 is tough. It's an original submitted by Frank C. Gennery, of Fairmont, W. Va. He has a real cipher here and it's going to cause everyone to lose sleep. You asked for hard ciphers—now you have one.

"Bogie" is having quite a time with this one. So far he has used an even dozen lead pencils and three erasers, not to mention the paper.

Get your thinking cap on and watch for a clue tomorrow.

Looking over Cipher No. 24 you find that it has two unnecessary figures—the first and the last—in each group. The basic cipher is numerical, with each cipher number multiplied by three. Thus "A" is three times "1," "Z" is three times "26."

By taking the first group of figures, "7392," and dropping the unnecessary "7," and "2" you have "39" remaining. Then divide this by three, which gives you 13, therefore the letter is "M," the thirteenth letter in the alphabet. Simple, isn't it?

When the cipher is completed you have:

MY MOTHER TELLS ME TO DO MY HOME WORK, BUT YOUR CIPHER COMES FIRST. THIS CIPHER WAS MADE BY CARL PIEPER.

Another letter from James A. R. Rich, of Oil City, Pa. (What a cipher fan), says:

"Please continue your ciphers forever, they constitute a most interesting feature of your paper."

In the new mail the Cipher Editor finds original ciphers from Frank E. Swanson, of Duquesne, and Thomas Bambrey, of Emerson, Pa.

This isn't the letter of a kindly Japanese father to his schoolboy son. It's a tough cipher and should test the memory of some of you fans. The general method has been used before.

A Sale of Diamonds

At the Lowest Prices in Memory

The opportunity came to us a few weeks ago to give our customers diamond values that have never been equaled in the memory of any living person. Diamond prices had declined to a point where it seemed almost inevitable that any changes would have to be upward.

We acted promptly, choosing with utmost care, and had the stones mounted in PLATINUM, in exquisite, new designs.

A year or two ago flawless, clear-white diamonds of this quality commanded double and more than double these prices. There are

Wedding Rings — Fancy Rings — Solitaire Rings
Wrist Watches — Bracelet Watches
Pins and Brooches

. . . at prices unequaled in our history, and AT THE LOWEST PRICES WE ARE ABLE TO FORESEE.

We believe this to be the moment for a lifetime investment in diamonds, which are imperishable and which are universally esteemed as treasured possessions. Your inspection is invited.

Globe-Trotting

With the Globe-Trotter Of the Sun-Telegraph-Hearst Metrotone News

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello Ladies and Gentlemen:

Right off the bat today comes more figuring. Frank S. is all perturbed and righteously so. If the beer tax revenue is to be the $300,000,000 per year, as claimed by the anti-prohibitionists, how much will he have to consume to be doing his share? Let's see now. A $5 tax on a barrel means 60,000,000 barrels. Maybe you'll have to call the neighbors in, Frank.

* * *

Too many Globe-Trotters are disgusted these days. What with very little money and Christmas coming on and all that, it's enough to make anyone just a little annoyed with the general run of things. But here is one G-T who isn't. He is Stephen Toomey, of Esplanade street. He's been sick a long time—too long for you and me even to think of—but never has he lost his cheerfulness and right now he is happier than ever because it might not be so far away when he'll be able to walk over and tune the radio for himself.

* * *

Richard F. Shaughnessy, election inspector for Carnegie's Second Ward, First District, points out that they might have found feathers in the election box, but they are not horse feathers, since his board's counting and the tabulation of the recount board tallied 100 per cent.

* * *

Listen, people, you know it's tough to answer those questions about businesses and financial institutions. I'm liable to say something here that might lend itself to various interpretations and you might get the wrong one. Keep off the spot, says Louis, and so craves your indulgence.

* * *

The firemen at Engine Company 25 want me to broadcast the arrival of two alarms, which will be answered by George Herron, one of the boys of the fire station. His daughter, Mrs. William Belchner, and the twins are doing nicely.

BEST NEWS STORIES -:- Connolly, I. N. S. Chief, In 'Going to Press' -:- ON THE AIR

Sophie Kerr Introduces Radio Story

"The Most Important Stories of This Year and Next," a consensus of the newspaper stories and events of this year likely to be of greatest importance when viewed in historical perspective, is the topic of an address by J. V. Connolly, president of International News Service, Universal Service and King Features Syndicate, when he appears as guest speaker on Bill Schudt's "Going to Press" fourth anniversary program over CBS-WJAS at 4:45 today.

Mr. Connolly

Mr. Connolly's talk is based on the combined opinions of newspaper editors and newspaper readers. He enlisted the aid of Arthur Brisbane, who, in turn, queried the more than 12,000,000 persons who read his "Today" column, which appears daily in the Sun-Telegraph. As a result, thousands of letters have poured in stating popular opinions.

Dr. Walter B. Pitkin, of the Pulitzer School of Journalism, Columbia University, and McClelland Barclay, noted artist, air their views on the perfect age for man when they engage in a discussion under the title "When Does Man Reach His Peak?" over CBS-WJAS at 4:15 today. Dr. Pitkin, the author of several books, advances the theory that man does not attain the peak of life until he is 40.

Program Pointers

Sophie Kerr, whose stories have appeared in leading magazines for the last 15 years, is heard over an NBC-WJZ network including KDKA when she introduces the characters in her story, "Relative Value," prior to its dramatization as the Five Star Theater presentation at 7:30 tonight. In addition, Miss Kerr tells how she came to write the story, which depicts a pretty girl newspaper reporter's freedom from a too-willing slavery to a lazy, selfish relative.

Miss Kerr

"Mrs. Buxton Gets a Chance," a short detective story by Thomas Topham concerning the theft of Mrs. Buxton's jewels, her anger at the police, who seem helpless, and her energetic amateur sleuthing, is listed on WJAS at 9:30.

An episode in the conquest of the Sudan, "The Capture of Khalif-Ben, the Rebel," is the Cape Diamond adventure dramatized at 8 on KDKA.

Listening In—

Bits About Stars; Eddie, Ralph Reduce; A Burglar Fan.

Bits about the stars: Connie Boswell submitted three of her oil paintings for exhibition at a New York gallery and one of them was accepted . . . which makes Connie very happy . . . Grace Donaldson, of the Don Hall trio, learns 10 new words every day . . . If it has done nothing else, radio has taught Hendrik Willem van Loon to sit still. The famous author, heard weekly on the Home Circle programs, says he can't recall ever having sat still—and silent—for more than five minutes before in his life.

Miss Donaldson

Eddie and Ralph, those hefty happiness boys, have shrunk to a mere 550 pounds, Eddie having lost 22 pounds.

Al Cameron, of Al and Pete, broke three ribs three weeks ago when he fell on a cake of soap . . . and then, at rehearsal last week, he fell and broke them all over again.

Whispering Jack Smith has a favorite taxi driver who takes him back and forth between the Columbia studios and the New York theater where he's appearing.

Somewhere in the vicinity of Boston there is a burglar who's a Funnyboner fan . . . some one broke into the Boston home of Bunny Coughlin's parents and stole nothing but a dozen forks and an autographed picture of the popular trio of which Bunny is a member.

H. R. L.—Goldy and Dusty are Harvey Hindermyer and Earle Tuckerman, veteran vaudeville and radio entertainers. They first broadcast under their present aliases in 1923.

Ted Weems nearly disrupted one of the nickel-back-on-the-bottle programs the other night when, standing about six inches from the microphone, he guffawed loudly at one of Jack Benny's impromptu cracks.

Vincent Sorey, CBS musical director, is breaking into the ranks of popular song composers with a bang. His first song, "The Night I Found You," is now being distributed by publishers; another is just going to press—and he's writing a third.

NEW TYPE 'SUB' CARRIES PLANE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(Universal.)—Plans for a new type of American submarine, equipped with a small but fast seaplane as a scouting accessory, are under consideration by the Navy Department here, it is learned.

Actual drawings of the craft are being guarded with extreme secrecy, but it was learned the plane to be used aboard it is under construction. It was turned over to the department once, but sent back to the factory for changes after trial flights.

The plane would fit into a special compartment in the submarine, and is so designed as to be capable of being assembled in a few moments. No catapults would be used. The plane would be equipped with pontoons, and would take off under its own power from the surface of the ocean.

WILD CARGO

Another Thrilling Story of the Jungle by The Author of "Bring 'Em Back Alive"

By FRANK BUCK

With EDWARD ANTHONY

CHAPTER LIII.

We failed to get the ground shots we were after, but we got something else of real importance—a picture of the highest scientific interest, that will make several zoologists change beliefs to which they have clung for years.

It all came about in this way: After five days of steady plugging our beaters drove the raider of Muar into a corner adjoining exactly the location we wanted, a grassy jungle plateau with plenty of good light. At one end of the plateau we had planted a camera behind a carefully constructed barricade of logs and leaves. Our beaters came up on three sides and finally got the tiger on the run toward the camera.

Elated over his success in "flushing" the big cat and heading him in the right direction, they became excited and closed in too fast, adding all sorts of weird cries and shouts to the noises made by pounding with their sticks. The result was that the animal was in a wild panic by the time he came within camera range.

When a last chorus of crazy shrieks from the beaters sent the frightened tiger on the run toward the camera, the only refuge he could see was a great tree that had a crotch about 10 feet from the ground where the two main branches of the tree separated. About five feet above this, there was another sizeable crotch, where the next two big limbs divided. The camera man, safe behind his barricade, was turning his crank at a great rate as the tiger rushed toward this tree.

With one spring the big cat negotiated the first crotch and then, with an almost effortless leap, he landed in the one higher up. Here, with all the nervousness of an amateur acrobat, he shifted from one foot to the other and back again, glanced up and down in indecision and waited hesitantly for whatever might happen next.

Now this whole performance was contrary to all scientific lore. Several authoritative naturalists have stubbornly maintained for years that tigers never climb trees. I forgot all about the camera as I watched this exceptional animal, defying all the conventions and regulations. As a matter of fact, I couldn't have been more astonished if he had started to speak English. I even stopped to wonder what on earth he would do next.

He apparently was wondering the same thing himself. And he was a long time deciding. In fact, he retained his perch for five or six minutes, while our camera ground away, its operator completely unaware that there was anything unusual about a tiger up a tree.

We got some great pictures, but I am afraid they will prove a bit embarrassing to certain naturalists who will be forced to back water on one of their most aggressive theories.

All the film in the camera was used up, and the operator was busy putting on a fresh magazine, when the tiger suddenly decided to move on. In a flash he jumped to the ground and crashed his way past the beaters and off into the heart of the jungle.

We were lucky to get these pictures of a tiger up a tree, but we were up a tree ourselves, for we still didn't have those ground shots—and according to the plan of the picture we needed a lot of them. We had something much rarer—something that may never again be duplicated—yet our original, and more fundamental, task remained to be performed. We simply must have some good pictures of the great striped cat of Asia in his natural element—slinking through jungle glades, appeasing his thirst at a spring or creek and doing the natural things that a tiger does in his daily jungle existence.

During the next fortnight we made three more attempts at various likely spots, but they all proved fruitless. I finally came to the conclusion that the only way in which we would be successful in getting Mr. Stripes properly into good close-up pictures would be to fence in a section of the jungle where we could control his movements. I reached this conclusion reluctantly, for the task was an enormous one, entailing much time and money. But it was the only way.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—(Universal.)—Assurance was given by Admiral Cary T. Grayson, chairman of the Citizens' Inaugural Committee, that visitors who come here for the Roosevelt-Garner ceremonies March 4 will not be charged excessive prices for rooms or meals.

Chairman Grayson conferred with the six members of the House and Senate who will have charge of the ceremonies at the Capitol. The purpose was to arrange a co-ordination of the civic celebration with the official ceremonies.

Senator Joseph T. Robinson, of Arkansas, Democratic leader, was named chairman of the Senate committee, to succeed Senator George H. Moses (Rep.), of New Hampshire, who asked to be relieved. Senator Hale (Rep.), was appointed to the vacancy on the committee caused by Moses' resignation.

ELECTRIC STEEL UNITS URGED

Several Pittsburgh steel corporations today were studying electrified furnaces and units for the manufacture of steel products, a process that will be enlarged with return of normal business conditions, according to A. N. Otis, industrial engineer, General Electric Company.

Mr. Otis spoke last night before the American Institute of Electrical Engineers and the Engineers' Society of Wetsern Pennsylvania in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium.

He cited the Bethlehem Steel and the American Rolling Mills among plants already operating electrified units. He said recent gas developments for atmosphere in the units have lowered costs, making electrification feasible and advisable.

Court Fight Rages Over Man Who Vanished Here

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 14 (AP.)—Whether Morris Sieg, of Wheeling, W. Va., is dead or absent of his own volition was argued in Federal Court.

Mrs. Golda Sieg claims her husband, who disappeared in Pittsburgh in 1920, is dead.

Attorneys for three insurance companies contesting her suit to force them to pay $15,000 contend the fact that Sieg vanished is ample proof that he disappeared of his own volition.

URGES NEW KIND OF YULE CARD

In his regular Tuesday talk on the air over WJAS yesterday Father Cox suggested a new idea in Christmas cards. He said that he had annually been in receipt of many hundreds of expressions of good cheer on decorative cards at this time of the year and that he always appreciated the sentiment expressed in these cards. But this year conditions are different. He needs help for his poor families more than he needs Christmas cards.

Then he told his listeners that if they really wanted to make it a happy Christmas for him and his needy that the best Yuletide card they could select would be the Father Cox subscription blank that appears every day in the Sun-Telegraph.

To him, he said, this blank properly filled in would mean more at this time of the year than anything else. He urged his listeners to fill in the blank for themselves or others and send it directly to him at Old St. Patrick's as a holiday greeting.

TELL IT TO ELSIE -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By ELSIE ROBINSON

We Owe a Debt of Gratitude To 'Common' Pioneers

Are folks doomed to be just coarse clods, no matter how hard they try to be fine, if they're born of "common people?"

Is that what you think?

Or do you believe that the measure of a man is in himself, whether he has "ancestors" or not?

Judith is asking us.

My Dear Elsie Robinson:

I have read your column for several years and now I have a problem that I want your advice about. I have never asked anyone for an opinion on any problem of mine before, but somehow I just can't figure out this one for myself.

FATHER IS FAMOUS

To begin with, I am the daughter of a very famous man—a man who is well known both in this country and in Europe. He is known and admired by prominent people.

But I, his daughter, love and respect him only as my father. I admire his great ability, but I am afraid that sometimes fame goes to people's heads, so that they can't see the beauties that lie close around them. Oh, I know people like that could see them if they tried, but my father doesn't want to try.

And now, the real reason for this letter is that I am in love, but the man I love is not famous. I love him for what he is—a fine, clean, refined young man, who is anxious to climb in this world. He has great ambitions to make himself worthy of the girl he loves. Father doesn't know of my love, and I can't tell him, because his viewpoint is this:

He says he respects any fine man if he is honorable, but that he would not sit down and eat at the same table with a farmer or a clerk.

DISAGREES WITH DAD

I don't think that way. I would love to share a meal with any man or woman who was honest, and who worked for an honest living. But father says that a man can try to educate himself, that he can go to all the colleges in the world, but in the end, if he is born of "common" people, none of the advice or education will do him any good. He says that refinement and intelligence must be born in one, and come from generations behind him.

But I can't believe that. I know many people who have made themselves into something worthwhile, regardless of their beginnings.

Please help me? What shall I do? Shall I give this boy up for father's sake? Life would be empty without him, but I suppose I could try to go on, even though it would be hard to

I have explained something, but not all, to this young man about what father expects of people. He is anxious to meet father, but I just don't know what to do. Please help me.

JUDITH.

Shall you give this boy up because he comes from Common People? Is your father right to object to Common Men, and feel himself too good to associate with them?

No, youngster, he isn't. To be frank, he is being a conceited snob. He, himself, is indebted to common men for his own rise to fame and power. He is indebted to common men for the country he lives in. They have built it; made it.

ADMIRABLE MEN

Centuries ago common men set sail for a new world in cockleshell boats. Common men with courage, grit, vigorous fighting blood, tore down forests, fought Indians, fought for independence, rode the Pioneer Trail, dug a lusty, thriving nation out of the wilderness, made it — and themselves — great! They made it a country where any man, who has the spunk and the sense, can rise as high as he has the ability to take himself.

But uncommon men, men who are brilliant, cultured—and unscrupulous have done much to destroy the country that common men built by their vision and their honesty and their urge to create. Uncommon men who kid themselves they're something special have done much to destroy it.

So stick to your guns, my dear. You are right. If the man you love is as fine as you say, he's worth sticking to, no matter who his folks were. And if your father persists in his snobbery, tell him sweetly but firmly, that it is your life and you're going to live it.

Fay King Warns Girls Against Go-Get-Her Boys

THE BETTER DOES NOT WANT TO BE TAKEN SERIOUSLY
WHY DON'T YOU EVER TAKE ME WITH YOU WHEN YOU GO OUT WITH THEM
I DON'T WANT YOU AROUND A SUCKER LIKE THAT DID I EVER SAY ANYTHING TO YOU ABOUT GETTING MARRIED?
NO— BUT—FAY KING

By FAY KING

The girl who meets a man one minute, and he has her in a petting party huddle the next, must not take him seriously.

He is just one of the go-get-her boys whose game is to make love to every girl he meets. The more girls he adds to his list the better pleased he is with himself.

A girl taking a petter seriously is amazed to discover he does not think he has encouraged her in the least toward an engagement and marriage.

If she debates the matter with him he will emphatically define the difference between liberties and love.

In these hectic days the more respectfully a young man treats a girl the more he means toward love and marriage.

Madge Examines Note Signed With Marion's Name

"All ready," Dr Barnes said, looking up from his camera, "if you'll just hold the note up in front of that dark panel so that the top comes just below that hook. I take it you do not wish to fasten it to the panel by the corners."

"Can't do that. It would smudge the fingerprints, if there are any," my father replied. "Oh! I see. It turns over when held by one corner. Suppose my daughter stands on the other side, and holds the other upper corner?"

"I fancy that will do nicely," Dr. Barnes answered.

Dr. Barnes took several exposures of both sides of the note, and when he had closed his camera we all went back to the living room, my father still holding the note by its left hand corner.

"May I have a pasteboard box deep enough to hold this when fastened to a string stretched from corner to corner of the box?" he asked. "There seems to be fingermarks on this, but I cannot be sure."

"I will get you such a box at once," Dr Barnes said, and spoke into a house phone at his elbow.

"Ask Mrs. Barnes to come here at once, please," he said. When his wife appeared he gave her directions for the box, then hurried to his dark room.

"Get pencil and paper, darling," my father said to me when they had gone. "I want to put down my impressions of this paper while they are fresh."

GIRLS' SIGNATURES

I obediently took down several seemingly unimportant details concerning the appearance and texture of the paper, and then my father held the note up before my eyes.

"You may read it now," he said quietly.

"But my eyes had no sooner fallen upon the closely written sheet than I uttered a little cry.

"Why! It's Marion's handwriting," I said, "and"—glancing hurriedly down to the bottom of the page—"Carolyn has signed it, too, and written a few words above her signature. But the most of it is Marion's."

"Yes, I know," he said. "I saw that, although I have had no chance to read it. On the other hand, the scoundrels who took them may have been able to obtain specimens of their handwriting, and then forged the letter. But be my eyes, darling. Read it first to yourself, and then softly to me."

It was a familiar request to me.

MADGE DOUBTFUL

The superscription was simple:

Doctor Barnes,
Whitney Hall,
Sackettsville, New Jersey.
Important. Deliver at once.

"That superscription looks like those on Marion's letters," I said breathlessly. "She always addresses them in that block fashion."

"I am reasonably sure that she wrote both address and enclosure," he said. "Have you finished with this side?"

"Oh, yes." I found it hard to articulate, so anxious was I to read the other side of the note, of which I had glimpsed but a few words.

"Then look at this side."

He turned the letter around, and I could not repress a little shiver, as I imagined the terrified stress under which the girl so dear to us all must have penned the words before me.

Yet there was no hint of shakiness in the chirography. It might have been any ordinary letter of hers, only that it was better handwriting, as if she had taken painstaking care with it. But as I read it through, one characteristic struck me forcibly. She had misspelled a number of words I was sure she knew, although she is not a champion speller, and she had used two or three faulty English constructions which I was sure were not in her ordinary usage.

"I do not believe Marion wrote this," I said looking up. "I am sure it is a forgery."

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Carotin Is an Essential for Health

We have become "vitamin conscious." Newspapers and magazine are recording continuously the advances made in our knowledge of vitamins.

Dr. Copeland

Much of value is being taught.

I believe too little attention has been placed upon "carotin," one of the "protective" food substances. Recent experiperiments appear to show that carotin possesses the same qualities and advantages found in vitamin A. It prevents infection and aids the body in resisting certain diseases.

This valuable substance is found in carrots, butter and egg yolk. These are called "yellow foods." The color is due to the carotin they contain.

Carotin may be found, too, in foods that are not yellow. A certain amount is carried by the leafy vegetables and whole milk from which butter is obtained.

Experiments recently conducted show that vitamin A is found in the foods which contain carotin. But both substances are not always found together. As a matter of fact, many foods contain vitamin A but no carotin.

The action of carotin on the body is generally believed to be identical with that of vitamin A, which is essential to growth. But some authorities believe carotin is even more effective as a cure and preventive of disease than the vitamin.

Since carotin is abundantly found in carrots, egg yolk and butter, these foods should be included in the diet of children as well as adults. Carrots may be given to the infant as early as the ninth month.

At this period give one to three tablespoons of the strained vegetable. When the child is older, carrots can be given with milk, or in the soup, or served with baked potato. In addition to furnishing the necessary minerals, vitamins and carotin, this food aids in preventing constipation.

Egg yolk may be given the infant from the seventh to the ninth month. It is sometimes recommended as early as the second month if the baby is anemic or shows signs of rickets.

It is best not to give the white of the egg during the first year. Some authorities even advise against giving it during the second year.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

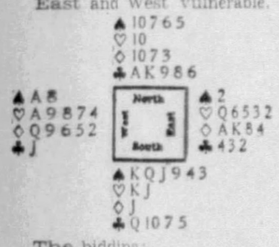
By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

An Impossibility

When a Contract player bids a Slam defensively against vulnerable opponents because he feels assured that they can make a Slam, only to see, when the Dummy goes down, that he has undertaken an impossible contract and that his opponents could not have made their contract, he is naturally inclined to criticize himself for his lack of restraint in the bidding.

A hand of this type occurred in a recent Duplicate game at Crockford's Club, New York, where leaders of Bridge and society meet for Rubber and Duplicate play. The result at one table was so extraordinary that I recount the story.

West—Dealer.
East and West vulnerable.



The bidding:

West	North	East	South
Pass	Pass	1 ♡ (1)	1 ♠ (2)
2 ◇	2 ♠	3 ◇	3 ♠
6 ♡ (3)	Pass	Pass	6 ♠ (4)
Double (5)	Pass	Pass	Pass

1—A most extraordinary bid, vulnerable, but East was a player who hated to let a possible part-score escape.

2—A sound defensive Overcall.

3—West is as much misled as his opponent in the South later was, by his partner's unusual Third Hand bid. With West's holding, and assured of a fifth hearts and diamonds, a contract of six does not appear at all unreasonable.

4—Still under the influence of the show of strength by both adversaries and emboldened by the fact that the partner has given one Raise.

5—A matter of course. West resentfully sees what he believes to be a vulnerable Slam stolen from him, and naturally desires to inflict as much loss as possible.

The Opening lead was the club Knave, West hoping, of course, that his partner held the club Ace, and thus that he could cash his small trump by ruffing. The trick was won in the Dummy with the King, and a small spade led, which West won with the Ace. Still hoping to cash his remaining trump, West now selected as a lead the fourth best heart, and South, to his own amazement, even as much as to that of West, won the trick with the King. From this point on, it was easy sailing. West's last trump was drawn, and the heart Knave ruffed in Dummy. Then the Declarer's only diamond was discarded on Dummy's fifth club. A Slam contract had been made against three Aces, including the Ace of trumps, as well as a possible ruff.

While West's underlead of the heart appears extremely bad, it is not so bad as it seems. East had supported the diamonds, and three were in sight in the Dummy. It seemed entirely within the bounds of reason that South might be void of diamonds, but it also appeared almost certain that East must hold the King of hearts to justify any sort of Opening bid. Third Hand vulnerable.

If by any chance South had no diamonds, then a lead of the diamond might permit the making of the contract. While the heart lead turned out badly, it was at least a reasonable risk. Possibly West would have been better advised to have made sure of the defeat of the contract by cashing the Ace and then trusting to luck that South held one diamond. Thus a defeat of three tricks would have been assured, provided, of course, that East returned a club.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Will you comment on the following bidding, and tell what South's next bid should be? South holds:

♠ AK7 ♡ AJ109 ◇ Q76 ♣ J84

North is Dealer, and the bidding proceeds as follows:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇	1 ♠	2 ♠	Pass
3 ◇	3 ♡	Double	Pass
4 ◇	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ◇	Pass	?

Answer: South should pass at this point, in view of North's minimum response and his Take-out of the Double of three hearts. North probably holds a long diamond suit headed by the Ace-King, and the club King, and there are probably one or two clubs and a heart loser. Incidentally, South should not have bid two spades on the first round, because of the balanced distribution of the holding, and, therefore, lack of ruffing possibilities. He should have bid three notrump.

Colds can be ABORTED

Don't waste time with cold remedies that only relieve a cold. If you want to end your cold, abort it. The lemon juice treatment will do it. Squeeze two full-size lemons in a large glass of very hot water and drink without sugar. First, take three tablets of Pape's cold compound an hour apart. This clears the head, dries the nasal passages, reduces any fever. The lemon juice then drives all cold symptoms right out of the system. Bedtime is best. This treatment will abort the worst cold, overnight. One cold compound tablet will check a cold at any time, for several hours; then when night comes you can get rid of it by abortion. Any druggist has Pape's cold compound. It's perfectly safe. Try it, and you'll never go back to half-way remedies.

FIGHT ON PENNINGTON LAID TO RACKET CHIEFS

POLITICS

City Manager Fight To Be Renewed

By MARK SHIELDS

Endeavor to secure for Pittsburgh the city manager form of government when and if the citizens desire it will be renewed at the forthcoming session of the General Assembly.

Mr. Shields

A bill for that purpose already is in rough form, and follows in most respects the terms of the measure defeated in the session of 1931 through the influence of the Kline-Coyne controlled votes in the Allegheny County delegation.

Some able lawyers in Pittsburgh have been consulted on the subject, as they were two years ago. The difference, however, is that the impending piece of legislation has been refined and perfected through study prior to the session, rather than being given hasty first-aid legal treatment as it was in 1931.

Next year there are brighter chances of passing the measure than obtained in the previous session when, after much jockeying and considerable behind-the-scenes politics there were 88 affirmative votes, seven short of the required majority in the House.

Some of the Allegheny countians who voted against the measure in 1931 have been replaced by Democrats. Others fell in the primary and were not candidates at the general election. Democrats have not yet adopted any policy toward such subjects as the city manager bill, but it is improbable they will be under any such domination as enveloped so many of the Allegheny County members on this issue.

Another advantage may accrue through assistance from Gov. Pinchot. Mr. Pinchot, it is known, favored the principle of city manager, or at least offering to the people the means for adopting that form of government when they might desire. But he made no statement on the subject, and no effort to induce any legislator then following his banner to vote for the Pittsburgh bill.

* * *

Reason Not Hard To Discover

The reason was not difficut to discover.

In the 1931 session the Allegheny County legislators, taking their cue from Senator Coyne and Mayor Kline, were lined up for the Pinchot program, particularly on utility problems and finance. There was the greatest of good feeling between the former enemies.

When the attitude of the Governor was sought on the city manager it was said quite frankly at his office that in the circumstances, the necessity of retaining the Coyne-Kline assistance, the Governor certainly was not going to make any open move to jeopardize the existing combination through alienating Coyne and Kline. As they were against the bill the Governor was not going to ask anyone to vote for it, no matter how he might feel personally on the proposal.

Despite some of the advantages to the second consideration of the bill, pointed out above, those civic groups and individuals interested in the subject must battle quite as hard as they did in 1931 if they are to be successful. And they must start earlier, not being so tardy in getting the measure introduced, and not becoming involved in so many hesitancies over whether there should be one bill for first, second and third class cities, or separate bills for each classification—as they did two years ago.

Eighty-eight votes was a substantial total, though not enough. It would be a most admirable foundation on which to build were it solid, and had the votes all been furnished on the representative motive that the people should have the right to decide by vote their own form of government. But that was not the case, and the manner in which 23 of the votes were attained partook of keen politics, later revealed.

* * *

Atterbury Aids Pittsburgh Bill

The sharp bitterness between substantial business interests and the Kline administration had only begun to crop out two years ago. In addition to being committed to the city manager government as what they believed was a step toward efficient municipal administration, some powerful gentlmen also wished to have a fling at the Mayor personally.

One of their number communicated with Gen. W. W. Atterbury in Philadelphia and asked for help to pass the Pittsburgh bill. Atterbury agreed, and sent the late Sheriff Thomas W. Cunningham to Harrisburg with orders to give the bill some aid. Meanwhile, in Harrisburg, the Philadelphians were given assurance that a similar bill affecting their city would not be reported from committee.

Additionally to that advantage, there was the animosity within the Philadelphia organization toward Kline and Coyne, who had supported Gov. Pinchot in the previous campaign, refusing to aid the eastern organization in backing Capt. John Hemphill, the Democratic gubernatorial candidate.

Out of this criss-cross of appeals and promises and grudges came the vote of 23 Philadelphians for the Pittsburgh city manager bill.

Because the same circumstances may not arise this year, because it may not be possible to win the same Philadelphia support to the bill—Coyne since having formed a friendly alliance with the East, and wanting no change in the mayoralty system in anticipation of the municipal election of next year—there are losses to be set down against the gains which may arise through the infusion of Democratic legislators and the enmity of the Governor toward Kline and Coyne.

BUSINESS NOW ON UPGRADE, LEADERS SAY

Babson, Westinghouse Officials Declare 'Worst Is Over'

Belief that there is a silver lining in the depression clouds and that there will be a great upturn in business and industry in 1933, was the prediction made here yesterday by two industrial leaders.

Blaming the depression on a violation of political and economic principles, Ralph B. Wilson, vice president of the Babson Statistical Organization, Inc., predicted a greater volume of business next year than this. Before the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce yesterday he said:

"The worst of this depression is over! Business struck bottom in July of this year. Since then the fundamental trend has been upward. It is already evident that the election holds possibilities for a business improvement next year. Indications are that Roosevelt's cabinet will be composed of men of high caliber.

An optimistic forecast was presented by J. S. Tritle at a joint meeting of the Electric League of Pittsburgh and the Engineers' Society of Western Pennsylvania in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium. He said employment figures show more and more people are at work, and added:

"There are many indications that the worst is past and that we can now begin the long uphill pull back to normal conditions. The financial panic is over. The publication of unfavorable earnings statements is no longer headline news and they pass with little or no comment in the daily papers. The hopeless frame of mind of the average man has given away to constructive thinking."

Tritle, vice president and general manager in charge of manufacturing, sales and engineering operations of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company and president of the National Electrical Manufacturers' Association, said there are a number of hopeful indications in the electrical industry.

STORES AND GAS STAND ROBBED

Holdups of a gasoline service station and a chain store in East Liberty and a cleaning shop on the North Side last night and early today yielded bandits $82.50.

Two held up the Standard Oil Company service station, Hamilton avenue and Putnam street, and looted the cash register of $35 early today. F. M. Earley, of 410 West street, Wilkinsburg, the attendant, was locked in the rear room by the pair.

Three armed men held up H. E. Matthews, manager of a chain store at 5741 Ellsworth avenue, and James Pasco, of 347 Fairmount avenue, a customer, shortly before closing time last night, taking $25 from the register and $3.50 from Pasco. They escaped in a new automobile.

Warning Emma Crowley, of 2702 Sacramento street, a clerk in a cleaning shop at 725 East Ohio street, against an outcry, an armed man rifled the cash drawer of $19 as scores of pedestrians passed last night. The clerk ran into the street to summon police after the holdup man fled.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Dec. 14.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

As you read this an air express line will be inaugurated from coast to coast, nothing but express. We used to think it was too expensive to send anything by air but a postcard, but it's not that way now.

Will Rogers

Air mail has fallen off since the costs were raised three cents. Here companies have spent and are losing millions giving the people the greatest air network for mails in the world. Write a letter today, the receiver reads it tomorrow no matter where he is. If a letter is not worth three cents more to get there three days ahead, it don't look like it is important enough to write. I would just hand it to some hitch hiker and let him deliver it in the spring. We used to think mails were terribly important, but if they ain't worth three cents the guy could just as well wait till he meets the other fellow and tell it to him. Yours, WILL.

M'GEE TO BACK BANK SYSTEM

William L. McGee, deputy secretary of banking, in charge of closed banks, will appear in defense of his central Philadelphia office and its expenses, to their share of which depositors in the Citizens' Trust Company of Bellevue have taken exception.

McGee's appearance, the first public defense of the speedy system of closed state bank liquidation set up last winter, will be made in the hearing opening today in Common Pleas Court on exceptions to the account of Attorney George F. Taylor, Jr., deputy secretary of banking, in charge of the trust company.

Counsel for the depositors, John Winner and George E. Morecroft, were expected to allege that McGee's office is unnecessary and illegal. If their contention is allowed the closed bank receivership system will be upset, it is understood.

Most of the day was expected to be devoted to testimony of Taylor.

We Want Cash— Let the Credit Go As Omar Advised

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

As a quick authority on war debts we prefer Omar Khayyam, who took the cash and let the credit go.

The French blame Mr. Hoover for their present predicament which consists of crying with a big loaf of bread under their arm.

You must shear sheep to get wool. We are sorry that Mr. Hoover took Herriot for a trial spin up a blind alley.

But Democrats don't keep Republican promises. They're going to have a tough time keeping their own.

If Mr. Hoover pulled another great engineering feat in a roundhouse then it's just too bad. France can call us Uncle Shylocks all it wants. We'll even take the name on a check.

There comes a time in the life of every man when he gets tired of digging bait. Nations are like individuals. They like to be thrown a fish once in a while.

The tide turns. We cast the bread on the waters, and by cracky, we don't want to get paid off in sea weed.

DENIES AFFAIR WITH ICE MAN

Mrs. Ethel Kohn, of 538 Third avenue, Tarentum, married for 16 years, charges her husband accused her of being friendly with the iceman, groceryman, a salesman and a policeman, all of which she denied in her divorce suit filed in Common Pleas Court.

Mrs. Kohn, suing Charles Kohn, of Brackenridge, also charged she was compelled to give up her church by her husband's objections to the minister calling on her.

She said Kohn told her she need not think she was the only woman he could attract.

Divorce suits filed included those of Kathryn E. Hilty against Martin E. Hilty, and Elizabeth S. Stevens against Louis A. Stevens.

Edith M. Ogletree was granted a divorce from John P. Ogletree.

PINCHOT MINE CHARGE HITS INDEPENDENTS

Conditions Revealed As Fairly Moderate In County

Gov. Gifford Pinchot's charges of "abominable" conditions in bituminous mines of the state were revealed today as apparently aimed at the smaller independent companies, most of which lie outside Allegheny County.

At the two largest operating companies in the Pittsburgh district, conditions were shown today to be fairly moderate, considering the general industrial status.

PAYS $3.65 A DAY

Pittsburgh Terminal Coal, operating under an agreement with the United Mine Workers of America, pays $3.65 for day work; 36 cents a ton for loading machine coal and 50 cents a ton for pick coal. The union maintains check-weighmen on the tipple.

Pittsburgh Coal Company, nonunion operator, pays between $3.12 and $3.28 for day work and loaders average about the same, according to company officials. No check-weighman is maintained. C. E. Lesher, executive vice president of Pittsburgh Coal, asked if his company was concerned with the charges of the Governor, declared:

"We have no interest in what the Governor is talking about. If he means the Pittsburgh Coal Company let him say so."

PROBE UNDER WAY

At one of the smaller independent mines in Allegheny County, union officials revealed that the men are to be paid on a 60-40 basis, but have not collected for several weeks. Mines in Washington, Fayette and Westmoreland counties are reported paying as low as 10 cents a ton for loaders with companies charging off all and more than employes earn for store supplies, rent, etc.

It is understood private investigators have been gathering data on the bituminous mines for several months.

Bean Removed

LEONA MARIE BUTKEWICH

BEAN REMOVED FROM LUNG

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa., Dec. 14.—Leona Marie Butkewich, 27 months, today pulled her sled through the snow around her Sykesville home, a happy, healthy specimen of contented childhood. A few days ago she was close to death, which was only averted after a hurried trip to Philadelphia, where the bronchoscope, invention of Dr. Chevalier Jackson, former Pittsburgher, was used to remove a bean from her lung.

She picked up the bean in her home and put it in her mouth. It was drawn into her lung and she began coughing. Rushed to a Dubois hospital, physicians were unable to remove it and then the trip to Jefferson Hospital at Philadelphia was hurriedly arranged. By the time the child reached Philadelphia the bean had germinated and swelled. It was gradually cutting off the air supply.

Dr. Ono, using the bronchoscope, removed the bean and the child was soon on the road to recovery.

Her mother, Mrs. Mary Butkewich, said:

"She sure is a lucky little girl. If it wasn't for the bronchoscope we wouldn't have her with us now."

Hotel Fire Perils Guests, Employes

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Dec. 14.—Fire in the Grand Hotel here today periled guests and employes on the third and fourth floors and caused $5,000 damage.

The fire started in the furnace room and shot up through a laundry chute to the fourth floor, where it broke through the roof. City firemen, in ice-coated uniforms, controlled the flames before they spread through the hotel.

Construction Firm Receiver Named

John F. Casey, Jr., today was appointed receiver for the Colonial Construction Company, Inc., which filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition in Federal Court, through its president, Robert Swan, Jr. The company, with offices in the Investment Building, will have 10 days in which to file a schedule of its liabilities and assets. Judge Nelson McVicar set Casey's bond at $8,000.

REED HELPING ENFORCER TO HOLD JOB

Defense Against Kean Attack Carried To Hoover

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—The drive to unseat John D. Pennington, prohibition administrator for Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware, seemed domed to failure today with official Washington known to be friendly to Pennington's enforcement and confident of his integrity.

The anti-Pennington movement had apparently been traced to its political sources in New Jersey, moving through Senator Kean, and, it was thought, against the strong objection of Senator Reed, of Pittsburgh.

PRESSURE RENEWED

A usually authoritative and accurate informant today said:

"The facts are that there has been unrelenting pressure from New Jersey politicians for several months to have Pennington removed or transferred.

"Before the election, Senator Kean, of New Jersey, called on President Hoover to demand it. He also called on Attorney General Mitchell on the same mission. Recently this pressure has been renewed with increased vigor.

"Senator Reed, who has backed Pennington since he first went to Pittsburgh, believing him to be honest and incorruptible, has let the President know that he wants Pennington kept where he is, and that, as Pennsylvania is the largest of the three states over which Pennington has jurisdiction, he, Reed, ought to have as much to say as anyone else.

NOTHING TO HAPPEN

"In consequence nothing has happened and nothing will happen to Pennington under the present administration.

"It is rumored in New Jersey that the liquor racketeers there, who have threatened Pennington, killed several of his agents and done everything they can to get rid of him, have offered a hundred thousand dollars to the Republican organization in that state to have him moved out so they can have some nonentity put in his place between now and March 4."

CITY'S MEDICAL AID PRAISED

Aid given by the Department of Health to the Department of Welfare in meeting the medical needs of needy families meets with the approval of Mrs. Enoch Rauh, director of the Welfare Department.

Mrs. Rauh recently petitioned City Council for the addition of more physicians to her medical staff, saying the 11 available found it "humanly impossible" to answer all calls received. Council told her to ask the aid of the Department of Health.

Commenting on the help given, Mrs. Rauh said:

"I consider the temporary aid given by the Department of Health as satisfactory service during the influenza epidemic. I have been told by reputable physicians that the epidemic will last another month."

Dr. Henry J. Benz told Council yesterday his staff of school physicians in the Health Department would assist Mrs Rauh's department.

The residue is distributed equally among these nieces and nephews: Albert E. Kennedy, Sarah Alice McGuire, Mary D Kennedy, Isaac L. Kennedy and Julia A. Gale.

Wife Says Doctor Tore Dress That Showed Legs

Her husband blackened her eye, beat her so often she could not remember the number of times, and tore off a dress she was wearing because it showed her legs, Mrs. Lillian E. Malone, Denniston avenue, testified in her divorce suit against Dr. Harry N. Malone, physician, heard by Judge Ralph H. Smith.

Mrs. Malone went into details regarding the wearing of short skirts, then the prevailing style, saying:

"When I came home with a new dress it meant a battle, because of my legs showing."

Telling of her husband objecting to a new dress, made with a flared skirt, she said he caught her by the neck struck her, grabbed the dress and declared:

"You will never see the dress again."

That was the last she saw of it, she said.

VOTE MACHINES MADE CHEAT-PROOF, M'GOVERN DECLARES

ALOHA RELATES NIGHT OF FEAR IN FAR CAMP

By ALOHA WANDERWELL
Written exclusively for Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 14.—The most terrifying experience I ever had in all my travels with Capt. Wanderwell was caused by another woman.

The German girl and I, on foot, raced ahead of the motorcade and on into the town of Aden, a port at the lower end of the Red Sea.

Our arrival created tremendous excitement. How much excitement and the reason for it we did not appreciate until we realized we were wearing shorts instead of skirts.

Our informal attire was quite shocking to the few white women in the town, one of them being the wife of a powerful official, and was considered undignified and unbecoming in a Mohamedan country.

PASSPORTS REVOKED

The result of our indiscretion was that our passports were considered faulty and the officials decided to send us back to Egypt.

Despite our protests, all of us except Cap were bundled upon a steamer and started on our way.

The last I was to see of Cap for many days he was standing on a barge at Aden beside our two automobiles.

One night, en route to Egypt, I slipped off the ship at a pearl divers' camp. Although I was uncertain of just how I was going to accomplish it, I was going to try to return to the place where I had last seen Cap.

Usually, there were three white men, two Germans and an Italian, in the pearl divers' camp of approximately 2,000 blacks.

But, as luck would have it, the Germans had gone on a journey back into the hills and only the young Italian was there.

I didn't know what his thoughts where when I, the first white woman he had seen in six years, appeared that night.

But I was not left long in doubt.

HOLDS MAN AT BAY

It was terrible. I could not expect aid of any sort. The ship had left. The Germans were not expected back for several days. Help from the horde of fuzzy wuzzies, of course, was out of the question.

All through the long hours of that terrible night I sat on the edge of my bed, my gun across my knees, holding at bay a man who, temporarily at least, was quite mad.

The next day the down-boat, bound for Aden, arrived and a short time later I was again with my husband, who was still detained there.

The other members of our expedition, of course, had proceeded back to Egypt. Cap and I decided to continue our journey. India, China and other Oriental countries were our goal.

It was foolhardy to attempt to go anywhere alone, so Cap and I usually attached ourselves to a caravan that was proceeding in the direction we wanted to go.

Usually every night our caravan was raided. There would be shouts and screams, gunfire and all manner of commotion. Camels and horses would rush away, driven by bandits or escaping into the desert. We personally were molested only once.

To the natives of those countries our motor cars were well-nigh unbelievable. They had never seen automobiles before, and some of them were always peering underneath, trying to find the donkeys they were sure were concealed somewhere.

Once an old woman asked me if our automobile ever had any little ones. She would like to buy one, she said.

CLARK FROWNS ON 'VET' DANCE

Public Safety Director James M. Clark today refused a permit to an organization called the Veterans' Association and also known as "The Veteran," to hold a benefit dance December 16 in Islam Grotto Temple, when an investigation by city detectives alleged the organization was not affiliated with any soldier, police, fire or recognized charitable group.

Application for the permit was filed several days ago by Thomas A. Carberry, of Carrick. The letterhead of "The Veteran" explained the dance was the annual charity ball for the benefit of a convalescent camp fund.

Detectives John Crouse and William O'Bryan, in their report to Director Clark, said tickets for the dance were originally issued to sell for $1, out of which the agents were to receive 25 cents commission. They reported the admission price later was cut to 50 cents, with the agents to receive half.

In a letter from the executive offices of the organization at 522 Second avenue, P. J. Hanlon said that he was national commander of the Veterans' Association and John F. Gloeckner, 1204 Plaza Building, was national judge advocate. Islam Grotto has canceled the contract with "The Veteran" for use of the hall, the detectives told Clark.

STEEL FREIGHT CUT SOUGHT

Reductions in freight rates on automobile steel averaging about $1.30 a ton on shipments to Detroit, Cleveland and Toledo are being asked by subsidiaries of the United Steel Corporation in this district. Requests are being made to the railroads on the ground that Pittsburgh mills have lost business to steel producers in Cleveland and Chicago which have been making use of low-cost water transportation in serving the automobile manufacturers.

The independent steel producers here are expected to join in the request. The mills here are seeking a rate of 20 cents a hundred pounds on all types of automobile steel.

The Dravo Contracting Company today announced approximately 100 men will be put to work constructing Lock B and a new dam in the Kanawha River, near Huntington, W. Va., following notice from Washington of the award by the government of the $1,572,925 contract.

Work was started on the dam a month ago, according to Dravo officials, who explained they went ahead with the work, as their company was the low bidder. The lock and dam will be completed within a year, they said.

COUNTY HEADS VIEW CHANGES IN DAYTON

Commissioner Is to Study Permanent Registration

By DAVE JONES
Staff Correspondent.

DAYTON, O., Dec. 14.—A voting machine which County Commissioner C. C. McGovern termed as near foolproof and cheatproof as was humanly possible to construct, was demonstrated for Allegheny County officials at the plant of the National Cash Register Company today. Pleased with the changes made by the experts of the company, the Commissioner was of the opinion that it would not be long before the 1,100 machines now owned by the county would be remodeled and put into operation.

STUDY REGISTRATION

Commissioner McGovern, with John K. Morrow, head of the Board of Registration Commissioners, expected to leave this afternoon for Minneapolis, where they will investigate permanent registration. McGovern hopes to return home within a few days with recommendations for a bill establishing such registration in Allegheny County. He said a bill would be presented in the Legislature next month.

Among the changes made in the two machines shipped here for experiments was the installation of a bell, which clangs each time a vote is registered. Another eliminates possibility of prying open the upper portion of the machine and, with the aid of a small wire or file, voting many times within the few minutes allowed each voter in the curtain enclosure.

At the close of the demonstration, McGovern said:

"They have corrected all the known defects and from general appearances have done a wonderful piece of work. They have fixed the machine so it is now as near foolproof and cheatproof as is humanly possible to make it.

CHANGES PLANNED

"Our next move is to have blueprints made of all the parts needed for the improvements. We will then ask for bids for the parts and installing them. This will be done as soon as possible. We want the machines working, and working quick.

"Our greatest trouble in the past was that there were too many fingers in the pie. Too many persons were trying to commercialize on the vote machines."

Commissioners Mansfield and Barr also were loud in their praise.

Referring to the installation of the gong, McGovern said:

"This going will be very important. If an election board or politician wants to run up extra votes, he usually chases everyone out. Now, when honest people are across the street they can hear this bell ring. We will at least know that it rang more than once with one person behind the screen."

Election Boards Quizzed by Park

Twenty-one members of seven election boards were questioned in the District Attorney's office today in the investigation of vote cheating. Their statements probably will determine whether criminal prosecutions will be filed.

These boards were brought in following the discovery of alleged irregularities in their ballot boxes by the Recount Board. The boards are those in the Third and Fourth wards, Stowe Township; Third Ward, Scott Township; Seventh, Eighth, Ninth and Tenth districts of the Twenty-third Ward.

TRAFFIC CIRCLE BIDS REJECTED

Bids for the new traffic circle at the Liberty Bridge were tabled by County Commissioners yesterday after an attack by Commissioner C. C. McGovern on the R. H. Cunningham and Sons Company, contractors, who submitted the lowest bid. McGovern recalled that the firm was charged with irregularities on two county jobs, and that R. H. Cunningham, head of the organization, is under indictment for alleged jury tampering in connection with the trial of Mayor Charles H. Kline in Butler.

The Cunningham bid on the circle job was $6,720. Commissioner W. D. Mansfield moved that the firm be awarded the contract, but McGovern objected.

County auditors, it was said, had discovered that the contracting firm collected overpayment for materials and work on the Moss Side boulevard, which never went beyond a showing on paper. It also was charged that the company's work on the approach to the West End-North Side Bridge was not up to specifications. The audit showed overpayments on the Moss Side job were approved by former county engineers.

POTTERS BACK MONTOUR LINE

LISBON, O., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—A new move across the checkerboard of county highways in an effort to aid the Montour Railroad in its construction of a 13-mile branch from Negley, east of here, to Smith's Ferry, Pa., has been made by the local pottery industry.

The branch is expected to give the Youngstown steel district an Ohio River outlet for rail and river transportation.

Eighteen pottery owners in Liverpool Township petitioned Columbiana County Commissioners to vacate the 127-year-old Smith's Ferry-Lisbon road, which would give the railroad additional right of way. A hearing on the petition will be held December 27.

The road is on the Beaver Creek route of the railroad. Montour interests, backed by the Pittsburgh Coal Company, were rushing construction work today between Fredericktown and Smith's Ferry.

ACCOUNTANTS MEET TODAY

The Pittsburgh Chapter, National Association of Cost Accountants, will hold its regular monthly meeting at the William Penn Hotel today at 6:30 p. m. The principal address, "The Accountant's Interpretation of Market Analyses," will be presented by George M. Rowland, Jr., director of consumer research, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The address will exemplify the necessity for close co-operation between the accounting and sales departments of successful companies in this industrial era. Data, gleaned from the recent R. L. Polk Market Study of Pittsburgh and the recent Department of Commerce breakdown of the census of distribution will be presented.

The leader of discussion following the meeting will be W. C. Koehler, of Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company.

TWO BOYS HELD AS RUNAWAYS

Two 16-year-old Bradford schoolboys who sought adventure in Mexico were being held by West End police today, awaiting arrival of their parents, who have been notified of their detention.

Arrested in Noblestown road, the youths told police they wanted to see the grave of Pancho Villa, former Mexican bandit chieftain. According to police the boys said:

"We were tired of conditions in the states. No work, no excitement. We thought maybe down in Mexico there might be a revolution and we could see some excitement."

SCIENTIFIC ADVICE ON COLD RELIEF

Unbiased Medical Research Favors Vapex—the Delightful Inhalant

For two years, a prominent medical research laboratory has been experimenting to determine what really is good for a head-cold.

In their opinion, Vapex—the delightful inhalant—is an ideal relief. Vapex is preferable to salves, sprays, and drops, because it is more likely to penetrate to the seat of a cold . . . the breathing-passages.

You breathe the soothing Vapex vapor . . . just as you breathe air. It's natural and it's safe!

Sniffles and sneezes . . . stuffed-up head and nose . . . much of the discomfort of a cold . . . soon disappear when you breathe Vapex. And Vapex has one important quality that makes it far more valuable than other inhalants. In unbiased tests, it was proved that the vapor from a single drop of this delightful inhalant killed germs present during a cold. In similar tests, many other inhalants commonly substituted for Vapex had little effect on the germs.

So insist on V-A-P-E-X at your druggist's. Now 75 cents a bottle.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

In Mayfair
—With—
Patricia Pitt

The whole town will assume a gayer tone the nearer Christmas approaches, and this grand snowy weather helps in creating the Yuletide spirit, too.

All the clubs will be scenes of goodness knows how many entertainments, and one of the busiest will be the Edgeworth Club.

In addition to the ragtag dance on December 22, there'll be a subscription dance on December 27 for the younger school set with Mrs. J. Twing Brooks and Mrs. D. C. Bakewell among those on the committee.

Then on New Years Eve, there'll be a ball, too.

* * *

More and more folks are coming home for Christmas, I hear. Virginia Humphrey, daughter of the Arthur Humphreys, of Greensburg, and granddaughter of the A. L. Humphreys, of Pittsburgh, will be home Friday from Miss Madeira's School.

Returning To Homes

Post-debutante Margret Brill will arrive in town December 23 to spend the holidays with her parents, the A. P. Brills. Margret's studying this winter at the Curtis Institute of Music.

* * *

Although rehearsals will not be started probably until after the holidays, the Stage and Play group is already thinking about its next play.

To Give New Play

The date will be January 15, and the place, the Twentieth Century Club, as usual.

The play itself has an added interest, for it's the work of a Pittsburgh woman—Avery Gaul, or Mrs. Harvey Gaul, in private life. It's a new play, so new it doesn't have a title yet.

* * *

The George W. Crawfords are planning a Christmas day "at home" in their Woodland road place.

* * *

The Pittsburgh Field Club is planning several New Year's affairs. First of all, there'll be a New Year's eve celebration Saturday, December 31. Then Monday, January 2, from 2:30 to 5:30 o'clock there'll be a junior tea dance.

* * *

I've just heard of another Yuletide wedding. Margaret Douglas Lafferty, daughter of the John Pettit Laffertys, of Amber street, will wed James Murdoch Henninger, son of Dr. and Mrs. Charles Henry Henninger, of Aiken avenue, December 20.

Yuletide Wedding

The ceremony will take place at 6:30 o'clock in the Lafferty home with the Rev. Dr. Stuart Nye Hutchison, of the East Liberty Presbyterian Church, officiating.

Only the two families will attend the ceremony. The only attendant will be a best man, James A. Bell. A dinner for the families will follow the ceremony. After their wedding trip, Mr. Henninger and his bride will be at home in the Coronado apartments.

Emsworth Playground Unit to Serve Supper

The playground unit of the Emsworth Women's Civic Club will serve a sauerkraut and baked bean supper at the Y. M. C. A. Building at 5:30 today.

Mrs. Roosevelt Decries System Making Victims Of Depression Prey

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, in an address yesterday at the annual meeting of the National Consumers' League, said that "the depression has brought about such great unemployment that the unscrupulous man, who in former years would have found it impossible to find people to accede to his conditions of work, is now finding it easy because men and women must keep body and soul together."

Mrs. Roosevelt said:

"The manufacturer who has every desire to be fair to his workmen, who has an enlightened point of view on social conditions, must compete in the open market.

"Conditions are coming before us every day which seem unbelievable in these days, but day after day they are proved to be true.

"Wages are falling below what would have been considered safe for decent living a short time ago. Men and women are willing to go back and work longer hours. They do not complain if certain sanitary regulations are not kept because they are afraid of losing their jobs.

"There is something fundamentally wrong with a civilization which tolerates conditions such as many of our people are facing today.

"We talk of a new deal, and we believe in it, but we shall have no new deal unless some of us are willing to sit down and think this situation out. It may require some drastic changes in our rather settled ideas and we must not be afraid of them."

Mrs. Roosevelt said she believed the Consumers' League to be well fitted "to do some pioneer work in deciding what shall be the next step taken toward a decent and happy life for the average working man and woman."

Among the other speakers at the meeting was Lady Nancy Astor, member of the British Parliament.

Lady Astor said:

"I am thrilled to think that you are going to have in the White House a woman who doesn't deal with things at the top, but things at the bottom.

"Perhaps many of you do not realize what an asset it will be to have as First Lady of the Land a woman who really knows about social problems, thinks about them, cares about them, and dares to talk about them.

"In England and all over the world, I think, women are glad to see Mrs. Roosevelt go to Washington, because we know she really is interested in the welfare of women and children—and what affects the women and children of America affects also the women and children of the rest of the world."

Maxada School Pupils To Give Play Sunday

Children of the Maxada School will present a play, "The Dolls' Christmas Party," in the Nurses' Home of St. Francis Hospital Sunday evening at 7 o'clock.

Pitt Students To Give Yule Program

Observing the Christmas season on the eve of their holidays, University of Pittsburgh students will present their annual Yuletide Festival Thursday evening, December 15, at the Hotel Schenley.

Carol singing by the combined men and women's glee clubs and presentation of a Biblical pageant will be followed by a formal dance in the ballroom of the hotel.

The pageant of "The Three Wise Men" has been translated from the German by Dr. J. F. L. Raschen, head of the department of modern languages. A cast of more than 12 students, headed by Miss Charlotte Walker as the Virgin Mary, will take part in the various episodes of the play.

Leading the grand march at the dance will be Miss Jeanne Walsh and Victor Matteson, chairman.

Chaperons as announced by the committee are Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Ayars, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Van Sickle, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen J. Tracy and Mr. and Mrs. Henry C. Pavian.

Novel Decorations For Press Club Yule Dinner

Something novel in the way of decorations has been planned for the Women's Press Club Christmas dinner in the College Club on Saturday. Each member of the club will bring her own candle in a holder to light her place at the table and since there is no restriction as to size, shape or color, the effect will at least be unusual.

Dinner, which will be followed by games, is in charge of a committee comprising Miss Mary L. Hay, Mrs. John F. Collins, Jr., Mrs. Charles M. Bregg and the president, Mrs. Anne Ryan Lesh.

Santens to Address Nature Study Club

R. H. Santens, of Carnegie Museum, will address the Nature Study Club of Pittsburgh at its regular meeting in the Congress of Clubs tomorrow evening. His subject is "The Art of Taxidermy and Artificial Plants."

Gossipy Chat With Nancy Jane

Here's Helen Hoerle's favorite Amelia Earhart story. Miss Hoerle, the author of "The Girl and Her Future," with Amelia responsible for the aviation section, is in town talking to clubs.

For several weeks she had been trying to arrange a meeting with the aviatrix. This was before Miss Earhart had made her trans-Atlantic solo flight. One night when she called, Miss Earhart said, "Tonight's fine. Come on up. My husband won't be home for dinner."

So they spent several hours discussing plans for the book, the future of aviation, ad infinitum.

As she was leaving, after a pleasant evening, Miss Hoerle asked Miss Earhart what she wanted to do next.

"Oh, replied Miss Earhart casually, "I'd like to fly to Europe again before I die."

And all the evening they were chatting so pleasantly, Miss Earhart's husband was in New York superintending the check-up on her plane in preparation for her solo trip to Europe.

You can make a complete doll costume out of a child's stocking! Mrs. Charles J. Mundo is making scads and scads of stocking-outfitted dolls to give away Christmas to children whose stockings won't be stuffed full.

She uses the toe for a doll's cap, the middle for a sweater, and the top, turned upside down for a skirt.

THREE-QUARTER LENGTH COAT ASSUMES A NEW IMPORTANCE

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Dec. 14.—The three-quarter-length coat, launched in Paris for winter wear, is now being heralded as one of the outstanding fashions of importance in the near future. Several of the better couturiers declare it to be the highest fashion to be launched this year; at least three have announced it to be important in the collections they are preparing now for the first months of 1933.

* * *

THIS TYPE of coat is already seen frequently in Paris. One especially smart costume makes use of a coat of this type as a jacket over a brilliant grass-green dress of lightweight wool. The coat itself, of broadcloth, is black, and has a full collar of self fabric. There is no fur. An immense poppy, in natural orange-red, is placed at the base of the V of the neckline of the dress and is pulled outside the collar when the jacket is worn.

* * *

THE HEIM coat, of gray breitschwantz, in today's sketch, shows how effectively this type of wrap adds height to the figure, and emphasizes natural curves. It is made with sleeves that are full at the wrists and narrow at the shoulders—leaving freedom for the wide collar.

* * *

THE MOLYNEUX hat, of gray melusine, is fashioned of shaped pieces of the fabric and is bordered with a braided fold. The Enzel pumps of black kid and suede give a slight suggestion of the lines of an oxford.

Crafton Junior Yule Dance on December 27

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Always quite the largest and most important affair of the entire season for the Crafton Juniors is the annual Christmas dance, It is set for December 27 in the Urban room of the William Penn Hotel and this year will be sponsored by the civic committee of which Miss Mary Virginia Schutz is chairman. This is most appropriate since the proceeds are to be used for the local welfare fund.

Miss Schutz is assisted by Miss Catherine Anderson as sub-chairman. Bridge will be arranged for by Mrs. Stewart Scott and Mrs. Eugene Meyer. Miss Kay Walker, Miss Grace Hershberger and Mrs. Dora Grim are looking after the music; Mrs. Harry Brown is doing publicity, and invitations are being sent out by Mrs. Walker Robb, Mrs. Carl Brelos, Mrs. Herbert Hezlep and Mrs. Lloyd Russell. Kittredge comprise the ticket committee; on the floor committee are Mrs. Thomas Ryall and Miss Elizabeth Bell and the patroness list is being compiled by Miss Nora Willets and Mrs. Louis Voight.

Lady Astor Active In Social Whirl At Capital

WASHINGTON.—Brightly, breathlessly, the social swirl of the congressional session started last week—with indefatigable Lady Nancy Astor accelerating its speed.

Large, impressive and exceedingly formal was President and Mrs. Hoover's dinner to the Cabinet Thursday night, White House signal for all the intricate entertaining of officialdom.

Dolly Gann, sister of the Vice President, and the cabinet wives held their first "at homes." Those who rated that privilege, started luncheons for Mrs. Hoover.

The capital was filled with functions—and Lady Nancy Astor appeared to be everywhere. In her smart dark suits, perky small hats and fluffy white blouses—such as she wears in Parliament—she dashed from place to place, received by everybody from the President to the self-styled "hunger marchers."

Galleries, gay with smartly-gowned women, were agog over her appearance at Monday's opening of Congress. She attended a musicale where three "first ladies" were guests—Mrs. Hoover, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Taft. She was feted by the Congressional Club, talked shop with the women members of Congress, wittily and pithily regaled the Woman's National Press Club with her life-principles and career highlights. Formal dinners, exclusive luncheons, fashionable teas were held for Lord and Lady Astor.

A stately old mansion on Du Pont circle took its new place in capital life as the Sulgrave Club—a women's club of highest social rating, with Miss Mabel Boardman, Red Cross secretary, as its president. Working together for its success are Mrs. Alvin T. Hert, outstanding Republican, and Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, noted Democrat.

Beaver Club Juniors To Be Seniors' Guests

U. D. C. to Receive Gavel Of Wood from Lee Home

Mrs. John Pryor Cowan, a former chapter president, will present the gavel to Mrs. Adolph Hofmann, the incumbent, who is also hostess for the day.

WASH OUT YOUR K-I-D-N-E-Y-S— SLEEP FINE

No More Getting Up Nights

So you feel achy all over, miserable and blue? Your head feels "crowded" your nerves quiver, you have pin-and-needle cramps—your appetite has gone and you feel weak as a cat. Don't fill your stomach with tonics or laxatives or rheumatism remedies. How can they help if it is your kidneys.

The job of the kidneys is to strain the uric acid and other poisons out of your blood. They purify your blood, that's it. Now you must not let these acids stay in the kidneys or they'll get back in the blood and poison your whole body. That's why your kidneys must pass 3 pints of "water" a day. Let them fail and you know it. Your appetite goes back on you, so does your pep, your sleep, and your nerves—your back hurts, your ankles and feet may swell up and you feel cranky and sick.

Now see what a wonderful change takes place after you start on Foley Pills. Kidney action increases at once. Out go those acids. Burning stops. Sleep is sounder, and none of this getting-up business. You feel like "somebody."

Your druggist has Foley Pills. Sells a lot of them, because most people know how good they are. Don't cost much either—but they certainly do a grand job. If they don't, your money back any time you want it. ©1932

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

The Best Taste

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell me if it is proper for me to send my young man friend's parents a Christmas present? I have met his parents quite a few times, although they live almost two hundred miles from here. My friend went home to stay until Spring. We are secretly engaged.

Please advise me about this. I do not expect a gift in return.

READER.

Under the circumstances . . . since you don't know these people very well, and since there is secrecy about your engagement . . . I think that it would be in best taste and the way of wisdom for you not to give them Christmas presents.

Gift Not in Form

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I have been employed in our present position since early in April. I would like to have you advise me if it is proper for me to give the lady a gift, and what would you suggest?

Her brother lives with her and she is a widow. She has a son who is away at school but who will be home for the holidays. Please advise me as to whether I should give gifts to these others, and what would you suggest?

I THANK YOU.

It would be best form, I believe, for you not to give Christmas presents to any of these people.

Have a little irony: The late Smith Reynolds' brother, Dick, is romancing a "torch" singer . . . The Bolton Mallorys (Nancy Carroll) and the Lew Ayres (Lola Lane) are Considering Matters Seriously . . . Russell Sage Underwood, a socially registered married man (who claimed a girl had been annoying him for years) finally took her to the E 51st Station House the other night—where the bluecoats refused to be worked into a lather . . . The buzz persists that Will Hays will resign as movie czar any day—in spite of his 5-year contract—and that the first in line to succeed him is Conrad Nagel . . . Ruth Cunliffe of "Walk a Little Faster" and Bernard Carlin, Jr., realty broker, were secretly sealed last Thursday . . . Haw! The New Yaukur, which ran that grand expose on "Prince" Romanoff, received a cable (collect, yet!) from him asking for $100 for fare home! . . . The mag ought to send it to him—he inspired the best thing they ever had!

Smith and F. D. R. conferred for 30 minutes on the phone Friday . . . Alfred will go to Albany to press his plans to save the city . . . La Vonne Gundry of the B. Lillie show and L. Rose of "Gay Divorce" have been secretly merged for a month . . . "Americana" and "Ballyhoo" may be merged for a road tour . . . A showman will get a headache when he learns that the financiers (who turned him down on that "angeling") did so because they discovered he once served a term in the San Quentin jute mill.

There's no truth to the rumor that Kate Smith's leading man will be the Four Marx Brothers! . . . Edw. J. Last Spring a downtown bank discovered that one of their men embezzled $176,000 . . . The gal who made the discovery and subsequently saved the bank all that coin was just fired . . . The pigeons in the park die young from over-eating because too many saps press food on them all day.

Pretty Vivian ("Varieties") Porter simply can't stand the strains of "Rhapsody in Blue" (Ah, there!) . . . John F. Curry, Tammany chief, has given up his low number C-1 on his car, because when he wanted to get away from the press recently, he was spotted (via the low number) by an eagle-orb'd scribe . . . That's why the Boswell Sisters now have it . . . June Knight of "Take a Chance" was urged to fly to the coast to replace Jeanette MacDonald in a flicker, but her mammy won't let her quit the hit.

An orchid to Isham Jones for his arrangement of "I Only Found You For Somebody Else" . . . Ditto to L. Schwab and Buddy De Sylva for putting "Humpty-Dumpty" together again . . . An orchid to Sunny O'Dea of "Walk a Little Faster," who was summoned for the show an hour before it opened, and stopped it cold . . . An orchid to Con Conrad's show at the Cocoanut Grove, an $8,000 weekly bill of talent, for a couvert charge of $1 . . . And a wreath of garlic to the press agent of N. T. "Pardon My English" with Buchanan, Roberti and Pearl will close for revision . . . When color movies come back, actors won't need make-up. Many, however, photograph badly in them and will be ousted—and unknowns will get famous, just as the talkies did to silents . . . Margaret Mayo, star of "Baby Mine," now sells real estate . . . Clara Bow, who says she doesn't want to be "It-ish" anymore, wears spit-curls on her cheeks in the Theda Bara manner . . . Cary Grant and Virginia Cherrill are not fooling!

It's a lovely baby girl over at the Bela Blaus (Elizabeth Jarecki) and it is "architecturally perfect" . . . Ditto at the J. Torbetts (he's on the World-Tel) and a honey of a boy at the John Knapps (Frances Reilly) . . . Beatrice Lillie-of-the-Volley will audition for a food firm right after Eddie Cantor's program in the studio so they can give her a packed house to test it. If "approved" (as if there could be any doubt about her knocking anybody dead!) she net-works for a series Jan. 1st for pret-tee pennies . . . The reason Hemingway is so peeved at the movie magnuts is that they appropriated one of his better titles, and then gave him $500 as a consolation prize . . . Hemmy, however, tore up the check! . . . "Manhattan," a new mag, is due in Jan.

Peggy Joyce agreed to take 6 Gs for a 4-week guarantee in the movies—and $1,250 after that—if . . . When she made "Skyrocket" she got $50,000 . . . John Farrow, who kisses and tells, and Lila Lee, are trying to recapture That Well Known Spark . . . The character of the actress in "Dinner at Eight" is based on a star whose name is also the name of a local theater! . . . Stage Manager Influenza Shifts Irish Bill In the Nixon

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Dark Rosaleen is having a difficult time in Pittsburgh this week, what with influenza and other troubles. The audience assembled at the Nixon Theater last night to see the charming Robinson comedy, "The Far-Off Hills," saw two tragedies instead, as several of the Irish Players are ill. But the two plays substituted both showed off the powers of F. J. McCormick, who is not only the finest actor in Ireland, but just about the finest wherever he may be. As a curtain-raiser Lady Gregory's "Rising of the Moon" was given—a trifle that is not very dramatic nor very thrilling even as a story. McCormick was the sergeant, and Michael J. Dolan the ballad-singer, and they got out of the trifle what was in it, which is not very much. Then came "The Shadow of a Gunman," seen here for the first time, and filled with a group of characters as rare and raw as only Sean O'Casey can draw them. In this McCormick acted the pedlar Seumas Shields, and while he lay in bed for the greater part of both acts he dominated the action with his inimitable comedy.

Mr. Seibel

The scene is a tenement room in Hillioy Square, Dublin, during the dark days of 1920. For an entire act the denizens of the house are expecting a raid by the Black-and-Tans; in the second act the raid takes place. There is a sack with bombs in the room when the British begin their search, and the girl who has lost her young heart to Donal Davoran, the poet who is also a gunman, sacrifices herself to save the men.

THIS MAN McCORMICK

While Kate Curling was sweet and charming as Minnie Powell, the martyr, it is this man McCormick who commands admiration without stint. If I had not heard that he is a great King Lear, I'd consider him the finest comedian now playing. Can he be also the greatest tragedian? As the pedlar Shields he presents a make-up and a habit of speech that have all the effect of some old Flemish masterpiece—so realistic that every wrinkle is eloquent and every drawl a revelation.

There was a whole gallery of portraits painted with a broad humorous brush — Barry Fitzgerald as Mr. Gallagher, Michael J. Dolan as Tommy Owens, P. J. Carolan and Maureen Delany as Mr. and Mrs. Grigson, May Craig as Mrs. Henderson, Denis O'Dea as Mr. Maguire, U. Wright as the landlord—all vastly amusing and full of exquisite detail. Arthur Shields, as the hero poet for whom Minnie goes to her death also was convincing and sympathetic.

NOT O'CASEY'S BEST

The play is far from O'Casey's best—it is not nearly as fine as "Juno and the Paycock," on the bill tonight. But it overflows with rich humor, Gaelic in its exuberance and its mother wit, and it rises slowly to a magnificent moment of pathos at the close. And as we laugh at these characters we also love them—like the clowns of Shakespeare.

This afternoon at the matinee a triple bill will be substituted for the other Robinson comedy, "The White-Headed Boy." First Lady Gregory's one-act comedy, "Spreading the News," will be presented; this will be followed by the two-act drama, "Birthright," of T. C. Murray; and another Gregory comedy, "The Workhouse Ward," will complete the bill.

This influenza is as bad as a raid by the Black-and-Tans ever was—but Dark Rosaleen is undismayed and the audiences are getting things they did not expect.

The Lady and Grand Duke

Gwili Andre and Arnold Korff in "Secrets of the French Police." RKO picture to be shown in the Warner Sunday for benefit of the needy, admission to be food and clothing, instead of money, all to be devoted to charity.

Second Show For Poor

The second Sunday charity movie will be presented Sunday in the Warner Theater with food and clothing for the needy again "the price" of admission.

As was the case Sunday when a large quantity of supplies for the destitute was collected, the theater and services of employes will be donated. The theater will be open from 2 until 11 p. m. Children will be admitted only if they are accompanied by adults.

The motion picture feature is to be "Secrets of the French Police," an RKO production with Gwili Andre, Frank Morgan, John Warburton, Gregory Ratoff and Arnold Korff in leading roles.

It depicts the world-famed, glamorous methods of detection of crime by the French police. In the story, Eugenie Dorain, played by Gwili Andre, a flower girl of the Paris boulevard, falls in love with Leon Renault, a likeable rogue, who makes his living by his wits.

The girl is abducted by a Russian expatriate who plans to produce a substitute "Princess Anastasia," using Eugenie for his purpose. Subsequently her father is murdered, and Leon is suspected. He clears himself and enlists with the secret police in search for Eugenie. The detection of the attempted imposture follows, providing a strange tale of international conspiracy.

Mary Pickford to Make Her Presents Christmas Cheer for Poor

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 14.—There will be a new kind of Christmas at Pickfair this year. The tree will be decorated as usual, but no presents will be exchanged, Mary and the members of the household have agreed to take the money and buy things for the needy.

Each employe at Pickfair will be asked to report the name of a family in want. On the day before Christmas, Mary will distribute boxes in which there will be the customary holiday trimmings, but also canned goods, staple groceries, blankets, clothes and a sum of money. These baskets will be delivered by the members of the household.

Mr. Fairbanks

At the studio, the star has asked her associates to take the money they would have spent on her and give it to a chairty specializing in Christmas dinners for the poor.

Of course, Doug and Mary will have gifts for each other. And, just as predicted, he has cabled to expect him home for the holidays. He sails from Plymouth and will arrive here December 23.

If you can believe Troy Orr, the theaters are looking for the fellow who used to read the titles out loud—they want him to come back.

Rain failed to dampen the wits of the speakers at the dedication of the new writers' building at Fox.

Producers were counseled by Rupert Hughes:

"Don't be too quick to criticize when you find writers asleep or sitting with their feet on the table. Remember, it is then that they are doing the company the least harm."

Will Rogers, after a lugubrious examination of his orange brown suit, remarked:

"This is the coat and pants I wore all through 'Business and Pleasure.' I wanted somebody to see it, and I know from the receipts of the picture that none of you did."

Will Rogers

The best advice Will could think or to give to the writers was not to bring too many of their personal effects into the offices.

"The next fellow," he explained, "may not have the same ideas."

SO SHE HAD TO BUY

After spending $29 on punchboards trying to win football tickets for her hair dresser and prop boy, etc., Lupe Velez had to plank down $30 in cash to buy the pasteboards. She gave her own pair of tickets to her chauffeur and went to the game with Winfield Sheehan. Or at least she had a date to.

All Hollywood was at the titanic struggle between Notre Dame and U. S. C. and thousands of dollars passed hands. I saw Joel McCrea and a tall blonde, Lila Lee, Joan Bennett with husband, Gene Markey, George Cukor and dozens of other celebrities. In the face of determined actors and directors, the studios declared a half holiday which they made up on Sunday.

JOE BROWN IS OUT

Joe E. Brown was sufficiently recovered from flu to entertain a party at the La Boheme Cafe . . .

Miss Breamer

Ralph Farnum is organizing a West Coast Polar Bear Club at Malibu. The idea is to go swimming all winter. At last reports they were waiting for the first ice to form on the Pacific . . . Saw Sylvia Breamer lunching at Paramount. She is a little thin now, but has the same haunting, dark eyes . . . Ernest Truex plans to go to London after he finishes "Whistling in the Dark" for M.G.M. . . . Mary Pickford's still cameraman, Knute Rahnn, used to be Alice Joyce's leading man in the old days. His brother is court photographer for the King of Sweden. . . . I get a laugh from the title of Bryan Foy's new picture: "I Am a Fugitive From a Chain Store."

Victim

Irene Dunne is one of the victim of a weird scheme in "Thirteen Women," opening today on Sheridan Square screen.

Plays and Players

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Juno and the Paycock," described as a comedy, although it has a highly tragic note, will be the production of the Irish Players in the Nixon tonight. It is by Sean O'Casey and it has a story that has met with opposition of many who are of Irish blood. It is one of the company's outstanding Dublin successes, but when presented in America first by a New York company it was unable to endure, although the critics gave it praise. Yet it drew well in that city recently at three performances by the company that is now in the Nixon. "The Paycock" is a wastrel and Juno is his patient and long-suffering wife, through whose efforts the home is kept together. The scene is a tenement district in 1922 and the action relates to an episode in the life of the Boyle family. It appears that the family is to come into money through a will, and its efforts to pull away from its surroundings become tragic when it transpires that it all has been a ruse concocted for a purpose. Its comedy is deeply edged with stark drama.

* * *

Jean May and Alden Chase will portray the roles of Lady Isabel and Archibald, the romantic leads of "East Lynne," when it is presented in the Pitt next week by the George Sharp Players. This production will call for several additional players in the cast, and the scenic crew is now busy on sets for 15 scenes, into which the five acts of the play are divided. "East Lynne" has not been presented on any regular theater stage here in many years, but the company of Capt. Menke made a stab at it on the Golden Road, show boat at Montrose, in the summer of 1931. Ella Ethridge expects to have a part to her liking in "East Lynne," for she is to play a sour elderly maiden sister of one of the principal characters. Miss Ethridge asserts she likes to play decided characters better than "dress up" parts.

Returns

John Barrymore returns from an insane asylum to complicate romance in "A Bill of Divorcement," feature film in the Enright.

Academy Is Presenting 'Take a Look'

The Academy bill this week is "Take a Look," made up of 31 episodes, including several musical sketches. Sammy Weston, a Yiddish funster, heads the comedians. Supporting him are Frank O'Neil, a Dutch comic, and Benny Moore, a delineator of Italian characters. Weston and O'Neil are a former vaudeville team. Ben Baxter, who sings and dances, also performs in two sketches. "Gypsyland," a musical number, features Eddie Akin, tenor; Mary Walton and the ensemble; Rose Marie, singer and dancer; Mildred Cozierre, a "blues" singer; George Walsh, character man; Bert Grant, juvenile. Betty Lee, Ann Jones and Elinore O'Neil also appear.

Loretta Young to Lead 'Zoo in Budapest'

Loretta Young his been engaged by Jesse L. Lasky, independent producer for Fox, to play the leading feminine role in "Zoo In Budapest." Gene Raymond has the starring male role in this story of tragic occurrences in the lives of humans and animals during a night in a European zoo, which was written by Melville Baker and John Kirkland.

Gable Meets Speed King

Gar Wood and Clark Gable will go speedboating at something like 125 miles an hour along the Detroit River next spring. They set the date when the millionaire speedboat king visited the Paramount studios.

Gable, also a speedboating enthusiast, aroused Wood's interest by telling him of having attained a speed of 94 miles an hour with his Packard twin-six while on location making "No Man of Her Own." Wood uses four Packard motors of 1600 horsepower each on his Miss America X, present holder of the Harms Cup trophy.

Wood flew to Hollywood from Florida in one of his four planes to pay a visit to friends in Los Angeles, see how films are made and then to stop over at Boulder Dam, where hydraulic hoist equipment for dump trucks, invented by him, is being used.

He disclosed the fact that America probably will face additional competition in next summer's Harms Cup race, as Italy may challenge for the first time. Heretofore only England and France have competed against the United States. Wood said the Fiat interests in Italy recently have developed a motor capable of 1600 horsepower and plan to enter it in the competition. Wood countered this information with the remark that he is working on a motor capable of 2000 horsepower which he hopes to have ready next summer.

BITS OF LIFE

All in a Day

By MARK HELLINGER

ABCARD THE S. S. CITY OF TUNIS, NORTH AFRICA-BOUND.—Italy is many miles behind at this writing and, inasmuch as there isn't much of interest on this boat, I think I'll devote this column to a few reflections and observations that I jotted down during my somewhat hurried trip through a beautiful country.

Bear in mind, please, that these are the thoughts of an impartial traveler. I have no axes to grind and, if I say anything that offends at any time, it is because I am none too brilliant—and not because I set out deliberately to step on anyone's toes. That being as good an excuse as any I can think of at the moment, I will continue.

At the moment, of course, Italy is all Mussolini. His name is before you at all times. His every action and his every word are reported faithfully and in detail to the people whom he unquestionably governs at this writing. His word is law and his dictates are obeyed everywhere. They had better be.

It goes without saying that the man has plenty of enemies. But they seldom speak in the open because such a course is none too healthy. More, without enemies, the man would not be the figure that he is. For a man really to succeed in life, he must invariably have more enemies than friends. Because success is the mother of envy—and envy is just another synonym for hatred. Pretty?

Yet, when you travel through Italy and see what this one man has accomplished in the last 10 years, you must be amazed. Here is a nation of some 42,000,000 people. Its natural resources are very poor. Beautiful scenery, yes—but only tourists and a few newlyweds can live on scenery. The pastures, the mines and the natural wealth of the United States are but empty dreams in Italy.

It wasn't more than 10 years ago that Italy ranked fairly low among the nations of the world. Travel was none too safe within its borders. There was tumult in the outer political circles and chaos within. Harmony and a striving to assist the lower classes were things that looked to be impossible achievements.

Up popped Benito Mussolini. A young man in ideas when he took command of a deplorable situation, he remains a young man in ideas at the present time. Not all of his acts were wise. Not all of them tempered justice with mercy. I haven't a doubt in the world that something resembling cruelty is an inherent part of his make-up. But what price cruelty when the end more than justifies the means?

Regard your Italy of today. Perhaps it is true that the Italian textile workers are underpaid and that life isn't exactly a bowl of cherries for all the plodders in the vineyards. The world has always nursed that complaint, and regardless of the theory or party in power, it is never going to be any different.

All I know is that, as I traveled through the land, I saw smiling faces everywhere. Not in the lobbies of the best hotels, but in the slums. I found a definite contentment that I had not expected to see. I discovered an extremely healthy patient in the hospital of a world that is pretty sick.

And after all, why not? These people sense the fact that Italy is growing and expanding. They feel that their country is going forward instead of backward. They have a definite spirit that is lacking almost entirely in America right now. For they have a leader who keeps pounding away to create that spirit hour after hour, day after day and month after month.

Mussolini is a showman. He's a good actor, too, but a better showman. When he delivers a speech, the setting is always perfect. When he builds a new ship, he turns out a floating palace. When he orders a complete section of a town torn down and new buildings erected, he does it in such a fashion that the public well aware it is being benefitted.

Where the money comes from—or is to come from—to do all these things, I do not know. There may be times when even Mussolini nurses the same wonderment. But the fact remains that they are being done. And if that doesn't count the most, what does?

What will happen to Italy when Mussolini dies is something they don't like to talk about in Italy. That there is another figure in the nation, or in the world, who is strong enough to replace him, I doubt very much. Perhaps the glory that is his will carry Italy onward for many centuries. And perhaps—well, why go into that?

Meanwhile, while he lives, Mussolini continues to round out a political system that is most remarkable. The best way I can describe it to you is that is a sort of super-Tammany. Throughout the land, men owe their position to Mussolini and the party in power. Not one or two or three, but millions. And not only in the biggest jobs, but in the smallest as well.

Perhaps it is this system that will win allegiance to Mussolini's successor, whoever he might be. When the job pays well and the tummy is well filled, men dislike a change. But nothing in the world will save the party when the tummy is empty and the pay is small. Are you listenin', Mr. Hoover? . . .

War? Yes, I think that Italy will be at war with another nation before too many years have passed. And when the dread day arrives, I think the other nation will find Italy far better prepared than anyone believed possible.

We don't talk very frequently about war in America. It seems to be a subject that's ar away from the average man on the street. Because we became the most prosperous of nations in a short time, we seem to be harboring the notion that we are slightly superior to the rest of the world.

Then, too, we seem to have adopted a grandfatherly attitude toward the entire universe. We spend millions to teach others how to make them. We try to cram brotherly love down the throats of those who will never know the meaning of the words.

Other nations will never play ball with us or with each other, and the more I travel, the more I realize how true those words are. While grandpa has the dough, the kiddies will always sit upon his knees and listen to his bedtime stories. But if grandpa goes broke, the kiddies will hit him a terrible sock upon the kisser.

In a recent discussion with an American citizen, the ex-Kaiser gave the only possible answer to the entire discussion. And he did it in a very few words.

"How is it, sir," asked the citizen, "that other nations are again talking of war? Wasn't the last one horrible enough to end all wars forever? Surely there must be some solution."

The ex-Kaiser shrugged his shoulders.

"There is," he replied wearily. "Just change human nature."

Prohibition, the greatest evil that ever befell the United States, was put over by a group of self-sufficient fools who wanted to reform America. We know now what prohibition did to us. It would be wise to rub our eyes and awaken before we go too far in the vastly more dangerous game of trying to reform the world . . . .

3 Stages of a COLD!

And Relief Is Far Easier in the First Than in the Second or Third Stages!

A cold ordinarily progresses through three stages: the Dry Stage, the first 24 hours; the Watery Secretion Stage, from 1 to 3 days; and the Mucous Secretion Stage. The first stage is when treatment is most effective.

To stop a cold in the first stage, take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. It does the four things necessary. Opens the bowels, kills the germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and tones the entire system. Anything less than that is trifling with a cold. All drug stores sell Grove's Laxative BROMO QUININE. Be sure you get that and nothing else. Cellophane-wrapped box.

WARNS OF MUTE WOMAN'S PLEA

Warning against a pretty red-haired woman, aged about 24 years and appearing as a mute, who is selling flower plants on the pretext of supporting her war veteran husband, was issued today by County Commander Robert K. Cochrane, Jr., of the American Legion.

Cochrane reported the woman, giving the name of Mrs. T. H. Hopkins, had requested a letter substantiating her story that the husband had been rendered a mute from war experiences. The veterans' bureau reported no record could be found of a T. H. Hopkins filing claim for compensation in St. Louis and being awarded $35 monthly as claimed.

The woman sought to sell a water plant known as Egyptian rose. She failed to return to Cochrane's office despite the promise to seek a larger compensation for her mate.

"MOIST THROAT" AIDS COUGH RELIEF

Your throat and bronchial tubes are lined with millions of pores like tiny bottles continually supplying moisture to the delicate tissues . . . until you "catch cold."

Then these "bottles" get plugged up, phlegm accumulates, affording dangerous germs a breeding place. Your throat feels hot and dry. Tickling, irritation and coughing set in.

Your cough will be cured only when the flow of the natural fluid is increased, loosening the phlegm so that it can be expelled. Many cough "remedies" contain numbing drugs which merely deaden the nerves . . . but don't get at the root of the trouble.

PERTUSSIN, a scientific remedy, which doctors have prescribed for many years, is the extract of a famous herb which opens the tiny glands, stimulates the flow of the throat's natural moisture and brings quick relief. It helps nature heal that awful cough from the inside out.

When you feel that warning dryness take a few spoons of PERTUSSIN. It's absolutely safe. Sold at all drug stores, 60¢.

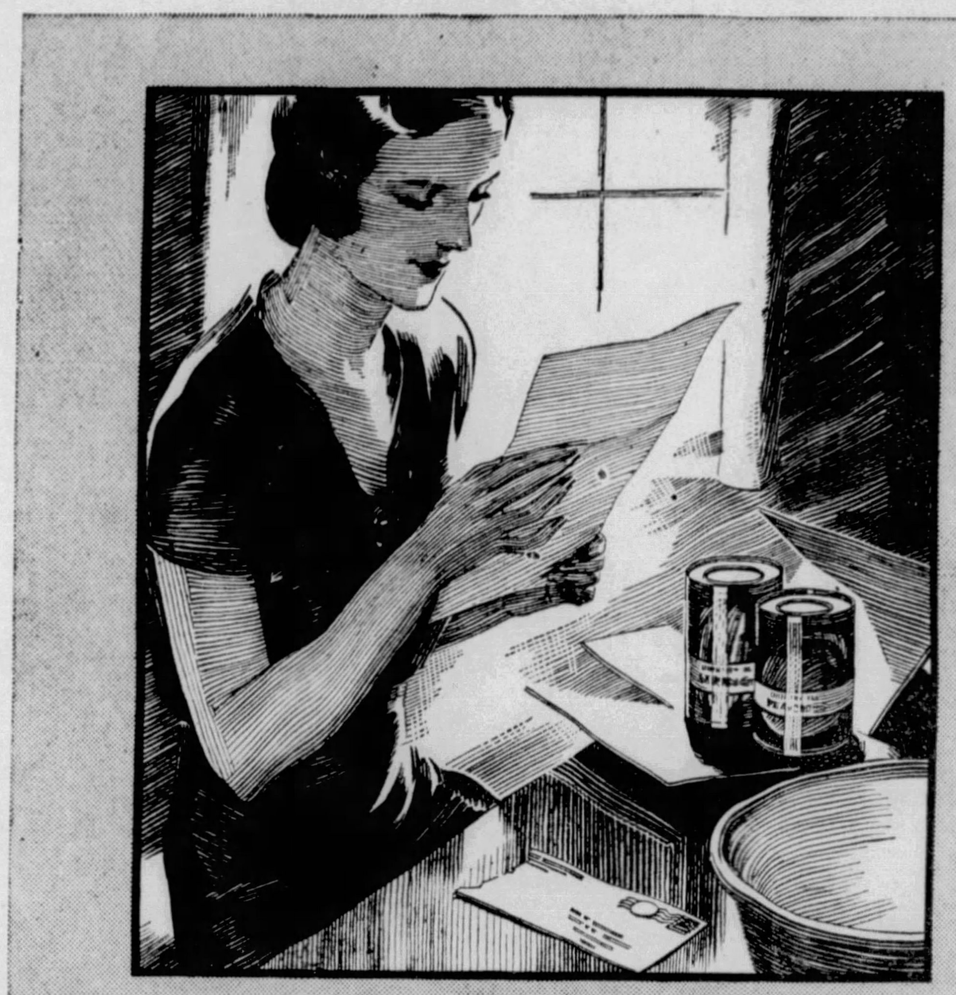
TRIPLE CHECKERS



Homemakers' Reference Bureau Gives THE KROGER FOOD FOUNDATION "triple check" on KROGER FOODS

Practical housewives in 14 States make practical cooking tests in home kitchens

You American women have raised beyond man's dreams the standards of American life. Of education. Of child welfare. Of public health. And now, shoulder to shoulder with science, you are helping to raise food standards still higher for the American table—through the Homemakers' Reference Bureau.

Housewives in 14 States make up this Homemakers' Reference Bureau. It is an honorary, voluntary association of Home Consultants to The Kroger Food Foundation. These women bring to The Kroger Food Foundation the "outside"—the practical—viewpoint of the homemaker. These women make kitchen tests of foods in their own homes, and report their experiences and findings. They give opinions and offer suggestions. They are triple checkers—proving and approving tests made in The Foundation laboratories and kitchens. And this final, triple check in home kitchens is your final assurance of maintained quality and more dollar value in all Kroger foods, at all Kroger Stores.

SPORT COMMENT

Playing Pilots Reduced. Comeback of Conacher.

HOLDS LOWER LIMIT WOULD HURT GAME

THOUGH HE IS the newest club head in the major leagues except for Gerald P. Nugent, of the Phillies, President William E. Benswanger, of the Pirates, thinks along sounder baseball lines and has better ideas for the future welfare of the sport than a larger percentage of the older magnates. Behind a stand he takes, usually will be found common sense and a desire to deal fairly with the fans. That was shown again yesterday in the successful fight he made as one of the leaders against the movement to reduce the player limit below 23 by counting coaches on the active list.

W. E. Benswanger

Anything tending to cheapen or weaken the game would be false economy, President Benswanger holds. He says that patrons paying major league prices are entitled to major league baseball, and that they would not be getting it if pitchers or catchers were sent out to fill in for disabled regulars, as might be necessary under a player limit so low as to prevent the carrying of a reasonable number of substitutes. Any player limit keeping a club from carrying a sufficient number of reserves to assure an experienced man for any position in an emergency would not be in keeping with major league baseball, the Pirate president contends, and other real baseball men evidently did not dispute the point, as they turned in and defeated the lower-limit plan.

WITH THE BIG league baseball men gathered in New York, Charley Grimm is now carrying on a resumption of the drive he started some time ago to get a first-class left-hand pitcher.

Grimm admits that he has not received much encouragement in his efforts from the clubs approached on the subject so far. But he hasn't given up, he says, and is willing to make some sacrifices.

GRIMM FIGURES THAT there are only eight capable left-handers in the National League, naming Clark, of the Dodgers; Hallahan, Walker and Mooney, of the Cardinals; Hubbell, of the Giants; French, of the Pirates; Brandt, of the Braves, and Elliott, Phils.

The Cub manager says he knows he can't get Clark and will confine his efforts to the seven others. He may just as well scratch French off his list, too. Despite reports that hooked Larry up with trade talk during the past week, it is known that Pirate is not on the market.

THE LONG-DELAYED DECISION of the Red Sox club to retain Marty McManus as manager for next year probably means the lopping of one name off the list of playing pilots. The Boston club no doubt would prefer a playing manager, as that system saves a salary, but judging from his showing on the field during the latter part of the 1932 season there is little chance that McManus will be able to hold down a post in the lineup. Last year he batted only .235 in 95 games, and all around gave unmistakable evidence that he was slipping. A year older in 1933 he could hardly play up to requirements on even a tail-end club, and would only be standing in his own way in his efforts to strengthen the Hub outfit.

Ernie Johnson

THE HOPES OF Connie Mack that he will be able to replace missing regulars with Mike Higgins and Lou Finney, and that those youngsters will make the A's strong pennant bidders next year, are doomed to be dashed, in the opinion of Ernie Johnson, former major league infielder, who managed Seattle in the Pacific Coast League, where Higgins and Finney played for Portland.

Johnson declares that Higgins is weak on slow grounders at third base and is soft picking at the plate for side-arm pitchers. And Finney, before he can become a big league outfielder, according to Ernie, must overcome a weakness for charging in too far on ground balls. He hits only slow balls, it is added.

THE WIDE DIFFERENCE in climate does have its effect on Eastern or mid-Western gridders playing in the Rose Bowl, and the Panthers must be prepared for it, is the advice given by Harry Stuhldreher, Villanova coach, and one of the famous Four Horsemen.

Stuhldreher experienced the effect of the climatic change when he played out there with the Irish against Stanford on New York's Day of 1925. He also says the Panthers must expect to see their practice work affected by the rare air of Arizona when they stop at Tucson for nine days of drilling.

"THE NOTRE DAME squad started practice at home three weeks before the game," Stuhldreher relates. "Snow and ice on our gridiron at South Bend made it impossible for us to do any bodily contact work, and our signal drills were held under difficulties because of the slippery field and because our fingers were numbed by the cold. Rock took us West by easy stages. First to New Orleans for a workout in milder climate, then to Texas, where it was about right, and next to Arizona, where the air was very rare. Ours was a team that had the passing game down pretty fine when we were clicking. I recall that in Arizona at first we seemed unable to throw a ball with any degree of accuracy. We couldn't gauge distance and the receivers had the same trouble. The rare air must have been the cause of that.

"WE MOVED INTO California, and in a twinkling our passes began to click. Everything we tried seemed to succeed with the rhythm Rock liked so well. We went into the game with that same spirit and click. In the first half we got away with passes and running formations as near perfect as anything we ever accomplished.

"In the second half it was different. We began to wilt. It seemed to me I had lost all my vitality. It was an effort to throw or kick the ball. On defense, too, our team began to droop. That's what happens to any visiting team out there. It's a change from winter to Indian summer and it saps stamina."

A SCREEN STORY of the Olympic games, filmed in 15-millimeter movies by 30 members of the Los Angeles Amateur Cine Club, has just been released. The four-reel picture is the result of 10,000 feet of film edited and cut to give the best features of track and field events.

Lionel Conacher

In addition to the filming of 21 world and Olympic records in the making, swimming, rowing and equestrian high lights are shown in slow motion. Requests for copies of the film have been received from Japan, Germany and France.

HOCKEY HAS ITS comebacks, just like other sports, and one of the season's sensations in that direction is a former Pittsburgh ice figure of prominence in the person of Lionel Conacher. The rise of the Montreal Maroons, after a poor start, to first place in the International Group of the National League, was the surprise of the race. Strangely enough, the credit for the climb is not given to the forward line, made up of Hooley Smith, Baldy Northcott and Paul Haines, but to the work of the man who play defense—Conacher and Cy Wentworth. Conacher's performances in particular have been brilliant. The veteran was supposed to be all through as a player two or three seasons ago, but in his present form he ranks again with the best.

CLUBS TO PLAN OWN MOVES FOR ECONOMY

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Now that the storm clouds of economy have broken over the annual major league meetings—and disgorged just a faint, faint mist—the baseball magnates hustled back today to their efforts to trade broken-down athletes for healthy citizens, with additional good reasons for haste.

Next season the managers of the National and American leagues will have one full month less of the unrestricted barter period, during which they can buy, sell or swap their warriors back and forth without asking waivers of the opposition clubs of either circuit.

VOTE UNANIMOUS

By unanimous vote of the league owners, meeting separately in the opening sessions yesterday of the annual three-day conclave, the final date when each playing roster must be pared to 23 men was advanced from June 15 to May 15, without changing the player limit, or including coaches among that number.

No resolution was passed in either league, for instance, moving toward cheaper prices for tickets, for the scaling down of players' wages in general or Kenesaw M. Landis' $65,000 salary in particular, for a change in the present system of distributing world series pasteboards only in sets of three, or for an increase in the number of cheap bleacher seats.

Instead, the club owners decided to let each man put into effect his own scheme for retrenchment in the manner best suited to his individual problems, making economies, shaving overhead, wherever possible.

To this end, John A. Heydler, re-elected president for another four-year-term in the course of his 30 years with the National League, voluntarily reduced his own salary and pledged other economies in the management of the league's affairs.

ESCAPE RADIO FIGHT

Out of the meetings, where a host of drastic propositions had been expected, actually came only two for final discussion at the joint meeting of the owners tomorrow. One was the problem of radio broadcasting, upon which no action can be taken because of conflicting opinions among the league owners, and the other is the shift in the player limit date, already decided upon unanimously and therefore no subject for debate.

Informally, the National League, in which the Chicago Cubs and Boston Braves broadcast and Brooklyn sees no objection, went on record, 5 to 3, as opposed to broadcasting. The American League owners, with Chicago, Boston, Detroit and St. Louis on the air all season, were divided, 4 to 4, on the wisdom of broadcasts.

While the American League withheld its figures for the season, the National League announced a decline of 16 per cent in attendance in 1932 in comparison with 1931.

SHOWDOWN DATE SET

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(INS.)—A resolution has been passed by the board of directors at a meeting of the International League authorizing Charles Knapp, president of the league, to notify Sam Colacurcio, owner of the Jersey City club, that he has until January 10 to show the league that he has made a satisfactory settlement with his creditors. The move was made yesterday.

The resolution further called upon Colacurcio to show the league before the date set that he is financially able to carry on the club next season.

Harrison Rates Panthers Equal To Trojans

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—W. Don Harrison, director of athletics at Pitt, has expressed the opinion here that the Panthers will prove to be as great an offensive team as the University of Southern California in their Rose Tournament game at Pasadena, January 2.

After watching the Trojans in their 13-to-0 victory over Notre Dame, Harrison said:

"Offensively I rate the teams equal. If Southern California has any edge it will be a very slight one on defense.

"However, even in this department it is difficult to see the difference. In their game with Stanford, the Panthers held the Indians to a net gain of 12 yards from scrimmage, while I understand the Palo Alto boys ran the ball 170 yards against Southern California."

Harrison assured Trojan officials that the Pitt team this year would not be an overconfident group of sightseers. Apparently he referred to the contest in the Rose Bowl almost three years ago when the Panthers were beaten, 47 to 14.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: 24 YEARS IN THE DEATH HOUSE—Archibald Herron, convicted of murdering the Rev. Samuel B. D. Brickett, of Metuchen, N. J., in the summer of 1908, was sentenced to death by County Court Justice James J. Bergen, of Middlesex County, on July 28, 1908. He was scheduled to die during the week of September 7, 1908. A writ of error resulted in a postponement to January, 1909. It was followed by an executive reprieve on the question of insanity, and Justice Bergen subsequently suspended the execution until "further orders" pending a final determination of Herron's sanity. Through this loophole, Herron escaped death. Justice Bergen died in 1923 without issuing "further orders." The 73-year-old prisoner became a permanent inmate of the Death House of the Trenton, N. J., State Prison, and, although he has dwelt in the Valley of Death for 24 years, he may look forward to a serene natural death at the end of his days. WHAT THE U. S. PAYS ITS PRESIDENT—The total of $457,380 is based upon the U. S. budget appropriation for the fiscal year ending June, 1933. In addition, the United States provides protection costing $80,000 a year, this sum being charged to the appropriations for the Treasury Department. Besides, the occupancy of the White House is held to have a value of $880,000 a year, based on an estimated value of the White House and site of $21,935,975.

PANTHERS TOLD OF TROJANS' POWER PLAYS

By JESS CARVER

Dr. John Bain Sutherland and Ol' Man Weather are not exactly on what might be classed as terms of intimacy these days, for Dr. John B. is finding it very difficult to drill his football team in snowdrifts. Snow and preparations for games in the Pasadena Rose Bowl do not go together any better than pickles and ice cream.

Luby DeMeolo

The Panthers have been driven indoors again, just as they were back in '29 as they prepped for their last invasion of Pasadena, and will drill in the Hunt Armory again today. I say again, for they had to assemble in the Armory yesterday after the heavy snowfall made work on both the practice field and in the Stadium impossible. It might have been Ok. for skiing, but not for football.

Drilling in the Armory is attended by its difficulties, too. In the first place, the going is very heavy, and it is practically impossible to attain smooth execution of plays. The ceiling isn't high enough to permit much kicking practice and the footing is treacherous.

Bill Kern and Hank Hangartner, Panther scouts, who went to Los Angeles to study Southern Cal as Howard Jones' team battled Notre Dame, were back with Coach Jock and his Panthers today. The two sleuths presented Jock and the Pitt players with a blueprint which said, in effect:

"The Southern Cal team is very, very tough."

Kern and Hangartner had a long conference with Sutherland and the other members of the strategy board. The scouts brought home some interesting data on the unbeaten club. Late reports from the camp of the enemy indicate that Coach Jones will rely on data from the 1930 contest at Pasadena in concentrating on Pitt plays. He also has some information from friends who saw the Panthers in action this year.

The first workout of the alumni squad is slated for today at the Stadium. The Oldtimers (how they'll love that crack), will work in the snow whether or not. Coach Montgomery expects a squad of at least a score. There is one former star he can count on—Luby Di Meolo, captain of the '29 eleven, who will be here from New York for the game. I have a letter from Luby in which he cautions me to have plenty of medicos on hand, the gates of the Stadium locked, to keep, as he says, those dizzy halfbacks, Williams, Uansa and Rooney, from running out of the park, and to ask the varsity please to be so kind as to respect their elders.

This Varsity-Alumni game, by the way, will not be played unless there is a break in the weather. If it goes through, Jack Shea, Earl Cavanaugh, Red Byers and Dan Brickley will officiate.

Dr. Cliff Carlson leads his Panther court varsity out of town tomorrow night for its annual invasion of the Middle West. A squad of 10 players will make the trip, including Capt. Don Smith, Skippy and Charley Hughes, Russ Ochsenhirt, Don McCamant, Francis Wainio, Claire Cribbs, Bill Bond and Whitey Wilson, with the tenth man to be selected after this afternoon's drill.

Y.M.H.A. TO PLAY WILLIG CLUB

The Y. M. H. A. passers face one of their hardest tests of the season at the Y. M. H. A. tomorrow night when the W. S. Willigs are the attraction of the Bellefielders.

Joe Gubby, Peck Minnick, Chuck Arthurs and Eddie Seigel are members of the McKeesport team.

In the preliminary game the Y. M. H. A. "B" team will meet the Forresters.

TWO PITT STARS ON CASEY'S ALL-EASTERN ELEVEN

EDDIE SELECTS HELLER AND SKLADANY

By EDDIE CASEY,
Harvard Coach,
Member, All-America Board of Football.

The fine type of football played in the East this year and the many outstanding players in all positions makes it a difficult task to pick an All-Eastern eleven. However, in this selection I have taken into consideration the opposition encountered by the players selected, and also I have considered the quality of the men as team players.

Eddie Casey

At the end of the line there are many men to pick from. I have selected Skladany, of Pitt, and Fairman, of Princeton. These two men do everything well that an end is supposed to do. Offensively they are both fine blockers. Fairman is an expert pass receiver. Under punts they are fast and deadly tacklers. Defensively they know all the tricks of the end position. Skladany has made a reputation for himself hurrying the opposing forward passer, and this must have been a tremendous help to his backfield. Physically each man is rugged and durable, and this is a factor of great importance in modern football.

WILBUR GREAT TACKLE

At the tackle positions, in my opinion, Wilbur, of Yale, and Colehower, of Pennsylvania, are standouts. Wilbur has perhaps the greatest record of any lineman in the East for the amount of time played in games this fall. I believe he has played every game complete with the exception of two minutes in his last game. Both of these men are rugged and aggressive, and they have the keen intelligence necessary for a great tackle. Their ability to diagnose plays is uncanny. Offensively in charge and drive they are exceptional. The majority of the big ground gaining plays of their respective teams have been made behind these men.

Smith, of Colgate, and Summerfelt, of the Army, are in a class by themselves for the guard positions. These two men could very readily be on any All-America team, and would be a credit to it. Lightning fast, coming out of the line to lead interference, coupled with their great blocking ability, they have made to a great extent the offense of the Army and Colgate. On defense their positions have been impregnable, and they have been of great support to the rest of their lines.

GILBANE AT CENTER

T. Gilbane, of Brown, I think, is the best all round center in the East, although he is hard pressed by Del Isola, of Fordham, and Engle, of Penn. Gilbane is a perfect passer, and this point in a center's play is all important. Defensively, he is equally good in the line or out of it, and this is a hard combination to find in any center. He has a fine charge, and is adept at filling the holes left in the line by the running guards.

The sparkplug of any football team is in the quarterback, and for this position a leader and an intelligent director is needed. To my mind, the great quarterback of the East was Montgomery, of Columbia. The Columbia team was one of the best in this section and yet, without any doubt, it was 50 per cent better with Montgomery in there. A fine strategist, an exceptional runner and a great passer makes him a man to be desired by any team.

To give Montgomery a great offensive team, I pick Heller, of Pittsburgh; Vidal, of the Army, and Vivianno, of Cornell. With these three backs he can do everything that is necessary offensively, and do it well. Vivianno to do the line plunging and lead the interference, and there is no better in the East. For fast, shifty and versatile ball carriers, Heller and Vidal. Alternating these men would make it well nigh impossible for the defense to cope with this team.

HELLER GREAT PASSER

And then we still could put Vidal in the open to receive passes, and he is an expert in this line. Heller is a great passer, and he is also a blocker. Defensively, Vivianno backs up the line to the queen's taste, and he diagnoses plays instantly. Against forward passes the rest of the backfield is great. Because of their great speed and intelligent play, they know just how to defend against passes and when to expect them.

All told, this team has tremendous speed, weight and ruggedness. It is composed of 11 men who are team players, and it has intelligent direction. I think it would be a champion in any league.

Trojans Given 'Rest Cure' By Jones

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 14.—(INS.)—Southern California will prepare for the New Year's game with Pitt with a good dose of absent treatment and mental suggestion. At the close of this afternoon's workout, the undefeated Trojan squad will be laid off completely until next Monday.

Between next Monday and the afternoon of January 2, only the light workouts will be held.

Tickets for the game were placed on sale today. Pittsburgh alumni will occupy a special section.

Herbert Dana is to referee the game, probably his last as an official, as he has been appointed supervisor of Pacific Coast Conference officials.

Carnegie Tech is reported seeking Tommy Yarr, of Notre Dame, as line coach to team up with Howard Harpster, new head football coach next fall. Otherwise, Don Lovewell will get the post.

The Davis Cup American versus European interzone finals will be played next July 21, 22 and 23, with the winner meeting France in the challenge round, July 28, 29 and 30, the French Lawn Tennis Association has announced.

BABE BITTER OVER BAN

HOUSTON, Tex., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Mildred (Babe) Didrikson, versatile girl athlete, termed "grossly unfair" her suspension by the Amateur Athletic Union on grounds she allowed a motorcar manufacturer to use her picture and testimonial in an advertisement.

Her criticism was made last night in a written statement after the registration committee of the Southern A. A. U. at New Orleans suspended her from further competition as an amateur.

Daniel J. Ferris, secretary of the National A. A. U., said if the suspension was made permanent, it would bar Miss Didrikson from consideration for the James E. Sullivan memorial award, the winner of which is acclaimed the nation's outstanding amateur athlete.

School Notes

Chick Davies, coach at Duquesne University, will be the principal speaker at the football banquet to be given the members of the Ellwood City High squad at Ellwood City tonight.

Through an oversight, Swissvale was omitted from the teams enrolled in Section VIII this season. Ed Paglie and his boys, however, hope to make their presence felt from the opening whistle to the finish.

South High School, coached by Grover C. Washabaugh, goes after its second straight victory tomorrow night by opposing New Castle at New Castle. South defeated Mt. Lebanon in its opener, 33-28.

All-America Team Players To Name Own Captain

At last—A new wrinkle in All-America football teams.

A team that picks its own captain.

Last Sunday, the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph published exclusively the All-America Board of Football team for the 1932 season.

On Friday, it will publish the name of the captain of this team.

Here's how it's being done:

Ballots have been distributed among the 11 players on the team, along with a detailed history of each player's performances and qualifications, and the players have been asked to elect their own captain. The result will be published on Friday.

Here are the members of the All-America Board team:

Ends—Moss, Purdue, and Petoskey, Michigan.

Tackles—Kurth, Notre Dame, and Smith, Southern California.

Guards—Smith, Colgate, and Corbus, Stanford.

Center—Krueger, Marquette.

Quarterback—Newman, Michigan.

Halfbacks—Heller, Pitt, and Hitchcock, Tennessee.

Fullback—Horstman, Purdue.

Which player would you pick out of that group for a captain? Make your choice now, and then compare it with the choice of the players themselves.

GIANTS BEAT SPARTANS

LEXINGTON, Ky., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—The New York Giants scored a touchdown in the first quarter and two more in the second quarter to defeat the Portsmouth Spartans, 18 to 0, in an exhibition professional football game here yesterday.

HIGH SPOTS IN CAREER OF WELCOME NEW PIRATE

The acquisition of Freddie Lindstrom from the Giants gives the Pirates the greatest outfield in baseball for next season, for he will pair up with the Waner brothers. Above are a few flashbacks on his brilliant career. Top to bottom, are: Closeup of our hero; with his bride, several years ago; playing with Freddie, Jr., at Chicago home; Lindy breaks an ankle sliding into third against the Phillies in July of 1931, and Lindstrom, the slugger. The Pirates hope he'll provide a much-needed right-hand batting punch. These are Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and International News Photo Service pictures.

GOLF COURSES CLOSED

In order that needed improvements might be made to the fairways, the golf courses at the South and North County Parks were closed today. When they are reopened, next spring, Director A. M. Marion proposes to have practice greens at each course and the holes at the South Park course renumbered.

PRO GAME IN CINCY

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—After the Portsmouth Spartans and the Chicago Bears play off their tie for the National Professional Football League championship at Wrigley Field Sunday, they will carry their act to Cincinnati for a charity game Christmas Day.

BOXING NOTES

Twenty-five fights remain in the Greater Pittsburgh amateur championship tournament to be concluded in McKeesport tomorrow night. They are all of the bouts in the middleweight and heavyweight classes and the semi-finals and finals in all of the other divisions.

Barney Ross, of Chicago, boxes Bobby Pacho, of Mexico, at Los Angeles, January 10. Speedy Dado and Eugene Huat box there next Tuesday.

Apples Meyers already is looking ahead to next season at his Meyers Bowl in North Braddock and is contemplating the return there of Jules Beck as his matchmaker.

LEWIS SEEKS JOB

WASHINGTON, Pa., Dec. 14.—Al Lewis, local athlete, is among the applicants for the post of boxing coach at Wash-Jeff.

NORTH UNION SEEKS TITLE IN SEC. XIII

By JULIUS LEVIN.

North Union Township High School, coached by Ray Welsh, will be out to win the Section XIII championship of the W. P. I. A. L. basketball competition for the third time when the campaign gets under way on January 6.

The North Union passers have enjoyed unusual success under the coaching of Ray Welsh during the five years he has had charge of the team. North Union has won the Section XIII championship twice and finished in second place twice.

In the last four years North Union has scored 70 victories in 88 games, quite a remarkable record for the Fayette County school.

While only one regular is back from last season, Coach Welsh, if past performances can be taken as a criterion, will have another winner at North Union. He has been forced to rebuild his quintet every year as a result of graduations.

North Union lost its opening pre-season contest to a fine Alumni aggregation, 23-20, but the boys displayed enough class to warrant ranking them among the favorites for the Section XIII crown. Other schools in Section XIII are Georges Township, South Union Township, Brownsville, Masontown, Point Marion and German Township.

In scholastic tussles last night, Langley defeated Sewickley, 34-28; Dormont won over Oliver, 35-26; Scott downed Homestead, 22-17; Braddock took over Monessen, 47-27; Norwin defeated Pitcairn, 23-20; Duquesne nosed out Swissvale, 26-25; Leetsdale trimmed Coraopolis, 27-17.

ARENA'S CARD COMPLETE

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Benefit amateur bouts, South Heights. Jack December vs. Morrie Sherman, 10 rounds, and Eddie Wells vs. Johnny Nardon and Johnny Kanasty vs. Milton Alrecht, 6 rounds each, Mt. Clemens, Mich.

Lou Bloom vs. Al Gahn, 10 rounds, and Battling Elk vs. Jim Beckbolt, 8 rounds, and Freddie Hill vs. Ali Pugg, 6 rounds, Columbus, O.

The complete card for the Ted Yarosz-Jack King boxing show at the Arena, on the North Side, Friday night, was announced today by Matchmaker Lew Raymond.

He has Marty Gornick, of Whitaker, back after a long layoff, against Marty McHale, of McKeesport, in the eight-round semi-final; Al Farone, of the West End, against Joe Elrene, of Ohio, in the second preliminary, and Bobby Rowe, of the East End, against Charley Burns, of Johnstown, in the opener.

Yarosz concluded his hard training today. His opponent leaves Chicago tonight and will taper off his work here tomorrow.

The Garden is undecided about going through with a show for next Monday night featuring Midget Wolgast, the world flyweight champion, and Jimmy Thomas in the 10-round main bout. If there's a show, that will be the card. If the show is called off, the next program in the East End arena will be held on Christmas afternoon, when it is hoped to show Yarosz against Tommy Freeman, former welterweight champion.

Between Rounds

Mrs. Lena Levy, of Chicago, still retains an interest in the management of her heavyweight brother, King Levinsky. In fact, she is his sole manager in Chicago bouts, but has arranged to have Walter Friedman, manager of Primo Carnera, represent the boxer in other cities.

Young Terry boxes Marty Tonkamon, Merle Gibson meets Homer Gray and Pee Wee Carney engages Tommy Kilrain in six-round preliminaries to the Jackie Wilson-Ross Fields bout at the Castle Bowl, New Castle, next Monday night, under the auspices of the World War Veterans of Lawrence County.

Benefit amateur bouts will be staged at South Heights tonight by Joe Sorg for the needy children of the community. The Fire Department is backing the show.

Seals Mark Anniversary With Program Tonight

ROPE-WALKING . . . A HERB M'GEE WRESTLING TRICK

This is Anniversary Night for the Trained Seals of the Sports Department of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, and it will feature members of the sports staff who have appeared at various times since the initial weekly radio broadcast of the Seals, just a year ago.

Charles J. Doyle, baseball expert, will discuss the trade that brings Freddie Lindstrom to the Pirates; Jess Carver will talk on Pitt and its Rose Bowl football game, and Tom Birks and Carl W. Shatto, of the sports staff, also are on the bill.

Herb McGee

Herb McGee will relate another chapter of his amazing career as a phony sports star, telling of his alleged experiences as a wrestler. Last week, he was a fighter, and before that a football player, baseball player and poloist. Next week, he's liable to be a six-day bicycle racer.

Harry Keck, sports editor, will be master of ceremonies and Miss Marian Salmon will be at the piano. The program is scheduled for 7 o'clock.

Fight Results

At Indianapolis—Pete Nebo defeated Allen Whitlow, 10 rounds.

At Los Angeles—Rodolfo Casanova defeated Young Tommy, 10 rounds.

At Grand Rapids—Primo Camera won by a technical knockout over Big Boy Peterson, 2 rounds.

At West Palm Beach, Fla.—Irvine Ashkenazi knocked out Jerry Kaynier, 4 rounds.

At Jacksonville, Fla.—Young Granada knocked out Nick Antonelli, 4 rounds.

GOSLIN BACK WITH NATS

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(INS.)—The Washington Senators today traded Outfielders Carl Reynolds and Sam West and Pitcher Lloyd Brown and cash for Outfielders Goose Goslin and Fred Schulte and Pitcher Walter Stewart, of the St. Louis Browns.

President Clark Griffith would not reveal the amount of money involved. Goslin formerly was with the Washington team.

Meanwhile speculation was rife over the chances of the New York Giants clinching fresh player negotiations, with Brooklyn, Philadelphia and, possibly, Boston. It was learned Burt Shotton, manager of the Phillies, turned down a deal which would have given him Hughey Critz, second baseman of the Giants, in exchange for Ray Benge, right-handed pitcher.

The Giants formally closed the deal with Tom Turner, president of the Portland club, of the Pacific Coast League, for Pitcher Bill Shores, right-hander, formerly with the Athletics. Portland receives Pitcher Sam Gibson, right-hander, and a cash consideration in exchange, Turner said.

Jimmy Dykes, veteran third baseman, sold to the White Sox by the Athletics, conferred with Chicago officials, presumably on a 1933 contract, and indicated they had failed to get together on details, for the time being.

Knockouts Mark Lyceum Ring Show

If others of the series of amateur boxing shows planned by the Pittsburgh Lyceum are as snappy and exciting as the first, Lyceum ring followers are in for an entertaining season.

The simon-pures went to it with a vim last night, two of the seven bouts on the card winding up in knockouts. In one, Jimmy O'Donnell, of the Lyceum, stopped Bob Dietrich, of the Pastorius A. C., in the first round, and in the other, Pete Barry, also of the Pastorius Club, won by a technical knockout over Paul Dunn, of the Lyceum. The summary:

118-pound class—Felix Casciata, Pittsburgh Lyceum, defeated Frank Wingo, Willow Club, 3 rounds.

147-pound class—Pete Barry, Pastorius A. C., defeated Paul Dunn, Pittsburgh Lyceum, by a technical knockout in second round.

130-pound class—Jimmy O'Donnell, Pittsburgh Lyceum, knocked out Bob Dietrich, Pastorius A. C., first round.

130-pound class—George Julius, Willow Club, defeated Joe Maico, Pittsburgh Lyceum, 3 rounds; Chuck Chemes, Pittsburgh Lyceum, defeated Jackie Peters, Fraziey A. C., 3 rounds; Jimmy Campbell, Y. M. H. A., defeated Steve Kovach, Pittsburgh Lyceum, 3 rounds; Harry Krause, Pittsburgh Lyceum, defeated Freddie Lenn, Fraziey A. C., 3 rounds.

Sport Reformers Attacked By Stuhldreher

READING, Pa., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Harry Stuhldreher, football coach of Villanova College, scored reformers who, he said, are trying to ruin the athlete's chances to get an education by doing away with scolarships, in an address at the annual Albright College football banquet.

Stuhldreher upheld the interests of the athlete, saying that de-emphasization on the part of the Association of Colleges of the Middle Atlantic States was unjust.

The dinner was held last night.

ALLEN TO FACE CHAMPION IN CUE DUEL

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Two of the three undefeated leaders in the national pocket billiard championship, Ralph Greenleaf, of New York, and Jimmy Caras, of Wilmington, Del., were confronted by stern opposition today.

Greenleaf, the defending champion, was paired against the veteran Kansas City star, Benny Allen, while Caras was booked against Frank Taberski, former titleholder from Schenectady, N. Y. Allen, who has split even in four games so far, accounted for the biggest upset of the tournament in his last start, whipping Andrew Ponzi, of Philadelphia.

Greenleaf and Caras, both of whom had won their fourth successive victories Monday, were joined at the top last night by Erwin Rudolph, of Cleveland.

Rudolph came from behind to trip Walter Franklin, of Kansas City, 125 to 106, in 13 innings.

Ponzi won his third game in four starts, defeating James Mills, 125 to 79, in eight innings, and George Kelly, of Philadelphia, handed Pasquale Natalie, of Chicago, his first defeat, 125 to 61, in 26 innings. It was Kelly's first victory.

The Greenleaf-Allen match today was the feature of the afternoon program of two matches, the other bringing together Mills and Franklin, now tied for the cellar position. Caras and Taberski will play tonight.

TUNNEY TESTS HIS COURAGE IN FRANCE

GENE SURVIVES BEATING TO WIN TITLE

SYNOPSIS

Thus far the author has traced his career from scrappy school days along the lower Hudson River front to stirring nights as a club fighter in the Sharkey, Fairmont and Polo A. C.'s. At 18 the fans nudge him "fast, clever, but with no punch." Meanwhile he works as a $17-a-week ship company rate clerk. While playing basketball, in March, 1917, Gene injures his left elbow . . . War comes in April and, in May, Gene is rejected because of that injury. Terribly disappointed, he seeks special aid, becomes a life saver at a New Jersey shore resort for the summer, knocks out two in club bouts, and gets a job that winter checking airplane parts on a Jersey City pier. A German physician treats Gene's arm from January to June, cures it, and he joins the United States Marines. The night before leaving to "f'in up," he stops an unknown in a Jersey City bout, has a significant parting with Doc Bagley, then his manager, whips a fellow-recruit at Parris Island, goes overseas to Brest and wins the Romorantin camp championship.

By GENE TUNNEY,
Retired Heavyweight Champion.

CHAPTER NINE

I found a piece of rope and skipped in hobnailed boots in a little patch of dry ground behind the bunk house. I induced some of the boys of our company to box with me. I soon learned that this kind of training was not going to improve my condition very much. Something must be done. I decided to try some road work and found that the ease with which I used to do the modified marathon was not to be mine again for some months. I had been too long without any kind of exercise but drill and guard duty. These do not prepare a man for athletic competition.

Gene Tunney

The night of the fight for the heavyweight championship of the post arrived. Having borrowed a pair of rubber-soled sneakers from an officer and trunks from someone else, I was equipped to fight Wuerhl. It was in this fight that I first discerned the difference between the joy of looking at a fight and the horror of being on the losing side of one. Wuerhl, who was a very strong fellow with an awkward style, was in condition. He knew something about boxing. I knew as much about boxing, but was not in condition.

TAKES EARLY BEATING

For the first two rounds, Wuerhl punched me all over the ring. In the second round, Wuerhl had pummeled me along the ropes to a corner and somehow my head got outside the top rope. There were three or four motor mechanics from his company sitting in the first row whom I heard shout:

"Atta boy, Hank, one more punch! Come on, you've got him now, knock the big tramp back to the guard house."

The thought flashed through my mind in that instant:

"What a fool you are to be in here and furnish entertainment for this bloodthirsty mob! How much easier it would be to sit out there and enjoy having other fools furnish the spectacle!"

"It only takes one more step now and you are out of it all, out in the safety of the ringside seats."

I realized this would never do. There was no turning back at this point. I must make the best of a bad situation. I got my head back inside the ropes and resumed trying to hit my glaring, savage-like opponent with one punch. Again I missed. I missed at least 30 right-hand crosses during the first two rounds, but each time the missing distance grew less.

Wuerhl became less cautious. His inevitable left followed by his right in the form of a one-two punch darted out with speed and vigor, and, as usual, my face was there to meet them. Again I let my right go and again missed, but not by as much as before. I kept repeating to myself:

"If you can only land one punch—just one, oh, why must you keep missing?"

The urge to keep trying increased.

RALLIES TO WIN

He proceeded with his scientific butchery for the greater part of the round. I was tiring and bleeding from the nose and mouth, but I was neither weary nor hopeless. I kept shooting across the right. After missing a terrific right I thought:

"You did not miss by more than a half inch! Try one more!"

Suddenly Wuerhl fell. The half inch had been reduced. The right had grazed his chin. It had sufficient power to put him down. He took the count of nine. The crowd was wild and yelling raucously. The boys from the company wanted to climb in. Capt. Greene, the referee, pushed them back, continuing his count. Wuerhl got up. I was not missing any more. The next right hit him on the ear and nearly tore it off his head. Blood gushed. Down he went. The count started. He did not rise.

I was then the undisputed heavyweight champion of Romorantin. This was the first of many titles I was to win during my career and each in its way was as important as the ultimate heavyweight title. For this fight I got no money. I got a certain knowledge that was far more valuable than money. I discovered that, no matter how hard the going might be or how hopeless the outlook seemed, there was no tendency in my mental makeup to quit.

LEARNS VALUABLE LESSON

It is one thing to be game before a vast audience which has paid high compensation, and when one's career and very livelihood depend on one's show of gameness, and another story altogether when the only thing at stake is one's self-respect. A good deal of the so-called gameness seen in a prize ring is merely business instinct. There is a consciousness among prize fighters that if they quit there is little chance for another trial. Matchmakers do not engage quitters or losers as a rule. To keep working means that one must keep winning. This is the inspiration of much of the gameness seen in the ring.

There is no denying that it takes a certain kind of courage even to enter a prize ring. Yet I have known actual cowards who have been professional fighters.

Undoubtedly the compensation and the kind of glory that goes with it furnish much of the urge to continue a professional career. I have never been able to make up my mind just how much true courage is required for success in the fighting game. I have seen many admirable exhibitions of courage and gameness in the ring, but I have only occasionally been able to tell where business instinct ended and sheer courage began.

D'AUVERGNE REAL HERO

History contains many lessons of physical and spiritual courage. None appeals so much to me as that of De la Tour d'Auvergne, a poilu of the French and English feudal wars in ancient times. D'Auvergne was placed as a night-watch at an outpost with orders to shout the alarm if the enemy attempted a surprise attack during the night.

The alarm would naturally prepare the camp and prevent a wholesale slaughter of the army.

Alone in the dark night, D'Auvergne was suddenly surrounded by three English soldiers. Holding a lance against his heart, one whispered:

"Give no alarm and your life will be spared."

D'Auvergne could have heeded the urge of self-preservation, ignored duty and saved his own life—but sacrificed the lives of his comrades. No.

"Rise, the English are here!" he shouted.

As the lance pierced his heart, he renewed the alarm. Lying on his face, with his life blood oozing from his wound, he continued murmuring the alarm that cost him his life and saved his comrades. D'Auvergne's was the noblest form of courage.

I am convinced that the quality of courage needed for professional boxing has little kinship with D'Auvergne's. As I mentioned above, it takes a certain type of courage to go into a ring where one can never be sure of his physical well-being. I like to think of this as a conscious physical courage. No one, to my mind, has possessed this to a higher degree than Tommy Loughran. No fighter has ever gone into a ring worse equipped than Tommy. Lacking size, strength, speed, endurance and punch (the best defense), Loughran takes on all comers regardless of size or strength.

Being very intelligent, Tommy is conscious of his physical shortcomings. His is a rare type of conscious physical courage; yet in his fight with Jack Sharkey, after he had been knocked down and relieved of his consciousness, he showed a decided lack of sub-conscious or instinctive courage.

Instead of waiting on one knee for the count of nine and resuming hostilities, he rose as soon as his strength permitted him and walked to his own corner. He was out. His action was instinctive. The referee, unaware of Tommy's condition, believed he had made the mistake of thinking the round was over. He walked to the corner to tell Tommy that the fight was still on. Tommy said:

"I want to sit down and think it over."

DIFFERENT THAN DEMPSEY

Tommy is Conrad's Lord Jim of boxing. Lord Jim had great imaginative courage. He planned his heroic conduct in great detail. When the crisis came and reason left him he became an emotional or instinctive coward. Opposite to Tommy Loughran's psychological and instinctive reactions, we have Jack Dempsey's.

In the next chapter, Tunney makes a striking comment on Jack Dempsey's "extraordinary lack of confidence in himself" as a prelude to vivid memories of his inter-camp bouts in France which relieved him in part, of that "most boring" duty of guarding empty balloon sheds.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Tony Herrera says it took him four or five rounds to get his bearings against Tony Falco in their humdinger battle at the Garden last Monday night because he had trained against rangy sparring partners and then came here and learned Falco was a short, chunky egg . . . The show drew a large crowd, but receipts of just a little more than $2,000 . . . Two-thirds of the tickets sold were $1 pasteboards . . . A couple of years ago, the same card would have drawn from $5,000 to $7,000 . . . To paraphrase, it seems no boxing show is a profit in its own country any more.

They're rating Johnny Goodman as the outstanding amateur golfer of the year in this country, with Gene Sarazen, of course, topping the pros with his comeback to win both the United States and British Open titles . . . Maurice McCarthy, the New York star amateur golfer, now is residing in Cleveland, where he ought to kick up quite a fuss on the links.

These are the melancholy days in sports . . . No sooner do we get the last of the scheduled college football games out of the road than Pitt contracts to play in the Rose Bowl game. Bob Waddell quits as Carnegie Tech's coach and the Pirates put through a deal for Freddie Lindstrom . . . And then there's the snow to be shoveled off the sidewalk, too.

Anything to make a deal easy to follow . . . The Pirates give an outfielder and money to the Phillies and a pitcher to the Giants, who send Lindstrom to the Pirates and another outfielder to the Phillies, who send another outfielder to the Giants . . . Now that you know what it's all about, aren't you glad you didn't go in for road maps in the first place? . . . Let's see—how does that go again? . . . The Pirates give— . . . Well, you say it over a few times . . . It's all about some trade the Red Sox and Minneapolis have just put over.—HARRY KECK.

Tulane to Play Colgate in '33

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—A 10-game football schedule for 1933 has been announced by Tulane University, including a game in New York with Colgate and games in New Orleans with the University of Maryland and Kentucky.

The Colgate game is scheduled for November 11; Maryland, October 14, and Kentucky, on November 18.

CARNERA VICTOR

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Primo Carnera won a second-round technical knockout over Big Boy Peterson, of Minneapolis, in a scheduled 10-round bout here last night. Peterson's handlers threw a towel in the ring as the fighter sank to the canvas for the fourth time in the round.

JANOSKI STARS FOR JACKETS

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Dec. 14.—Joe Janoski, Waynesburg center, has set an individual scoring mark for other college players in the tri-state district to shoot at this season.

In the inaugural game of the year for the Waynesburg and Fairmont quintets last night, Janoski scored 12 points on six field goals as the Yellow Jackets defeated the Fairmonts, 41 to 31.

Waynesburg led at the half, 26 to 16.

CORNELL LEADER NAMED

ITHACA, N. Y., Dec. 14.—(INS.)—Frank Murdock, of Natrona Heights, Pa., right tackle, last night was elected to captain Cornell's football team next season.

Cadet Five Cards 15-Game Schedule

WEST POINT, N. Y., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Army's 1933 basketball schedule, listing 15 games, has been announced by Maj. P. B. Fleming, graduate manager of athletics. The season opens January 7 with Johns Hopkins and closes March 4 against Navy at Annapolis.

The Cadets will play two other games away from home, in addition to the Navy contest, meeting Penn State at State College, January 28, and Ohio State at Columbus, February 11.

M'VICAR TRADED

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Jack Arbour, newly-appointed manager of the Windsor Bulldogs, of the International Hockey League, has announced the trade of Jack McVicar, defense player, to the Providence Reds of the Canadian-American League for Harvey Rockburn, hard-hitting defense man.

STOCKS IGNORE FRENCH DEBT DEFAULT

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—The stock market refused to be perturbed today by the vote of the French Chamber to default the war debt instalment due tomorrow.

Share prices eased fractionally at the start, but mostly recovered later, with few issues showing small gains by early afternoon. French and Belgian bonds weakened, and the French franc hovered around the point at which gold may flow to New York, but the British pound sterling was higher.

Wall street, in the main, was inclined to put the best construction possible on the latest tangle in the war debt situation, some quarters pointing out that the French action, while unsettling, might hasten more decisive dealing with the problem, and its eventual removal as a recurrent source of uncertainty.

While trade and business news remained uninspiring, for the most part, the electric power production figures were a little more favorable than last week. Freight car loadings appeared to be following the usual seasonal trends. New York Central reported 80,961 cars handled last week, as reduced from 84,802 cars in the previous week.

The government cotton consumption report was a little less favorable than advance estimates had indicated. The weekly petroleum figures showed moderate reductions in crude output and gasoline stocks, but the price structure remained somewhat unsettled, with rumors of fresh crude reductions in the mid-continent area.

Plans for introducing a new farm relief measure in Congress, which may call for the inauguration of the domestic allotment plan, attracted some attention in stock market quarters, particularly in those interested in chemical, farm implement and mail order shares.

STEEL OUTPUT CONTRACTING

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—(INS.)—With nearly all industrial activities except motor car manufacture slowing down as the year-end approaches, business in finished steel, pig iron and scrap is undergoing further contraction, according to Iron Age.

Steel ingot output has declined to 15 per cent for the entire country, against 16 per cent last week, and the rate probably will drop lower next week. In the period from Christmas to New Years there will be almost complete cessation of production at many steel plants.

The automobile industry presents a contrast to the hesitation prevalent in other lines. Motor car manufacture has been expanded, in the past week and now is more active than at any time since July.

Railroad orders are meager.

A bunching of awards for federal building projects brought the week's fabricated structural steel contracts to 35,600 tons, the largest in many weeks, and new projects also come to a high total at 40,000 tons.

Scrap is weak in all centers, but heavy melting steel has suffered no further decline in the principal consuming districts.

STREET CALM OVER DEBT PAYMENTS

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Hard boiled appraisers of financial probabilities at the market place appear to be taking calmly the "adverse" effects of receiving intergovernmental war debt payments on December 15.

The arguments of the debtor countries that we cannot "afford" to receive the payments are based on highly conjectural reasoning.

Mr. Rukeyser

Apart from such abstruse argument, the American position appears to be that there will be no revision without some quid pro quo.

The long range debate with France via diplomatic notes recalls our early debt to that country. Beginning during the Revolutionary War in 1777 France in a series of advances lent a total of $6,352,500 to this country by 1783. In an official account relating to more than half of these French advances prepared by an attache of the Treasury Department, the flat statement is made that the money was advanced without an expectation of repayment, though formal stipulation was made that the money should be repaid. A formal contract for the repayment was drawn up in 1782. The last direct payment in money was made in 1795, and the balance was made in stock, known as the 5½ per cent stock of 1795. Payment was made in full, although France remitted interest prior to the end of the Revolutionary War on the largest of four loans extended.

Though the amount involved today seems small, it was large in relation to the struggling nation's capacity to pay at that time. The colonies consisted of a largely agricultural population of 4,000,000 persons, of whom one-sixth were slaves.

When the young nation faced the problem of paying off the debt, Alexander Hamilton wrote in a report on public credit issued to the House of Representatives on January 5, 1790:

"It is agreed on all hands that that part of the debt which has been contracted abroad and is dominated the foreign debt ought to be provided for according to the precise terms of the contracts relating to it."

NEVADA'S BANK TRUCE ENDS

RENO, Nev., Dec. 14.—(AP.)—Nevada's banking holiday was history today with the 13 institutions which took advantage of the moratorium, called November 1, in the hands of bank examiners.

E. J. Seaborn, state bank examiner, said the 12 banks of the Wingfield chain and the Battle Mountain State Bank were taken over yesterday to forestall filing of actions to establish preferential claims. The holiday was ordered to prevent the Wingfield banks from going into receivership with a consequent liquidation of assets.

A plan for creation of a trust company to take over the banks, consolidate their assets and operate them as a chain, is being held in abeyance pending posting of $1,000,000 in capital by unnamed California sources.

The Wingfield banks have combined assets of $15,000,000 and resources of about $21,000,000.

COURT VOIDS OIL RULES

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 14.—(AP.)—The second blow in two days at current state regulation of crude oil production was struck yesterday by the Oklahoma Supreme Court, which upheld general powers of the State Corporation Commission, but declared present orders invalid.

In a case brought by the H. F. Wilcox Oil and Gas Company, the state Supreme Court upheld the rights of curtailment of production on an equitable basis as between producers and between pools, but invalidated rules granting flat and water allowables in the Oklahoma City field. All regulatory orders issued since November 1, 1931, were invalidated.

Monday the United States Supreme Court ruled that Gov. R. S. Sterling of Texas, had exceeded his authority in exercising military powers to limit production in the East Texas petroleum area.

Standard Plate Glass Receivers Plan Payment

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

RECEIVERS FOR the Standard Plate Glass Company expect ultimately to make distributions of about $500,000 to the holders of the organization's notes and other creditors. This will clear up a major share of the liabilities. A distribution of about $300,000 will be made within a few weeks.

The distribution has been made possible by the sale of the organization's Butler plant to C. E. Frazier, of Washington, Pa., who overbid Butler interests, who have been operating the plant under a lease. Mr. Frazier is understood to be in partnership with Emil Jentil, of the Societie St. Gobain of Paris, largest plate glass producers in Europe

The St. Gobain interests, in partnership with other European glass makers, own a rough rolled glass plant at Kingsport, Tenn. This plant at present is operating under unfavorable freight rate differentials in getting its materials and shipping its products. In view of this, it is considered possible that operations at that point may be transferred to the plant just purchased at Butler. Mr. Frazier is interested in the Simplex Engineering Company which makes glass plant machinery and may use the plant for experimental work. The Butler plant originally had a payroll of about 400, but if these new activities are moved into it a payroll of 800 may eventually be developed.

Three-Fourths of Notes Were Paid

THE CASH available for the distribution in addition to the amount received for the Butler plant represents the proceeds of the sale of other properties and money received under the lease of the Butler plant. The receivers have paid back taxes of $60,000 and the claims of other preferred creditors, so that the notes and merchandise creditors represent practically the only liability.

The issue of five-year 6 per cent notes originally amounted to $3,000,000 and matured March 1, 1930. Under an agreement with the holders, the interest due and 75 per cent of the principal were paid on the maturity date. This left $750,000 of principal outstanding. Claims of merchandise creditors amount to $150,000. The distribution to be made shortly will leave only a small remainder still due.

A further distribution may be made in the future through the liquidation of remaining assets. These consist of an abandoned plant at Springdale and a mortgage on a warehouse formerly owned at Boston.

Junior Securities Unlikely to Share

WHILE THE distribution now being planned and cash which may be realized in the future, lead to the hope that most of the claim of the creditors eventually will be met, it is unlikely that any salvage will remain for the holders of the junior securities.

These issues consist of $1,858,000 of 7 per cent cumulative prior preference stock, $5,003,400 of 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock and 191,970 shares of common stock.

The company's difficulties started in 1925 when severe competition from foreign producers of plate glass resulted in price cutting which eventually reduced quotations more than 50 per cent. The resulting losses made it impossible for the company to refund its notes at maturity even though it had cash sufficient to meet 75 per cent of the amount due.

Heroic efforts to reduce expenses and to cut costs by plant modernization failed to put the company on a profitable basis although, it is understood that the Butler interests, who have been operating the plant under a lease and who have not been burdened by heavy capital and depreciation charges, have been able to show a profit.

MARY FAITH

Story of a Girl With Husband Who Wouldn't Grow Up

By BEATRICE BURTON

Mary Faith Keeps Her Job And Returns Engagement Presents to Friends

CHAPTER VI.

It was half past nine when Mary Faith walked into the office that morning.

Jean Bartlett and the other stenographers looked up at her and smiled when she opened the door. Something in Jean's smile made Mary Faith turn a quick half-frightened glance at the door of her own little room. Suppose the girls were giving her an engagement shower! A shower like the one they had given Miss O'Keefe last year just before she left to be married!

"I hope they haven't—Oh, I do hope they haven't," Mary Faith prayed silently.

But the second she opened the door she saw that the thing she feared would happen had happened. Her desk was covered with white packages tied with satin ribbon and her glass flower vase was filled with long-stemmed bride's roses.

She stood gazing at them in agony for a second. Then she closed the door and went into Mr. Mark Nesbit's office without stopping to knock.

He was sitting at his desk, doing nothing. His letters lay in a neat stack before him. She saw that they had not been opened. She had always opened his letters for him.

"I'm sorry I'm late," she said, and then: "May I speak to you a moment?"

He nodded.

"Mr. Nesbit, yesterday afternoon I told you I was going to leave you at the end of the month. . . . I'd like to stay on if it's all right with you. I've changed my plans."

NESBIT SATISFIED

He glanced at her.

"You mean that you're not going to be married in two weeks?" he said sharply. So sharply that it did not occur to her at the time that this was anything but a businesslike question.

"I'm not going to be married at all," she answered quietly. "I've broken my engagement."

"I see." He got up and stood beside the desk, his hands in his pockets. "Everything here goes on just as it usually does, then. . . . Well, that's fine, Mary Faith."

He never had called her Mary Faith before.

Everything had always been perfectly business-like and matter-of-fact between them. She had done his work and he had paid her her salary. They had always been "Miss Fenton" and "Mr. Nesbit" to each other.

"Please send Miss Bartlett in," he said as Mary Faith turned to go out of his office. "I spoke to her just now about taking your position when you left . . . I'll tell her you're staying on. That will save you any embarrassment."

In her own little room once more Mary Faith stood looking at the white tissue-paper packages on her desk.

One of them smelled of gardenia sachet powder. The heavy scent rose to her nostrils and made her think of the little bunch of gardenias, tied with silver ribbon, that Kim had sent to her last Easter. Once again she could see the pale watery sunlight of Easter Sunday morning when she and Kim had walked, side by side, to church. Kim—there would be something to remind her of him always . . .

PRESENTS RETURNED

She was picking up the white packages from her desk when the door of the room flew open and Jean Bartlett came in.

"What's this Mr. Nesbit's been telling me?" she asked, shutting the door behind her. "You're not going to leave after all?"

Mary Faith shook her head, her face white and still above the bride's roses on her desk.

"Well, what on earth——? What's happened?" asked Jean. "Aren't you going to be married?" Her black eyes were wide with curiosity.

She was one of those frank, cheerful, talkative people who have no secrets. She told everything there was to tell about herself to anyone who would listen to her. Mary Faith knew all about her love affairs, her home life, her friends, and her bank account.

And because she had no secrets of her own, Jean had no qualms about poking her nose into other people's business. But she was lovable and loyal and amusing, and she and Mary Faith had been great friends for four years.

"No, I'm not going to be married," Mary Faith told her with lips that felt stiff although they were trembling. She looked down at the packages in her hands, and when she looked up again her eyes were shining under a film of tears.

"What happened? Did Handsome change his mind?" asked Jean, who knew Kim and frankly admitted he was the best-looking man she had ever seen.

Mary Faith nodded slowly. Then she came around the desk with the engagement presents in her hands.

"These presents . . . It was mighty nice of the girls to bring them to me," she said. "You give them back to them, Jean, please. I can't—" she shook her head, unable to go on.

Jean fairly snatched the packages from her. Then she seized the bride's roses by their long stems and shook the water from them.

"Oh, but I'd just like to tell Kim Farrell what I think of him!" she said, bristling all over. "It's too bad you haven't a father or a brother or somebody to go round and give him the best sock on the nose he ever had, Mary Faith. That's what he needs . . . To do a thing like this to you!"

She dropped the roses into the wastebasket and picked up the wastebasket.

"Buck up, Mary Faith. Don't take it this way!" she went on. "Plenty of mothers have sons, you know. A girl's a fool to break her heart over one man when the world's so full of men . . . You'll find somebody else pretty soon, and in six months you'll have forgotten you ever knew Kim Farrell. I know. I've been engaged twice—and I wouldn't shed a tear over the best man alive!"

When she had gone, taking the wastebasket of roses and the engagement presents with her, Mary Faith ran downstairs to the rest room where she cried bitterly as she washed the scent of gardenia sachet from her hands.

All day long as she went back and forth in the office she could feel the curious eyes of Jean and Miss Saxe and Miss Kelly upon her. She knew that they were all wondering just what had happened between herself and Kim.

And Miss Gilday, who operated the switchboard, had put through telephone calls from Kim to her every day for almost four years . . . Miss Gilday must be wondering what had happened, too.

Synopsis

Mary Faith, young and comely fiancee of Kimberly Farrell, handsome blond youth, just out of law school, gives notice that she will leave her position as secretary to the wealthy Mark Nesbit to marry "Kim." Mary Faith receives a note from Kim's mother inviting her to dinner. The unpleasant attitude of Kim's mother proves to Mary Faith that she does not favor the marriage. Driving home, Mary Faith realizes a mother's feelings in giving up her only son. Before leaving, Kim bluntly asks Mary Faith to postpone the marriage. The next morning Kim again startles Mary Faith by telling her he called on another girl, Janet, after leaving her the night before, and asks Mary Faith to return his ring.

Now Go On

When she opened the door, she saw the thing she dreaded had happened.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

How some of those youngsters in the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club can strut! They step so high you'd think they were going to bang their knees on their foreheads. Take Betty Haas and Audrey Walters, of the Rowland Theater Chapter as examples. These two kiddies put on the "St. Louis Blues" at Saturday's club meeting and the encores that followed held up the entire show.

As usual Mildred Rotthoff presided at this chapter meeting and she seems to have the peculiar knack of keeping these youngsters in a happy mood all the time. That Rowland orchestra is getting to be a smart band, presenting new and popular selections at every meeting. Jane Forrest, in one of her characteristic dances, "spun" on her toes until the entire Rowland audience was dizzy.

MEMBERSHIP GROWS

If there was a prize for growth in membership, the McKeesport Chapter probably would win it. McKeesport is going along like a whirlwind. The secret behind this growth is selected juvenile entertainment and plenty of it. Among the many who volunteered for last Saturday's program was Margaret Curtis, Margaret Cardos, Richard Fetters, Billy Mossburg, Vera Hollywood and Lillian Barkmeyer in songs; Mary Evans, Lillian Berger, Dorothy Gavollier, Betty Weiss and Evelyn Usko in dances; Gertrude Usko and Stella Barton in songs and dances. Among the new members enrolled Saturday were Sylvia Kileman, Lillian Barkmeyer, Rhea Kileman, William Herrick and Beatrice Herrick. And the chapter gave them a rousing welcome.

Members of the Liberty Theater Chapter, New Kensington, are showing an unusually keen interest in the dancing classes that precede the regular meetings. Competent instructors from Schelot's Dancing School give their time to these youngsters and are finding some apt students. Pupils from the school also furnished a large part of the entertainment last Saturday and the Liberty Chapter Komic Club orchestra participated in the program.

RECORD ATTENDANCE

Let's hand the Harris Chapter at Donora a boquet. The attendance last Saturday reached a new high record—close to 400. It shows that the kiddies at Donora like their Junior Komic Club. To celebrate this new record each member was given an "All Nations" flag button. If you have never seen a bunch of kiddies trying to roll a peanut with their noses as propellers, you still have something to see. Manager Shontz staged one of these contests.

Elaborate preparations have been under way for several days for special Christmas programs for all of the various chapters, scheduled for Saturday, December 24. It is expected that these will bring tremendously big attendances and to many of the kiddies where families are suffering from the depression, it will be the bright spot of the holiday season.

Giving the Government an Idea

We've had enough of these budgets and deficits.

We get 'em with our eggs in the morning and they're the ingredients of insomnia at night.

Europe has 'em, and we got 'em. They're contagious by request.

What is a budget? It's the money America is going to spend in 1933 if we can't postpone the new year. It's the extra coin we have to spend for economy and reducing the navy. It pays the Congressmen and the letter carriers, the soldiers, the sailors and the diplomats. It's good gravy if you have a spoon.

What's the deficit? That's the surplus left over after we can't borrow any more. It's all velvet.

We use the deficit to balance the budget. And it won't be long now before the night watchman at the Treasury can take a nice vacation.

How do you balance the Budget? Well, you make the load heavier. Just picture a man carrying a blacksmith's anvil under one arm. He's all hunched over to one side, ain't he?

Well, we put a second anvil under his other arm and he straightens up like a sentry saluting a general.

He's balanced, therefore, when the deficit is equal to the budget you have what they call a reciprocating load. The result is international credit and broken arches.

There's nothing to this economic science. All you've got to do is keep on figuring. America will never be conquered so long as we have a fearless auditor to wave a lead pencil in its defense.

Nobody knows they're busted until they add the totals. Therefore, you're foolish to check 'em up. Just keep grinding out the figures. You can sweep up crumbs for many a long day before you get enough for a loaf of bread.

The way to start the new administration is without a budget. Then we will have nothing to worry about and we can balance everything by tossing the deficit on the hay scales.

The government can have this idea for what it's worth. We don't expect much because we remember that it once bought Gould's yacht for a dollar.

200,000 Wandering Boys

The Cutting Bill for Their Relief Deserves Consideration as an Urgent Emergency Measure.

More than 200,000 American youths, under 21 years of age, are now roaming the country in search of food and shelter and the chance to earn an honest living.

For the immediate relief of this "aimless army" of homeless, jobless, ragged and hungry wanderers, Senator Cutting, of New Mexico, has introduced in the Senate a bill that the Democratic and Republican leaders in both houses should enact as emergency legislation of the utmost urgency.

The Cutting bill authorizes co-operation by the federal government with the several states and territories in relieving distress upon these migratory young Americans. It provides $15,000,000 to be used "in furnishing relief and in maintaining work and training programs for individuals who have no legal claim on the state or the local community for such assistance."

From Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, U. S. A., retired, who earned national fame by his humane and effective tour of duty as superintendent of police of the federal city, comes convincing argument in support of Senator Cutting's program for this wandering army of the nation's youth. Gen. Glassford says:

"Preventing the decadence of American manhood is a problem of national military and economic concern. The futility of finding employment and the inadequacy of local relief have turned from their homes hundreds of thousands of young men and boys who are riding the freights and hitch-hiking all over the country. These migratory youths are increasing in numbers. Hopeless in their endeavor to find employment, unwelcome in the communities through which they pass, they rapidly become demoralized.

"Undernourished, cold and subject to loss of health and to criminal and degenerative influences, in them the nation faces a critical problem of human salvage."

Senator Cutting has shown the Congress how this problem so vital to the future of our country can be solved, under the leadership of the federal government, by the several states and territories.

Senators and Representatives in Congress before, during, and after the great war voted hundreds of millions of dollars to relieve distress among the youth of foreign lands.

No Congress will be worthy the name American that turns a deaf ear to the national appeal in behalf of our own homeless, jobless, ragged and hungry youths which Senator Cutting has submitted to the Senate in the form of a practical program for relief.

A Brilliant Career

Dr. W. J. Holland Was a Unique Personality, Who Excelled in a Dozen Fields of the Intellect.

Pittsburgh's "grand old man," Dr. William J. Holland, is dead, and we are not likely to have another such unique personality.

That tall sturdy figure with whom Pittsburgh has been familiar for half a century will be seen no more.

Death was due to a stroke. Although 84, Dr. Holland had been vigorous and active up until this year. Then came a cerebral hemorrhage, that insidious foe of the aged, to strike him down.

The passing of this fine citizen will cause general sorrow. He was like the late Dr. John Brashear in the number of his friends.

Dr. Holland had a remarkable career. He towered above his fellow men not in just one but in a dozen fields of intellectual activity. He was a minister, a college president, a museum director, an entomologist, a paleontologist, an artist, a linguist—to enumerate all the fields in which he shone would be almost like calling a roll of the arts and sciences.

And with all this he was a very human person, not at all the "highbrow," but companionable, a capital after dinner speaker, with a delicious dry humor and a memory stocked with a wealth of interesting experiences and anecdotes.

No one who knew Dr. Holland can ever forget him.

A public memorial service at Carnegie Institute in the near future would be appropriate.

Safe Drinking Water

An Official Statement Brings to Mind a Blessing That We Have Not Always Enjoyed.

The Allegheny, Monongahela and Ohio rivers in the vicinity of Pittsburgh are open sewers. They are defiled with domestic sewage and industrial pollution. But, thanks to the filtration system and to the use of certain chemicals in the treatment of the water, when it reaches Pittsburgh homes it is safe to drink.

The subject is called up by an official statement issued yesterday by the Bureau of Water. There has been complaint about the taste of the water, and the bureau reports it is due to decayed vegetation swept into the rivers by recent rains. So far as disease-breeding bacteria are concerned, the water is pure, the bureau reports, and can be consumed without any fear of the consequences.

It is well to be reminded from time to time of this blessing of pure water, because it is a blessing that Pittsburgh did not always enjoy. Up until about 35 years ago the city had a terribly high death rate from typhoid fever, caused by water pollution, and prudent families boiled all their drinking water.

Even though the water, after treatment, is safe, it is regrettable that the rivers should be so contaminated, for the contamination is responsible for a number of evils, such as the corrosion of metals, the destruction of fish life, and difficulties encountered in laundry work.

The time will come when we will no longer submit to these evils, but will require communities and industries to find some other way of getting rid of their waste matter than by dumping it into the rivers.

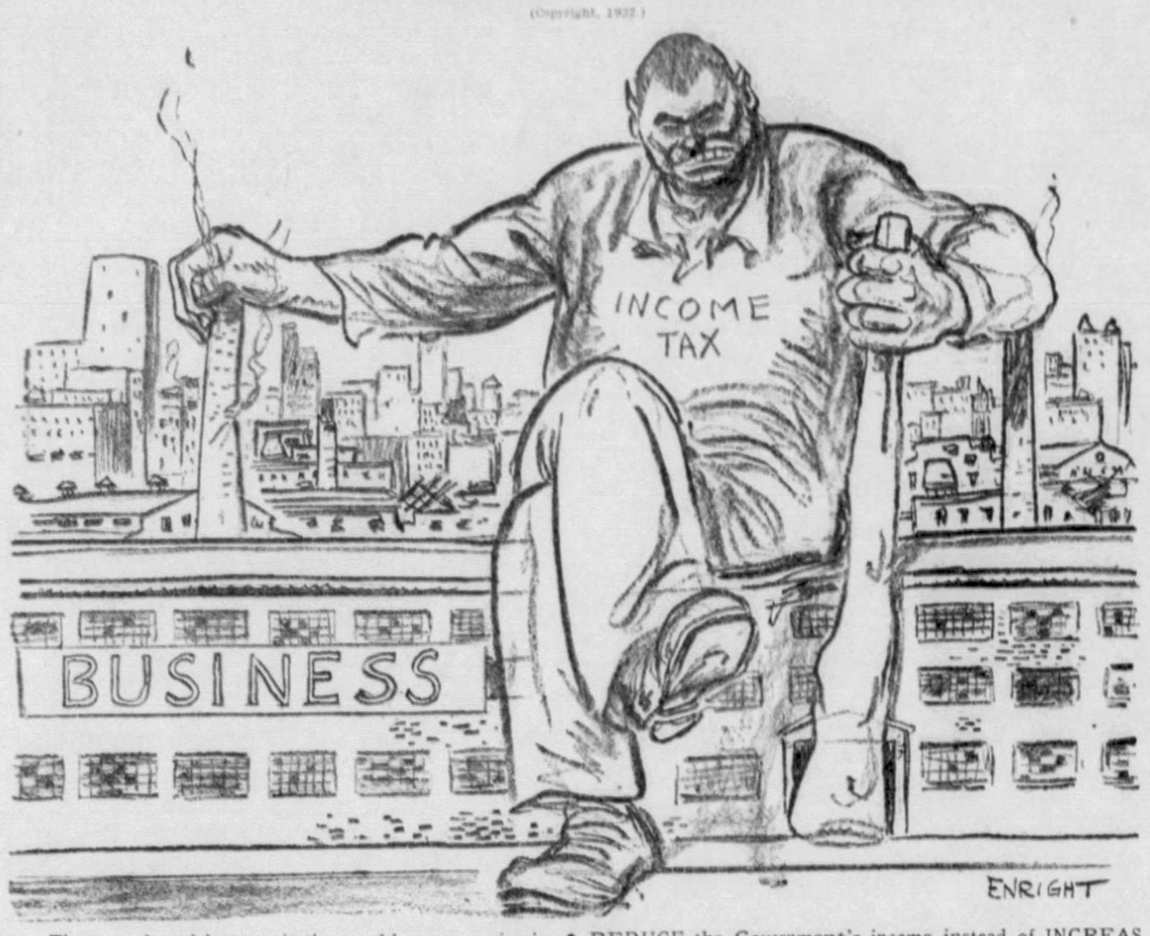
A Ruinous Burden

(Copyright, 1932.)



The most harmful taxes in the world are excessive income taxes.

Such taxes prevent the kind of spending that is the very basis of prosperity.

Because of the confiscatory burden imposed on large private incomes, these taxes drive capital out of productive industry into tax exempt securities. Thus they operate to REDUCE the Government's income instead of INCREASING it, and to prevent the kind of business enterprise that provides employment for labor.

No industrial nation can long endure such a burden.

The present Congress should slash the excessive Federal income taxes, and substitute a sane, just and practicable Sales Tax, which will provide MORE revenue, and at the same time permit business to go ahead.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Silly—But Charming

Lots of women are secretly hoping that, with the return of puffed sleeves, ringlets (and probably of good wine), there will be a cut-back to those graceful gallantries which are so foolish—yet so fascinating.

* * *

Most men still cling to what the feminists would call "silly customs." But when it comes to pleasing the average woman, the man who knows his Walter-Raleighs has the inside track.

* * *

Take the simple act of removing his hat when a woman enters an elevator, for instance. Nobody really knows why the inside of an elevator should be more sacred than the hall outside, or than the inside of a subway train. Yet there is something about this little gesture that gives a woman a pleasant ripple between her shoulder blades and sends a nice warm little thrill down her cardiac side. Then and there she secretly "knights" the unknown man. It's "foolish" she knows—but she LOVES IT! Women are like that.

And then there's hat-tipping—that twentieth century relic of the days when the plumed knight swept off his hat with one hand and laid the other upon his heart as he bowed low to some woman. A beautiful gesture reduced to a minimum! But no matter how modern a gal may be or how regularly she votes, she is outraged and scornful if a man neglects to tip his hat. Thenceforth, he is just "a boor and a hoodlum" in her books.

* * *

A woman will keep a man standing 10 or 20 minutes bareheaded in the street while the winds howl about his ears and the chill beats upon his crown or his bald-spot as she talks. She may say, "Oh, put your hat on!"—but she doesn't mean it, and she secretly hopes that he won't. If he does she'll forgive him; but if he doesn't she loves him for his gallantry.

Every American woman who has been abroad, wishes that American men could know the thrill it gives a woman to have her hand kissed. But here the American man draws the line! He'll risk pneumonia in the street or the draughty elevator, knock over the cutlery and upset his tumbler to stand up when she approaches his table in a restaurant, grab her elbow to help her in and out of a car or a taxicab and even try to carry an umbrella over her. But he WON'T carry her Pekingese, bow from the waist or start any handkissing!

* * *

Oh well, so long as he retains just a few of these "beautiful gestures," women will be satisfied. "Silly old customs?" Perhaps—when you analyze them. But show me a woman who doesn't get a kick or a thrill out of them! And show me a man who knows all the little gallantries and never forgets them, who is not a riot with the women!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Dec. 14.—Those quiet tea rooms, so inconspicuously shadowed in side streets and marking the milestone of another work day, are doing a bigger business than many speakeasies. From 4 until 6 they are crowded. Some men are too worried to contribute a cocktail headache to the world's sinking fund of woe.

So they join wives for tea. As feminine as a perfume shop, they should be a "No Man's Land" but they are not. This afternoon, I piloted a conspicuous way through a jungle of beaver, moleskin and mink. The place held the neighborhood favor of the moment. Tea rooms are always opening and going smash.

At every table was at least one self-conscious male, politely poking at an eclair, wearing a photographic smile and featuring that restrained behavior never seen outside tea rooms. A brassy lady next table had just discovered Hemingway. Another gurgled praise for Dorothy Parker.

A bosomy matron impatiently tapped a lorgnette against a candle stick. In a moment she was joined by a white-mustached, bluff and old established husband, received calmly like an overdue and cold portion of toast. A curly-haired Fauntleroy yowled through the aisle after a lost red balloon.

A handsome young man, with a lodge button, was introduced in shy pride: "This is my husband." All serene and earnestly mid-Victorian. And at the cashier's desk, a beautiful silver-haired lady scanned the chit with a sadly sweet smile of betters days. Andromeda tethered to muffins and tea!

Lisle Bell, suffering a flat tire in a remote Bronx reach, waltzed into a Postal office and asked for a messenger boy to aid him in fixing it. Having never heard of such a request, they went into a huddle and reported there was nothing available save small-sized boys. But if he could wait 10 minutes he could have one of a tire-changing size. They made good. One more reason New York is a swell town—even for flat tires.

After fruitless search for a lost husband, an East Sixty-second street lady received word she could find him in a "smoke dive" in the Bowery. She visited the grog shop and, gazing at the besotted, bloated wreck, sniffed: "Keep him!"

But all the smoke dives, where a milky drink at 5 cents a shot is a piece de resistance, are not in the Bowery. There are a dozen in the 40's, usually in cellars or shacks tucked behind buildings. When an unfortunate has reached that drinking level he rarely quits it until trundled, in bright-eyed delirium, to a psychopathic ward. The drink is a blend of cheap alcohol, poured from coffee cans into thimble-sized glasses. One drink produces high stimulation, two, incoherent drunkenness and three, profound slumber. Every groggery has a flop room where victims sleep off benders.

Perhaps the restrained tempo, in contrast to the season's chancy theatricals, made Don Marquis' "The Dark Hours" so satisfying to many, a streak of black loam in the frothy white. The best beloved humorist of the time revealed a poetical poignancy in the delicate portrayal of the anguished prelude to the crucifixion. It was a labor of love and a forward march in decaying drama despite its short life. I liked the sum-up of a calloused curb critic at intermission: "Not box office but swell theater!"

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

He wishes me to announce that he's willing to "give himself in marriage to any respectable, serious-minded woman with a job, or any wealthy widow or divorcee of good character, who will provide him with a home.

In return he promises respect, affection, loyal companionship and full support as soon as he can find employment.

Don't laugh! This doesn't happen to be a joke. The letter is sincere and dignified. And I suspect it is actually an extremely important bit of human history.

He is, he says, 34. Physically fit and morally sound. College graduate—mining engineer. Like many another, he hasn't been able to find steady work for the last two years. Yes, he's willing to take anything. Doesn't have to be engineering. Any sort of a clerical job would do. But—

And here's where this begins to be Important Data.

PRACTICALLY ALL THE CLERICAL JOBS ARE HELD BY WOMEN.

A dozen times it has happened. He'd see an advertisement for a situation and hurry around, only to find that a woman had been given the place. Other men are having that experience, too. But he isn't bitter about it, as most are. He realizes that it's just one of those things. Women are in the working world to stay, the majority of them couldn't be idle if they wished. They're bound to be in competition with men. Increasing competition. A man can't any longer bank on being "head of the house." Generally, there can't be any house unless the girl works, too. So then?

So then, says he, we might as well be practical and face facts.

What did women do when they were financially helpless and men held the jobs? They married the men. And no one thought worse of the Dear Girl because she provided for her future.

But now the situation is reversed. Now millions of women hold jobs and men are idle. But men and women still want to live together, found homes, start families. What are they to do?

Sit around waiting for the Good Old Days to come back, when a man was a Sturdy Oak and a woman the Clinging Vine? But those days won't and can't come back.

THEN WHY SHOULDN'T A MAN DO WHAT WOMEN USED TO DO—PUT HIS PRIDE IN HIS POCKET, PIN HIS HEART ON HIS SLEEVE AND TRY TO FIND SOME NICE, HARD-WORKING GIRL WHO'LL PROVIDE A COMFORTABLE HOME IN RETURN FOR HIS LOVE AND RESPECT?

Such, word for word, is Mr. A. R. F.'s proposition with a good-looking photograph, letter of recommendation and an addressed envelope inclosed. And he doesn't see why it isn't a perfectly fair offer which any sensible girl should be glad to get.

Moreover, in spite of your probable shock, scads of nice girls will agree with him! For the young men aren't the only ones who are facing a dilemma. Our economical shift has also stranded many a woman. For every man without a job who can't find himself a wife, there are 20 girls with jobs who can't find themselves husbands.

In short, Feminine Jobs may be fine for pocketbooks, but they have certainly raised Cain with old-fashioned Romance. But does that necessarily imply that Romance is eliminated? Can't there be a new-fashioned Romance, based on the new relationship between the sexes, which will be even better than the old inequalities?

Might it not even be possible to divorce Romance entirely from cash consideration, and make it entirely a matter of mutual love and respect, regardless of who gets the pay check?

Or do you believe that Romance is doomed unless man can be the Sturdy Oak and woman the Clinging Vine?

Let's hear. Suppose YOU were in this man's shoes—

Or, still more interesting, suppose YOU were some nice but lonely girl with a good job.

What would YOU do?

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Admonition

O, be a little bit more kind,
More patient, gentle, sweet
Through every day at every turn
In office, home and street.

You can not tell just when or where
Or by what word or deed
Your kindness may lift up some heart
That goes in bitter need.

For there are deeps where souls may dwell,
In labyrinths that wind;
And you can lead them back to light,
Perhaps by being kind!

This kindness is a little thing
For any man to give;
It is an honest debt he pays
To help another live.

You know not why, you know not how
The miracle is wrought,
So be more tender still, more kind
In deed and speech and thought!

Text for Today And let the beauty of the Lord our God be upon us: and establish thou the work of our hands upon us; yea, the work of our hands establish thou it.—Psalms, xc:17.

The Budget Message: A Rash Promise

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

The budget message of the President falls far short of being the sensational plan advertised for the reduction of the cost of government by $800,000,000. The reduction proposed with the new taxes suggested falls far short of producing enough money to balance the budget. The sales tax is urged, the retention of the gasoline tax is recommended, but, with these failing to bring in enough money, the President conspicuously refrains from hinting at a beer tax.

This is all the more noticeable because that is a tax for which the people unquestionably voted in the recent election. This does not necessarily mean, however, that when Congress proceeds to the modification of the Volstead Act to get the benefit of the revenue so desperately required Mr. Hoover will veto the measure; or, if he does, that it cannot be passed over his veto.

President Assumes We Have Done Enough

A more than debatable suggestion of the President is that we close our eyes to grim realities, ignore the vital problem of unemployment involving the health and the very lives of millions of men, women and children, assume that all has been done that should be done in the way of public construction, and put an end to it. This is not remarkable from the President, since he has stubbornly opposed public construction on an adequate scale as a means of furnishing employment and restoring purchasing power from the beginning.

The administration has fallen far short of doing all that could be done in this direction with the powers and appropriations at its disposal. If the Wagner bill, passed in the last session, has failed to meet expectations, it is because the administration failed to use it at all until the pressure of adverse public opinion forced it to a beginning. That beginning was not much.

Now the President assumes we have done enough—and the federal government has done less than any other national government confronted by such a crisis. He would stop building, he would stop road building, he would ignore one of the most serious problems the American people ever have faced. In that way he would save some money—but end all effort to alleviate human misery.

National Government Must Act

Senator Wagner says all that need be said upon that subject in his comment:

"I do not think this is any time in view of the economic conditions to cut down on the expenditures for public works. It has been my opinion that public works should be paid for by bonds issued for a term of years, just as any capital expenditure would be paid for by a business concern."

These bonds could and should have been issued long ago; they would have been gobbled up by the public over night.

But the directing minds of the administration have opposed the "principle" of the thing, meaning that it is against recognizing on the part of the people's government any responsibility in initiating steps for the relief of individuals who have been denied their inalienable right to work. Its plan from the beginning has been private charity, which has fallen pitifully below the necessities of the situation.

Only a meager part of the money spent to prevent starvation and death from exposure has come from private purses. Its plan also includes expenditures by states and municipalities, and these have, in most instances, about exhausted, if they have not completely exhausted, their resources. But the National Government should be spared the annoyance!

There is another principle to which many others subscribe—that in a human crisis such as this, where millions are threatened with starvation through no fault of theirs, the National Government positively must act.

President Willing To 'Co-operate'

Meanwhile the President asks for the "co-operation" of Congress in effecting the savings and in raising the revenues he proposes. That carries with it the presumption that he is willing and anxious to "co-operate" with Congress to the same end. And this means that when the Congress, responding to the popular demand, so impressively heard at the polls, modifies the Volstead act to get a tax on beer, the President will continue to think highly of co-operation.

For this will mean not merely a "co-operation" with Congress, but with the American people who have submitted it as their plan to bring in revenue.

A Matter for Congress to Determine

The debtor nations, the leading ones, will meet their payments on the 15th—which is as it should be. Perhaps the Secretary of State goes a bit beyond his authority in giving the debtor nations the impression that one of the conditions accepted by us for the payment due is that we will agree to scale the debts down again. He has no authority to make any such promise or to hold forth any such hope officially. That is a matter for Congress to determine. It is a subject with which the coming administration will deal.

By officially holding forth this promise the debtor nations will be in position to say they have been betrayed in the event nothing of the sort occurs. The bitterness toward us in other lands has been due in a measure to just such unauthorized assurances from official quarters.

Separately each debtor nation has a right to ask a reconsideration; separately we will treat with them, though not through a debt commission; but we do not relish the idea that when we sit down at the table to talk matters over with each separate nation each shall begin the discussion with the reminder that we have promised through the Secretary of State.

Food for Thought

It is rather refreshing to find that among the thinkers in Europe there are some who can see our point of view. At the time of the settlement made with Italy, one of the representatives of that country was Mario Alberti, one of that nation's leading economists. He has just rendered us a service in a two-column article in the leading newspaper of Milan in which he says:

"How can Europe expect Americans, themselves suffering from the economic crisis, to refrain from protesting against cancellation of Europe's war debts, with the consequent sharp increase in taxation, when they see France and England failing to agree to the most modest reduction in armaments?"

How indeed!

The payments due this year will take 3.9 per cent of England's budget, which gives 12.3 per cent to armament; and 2.5 per cent of France's budget, which gives 22.5 per cent to armament; and 14.6 per cent of Italy's budget, which gives 12.5 per cent to armament; and 7.5 per cent of Poland's budget, which gives 33.9 per cent to armament.

There is plenty of food for thought in these figures at a time when these nations, with the exception of Italy, are refusing to consider real reductions in armament, while proposing that we take over their debts and pay them through the taxation of our people at a moment when we are puzzled in finding enough new sources of taxation to balance our own budget.
